INTRODUCTORY AND EXPLANATORY REPORT.

THE Returns for 1874 show a continued decrease in the number of the criminal classes at large and known to the Police, and in the number of houses of bad character.

Following an increase in 1874 as compared with the previous year, a further increase appears in the number of indictable offences reported by the Police, in the number of persons for trial at assizes and sessions, in the number of commitments to prison, and in the number of persons summarily proceeded against before justices.

A Table is inserted (p. 56) showing the number of convicts subjected to police supervision under the Habitual Criminals Act, 1869, and the Prevention of Crime Act, 1871, in each year since the passing of those Acts respectively, on conviction on indictment, with the crimes of which they were convicted, previous convictions being proved against them.

POLICE AND CONSTABULARY.

The following abstract shows the number of each rank of the Police and Constabulary for the whole of England and Wales, as given in the Returns for the year ending the 29th September 1874, with the numbers for the previous year, and the increase in 1873–4 :— Strength of the Force. (Table, p. 1.)

	1873–4.	1872–3.	Increase.

Total Police and Constabulary	28,870	28,550	320

Showing in the total number an increase of rather more than 1·1 per cent.

The total number gives one for every 786 of the population, according to the census of 1871, or one for every 819 of the population estimated for the middle of the year. In 1872-3 the proportion was one for every 795 of the population according to the census for 1871. In 1863–4, the total Police and Constabulary Force gave one for every 906 of the estimated population for that year. Since that period the increase of the Police and Constabulary amounts to 6,021, or 26·3 per cent.

Of the additional Constables enumerated above, 331 belong to the counties, 59 to the boroughs, and 44 to the City of London. There are also included in the total number of Police and Constabulary 665 of the Metropolitan Police employed at Her Majesty's Dockyards and Military Stations. Under the Act of 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88., Chief Constables of counties are empowered, with the approval of the Quarter Sessions, on the application of any person showing the necessity thereof, to appoint and cause to be sworn in any number of Constables at any place within the limits of their authority respectively, at the cost of the persons applying, but under the orders of the Chief Constable. In the City of London also, and in the boroughs, additional Constables are employed in the same manner under the authorities.

Composition of the Force.

The following are the numbers composing the different Forces in each of the years 1873-4 and 1872-3, with the increase in each of the three first-mentioned Forces, there being a decrease in the number for the City of London Force in 1873-4:—

The Borough Constables are in the proportion of one for every 744 of the population of the boroughs; the County Constabulary of one for every 1,276 of the population of the counties, exclusive of the boroughs; the Metropolitan Police (deducting 665, the number employed in Her Majesty's Dockyards, &c.) of one for every 409 of the population of the Metropolitan Police District; and the City of London Police of one for every 95 of the City population, as enumerated on the night of the census of 1871.

As compared with the numbers in 1863–4, the increase in the different forces in 1873–4 is as follows:—

Borough Police - - - -	1,636 or 25·3 per cent.
County Constabulary - - -	1,871 „ 23·4 „
Metropolitan Police (inclusive of the number employed in Her Majesty's Dockyards, &c.) -	2,560 „ 34·5 „

The costs of the Police and Constabulary for each of the years ending 29th September 1874 and 1873 respectively, as shown in the Returns, under the following headings, with the increase or decrease under each heading in 1873-4, were,—

In the total costs as shown above are included the expenses of the "additional" Constables and of the numbers of the Metropolitan Police employed at Her Majesty's Dockyards and Military Stations, at the Houses of Parliament, at theatres and public institutions, and by private parties. Their costs, however, being repaid to the respective authorities by the different parties for whose benefit the men are employed, do not fall, in the case of the additional Constables, on the counties or boroughs, nor is the proportion paid by Her Majesty's Treasury; nor, in the case of the Metropolitan Police, on the ratepayers of the Metropolis, the whole cost of the numbers employed being paid by the Government or by the different parties.

For special services rendered by the Metropolitan Police in the year ended 31st March 1874, the amount repaid to the Receiver was 133,946*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.* For the year ended 31st March 1875 the amount was 111,956*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*

The sums stated above under superannuations and gratuities are the amounts paid under authority of Acts of Parliament, not out of the Superannuation Funds of the different Forces. The sum of 77,865*l.* for 1873-4 comprises 74,821*l.* contributed from the Metropolitan Police Fund to make good the deficiency of the Superannuation Fund of the Metropolitan Police, the remaining 3,044*l.* being composed of payments made to the County and Borough Forces, as shown in detail in the tables.

In addition to these amounts, the following were paid out of the Superannuation Funds of the different Forces, for each of the years 1873-4 and 1872-3 :—

The Superannuation Funds are formed by deductions from pay, stoppages, and fines.

The Criminal Classes. (Table, pp. 5–8.)

In Table 2 is shown the number of depredators, offenders, and suspected persons at large, so far as known to the Police, as taken in the month of April.

The Returns from which this Table is compiled have been made in the form and under the same headings for 1873-4 as for the preceding year, being restricted to known and suspected offenders, and the rule, which has been followed now for 11 years, that persons known to have been living honestly for one year at least subsequently to their discharge after any conviction should not be returned in the class of known thieves and depredators, being adhered to.

The following are the numbers shown in the Returns for 1873-4 with the numbers for the preceding year, and the numbers under the corresponding headings for 1863-4 : —

As compared with the numbers for the preceding year the numbers for 1873-4 show a decrease under each of the three classes. In the number of known thieves and depredators the decrease amounts to 302, or 1·5 per cent. ; in the number of receivers to 73, or 4·1 per cent. ; in the number of suspected persons to 1,071, or 4·3 per cent. As compared with 1863-4 there is a decrease of 4,860, or 20·8 per cent. in the number of known thieves and depredators ; of 1,479, or 46·4 per cent. in the number of receivers ; and of 6,829, or 22·5 per cent. in the number of suspected persons. In Table 2 is also shown the number of houses of bad character, the resorts of thieves and depredators and suspected persons, in each Police District. Houses of bad character. (Table, pp. 5–8.)

It is to be observed, that as brothels and houses of ill-fame do not appear, as such, to come properly within the scope of the Criminal Returns, unless known to the police as the resorts of thieves and suspected persons of the criminal classes, this heading has been suppressed in the Tables of the Statistics.

Under the Contagious Diseases Act brothels, &c. in that portion of the Metropolitan Police District comprising the Parishes of Woolwich, Plumstead, Charlton, St. Paul's, and St. Nicholas, Deptford, and St. Alphage, Greenwich, and the Hamlet of Hatcham, and in the principal military stations, come within the supervision of the police, for sanitary purposes, and are carefully enumerated in Returns which have been laid before Parliament for some years past. Such houses, known to the police as the resorts of thieves and suspected criminals, are included in the Tables of the Statistics as heretofore, under the head of other houses of known or suspected bad character.

The following are the numbers of houses of bad character under each head, as shown in the Returns for 1873-4, with the numbers for each of the two preceding years, and also for 1863-4 (brothels and houses of ill-fame being omitted) :—

The following are the numbers of the houses of bad character (with the omission before mentioned), as returned respectively by the County Constabulary and by the Borough Police, and for the Metropolitan Police District, with the City of London, for each of the years 1863-4, 1872-3, and 1873-4, with the proportion to population in the respective districts, and the proportion to population of each description of houses, for each year :—

* Increase.

Indictable offences. (Table 3, pp. 9–12.)

The strength and the cost of the Police Force throughout England and Wales, and the numbers of the Criminal Classes at large, and of the houses of bad character to which they resort, being shown in the first and second Tables, as abstracted from the Returns furnished by the Officers of the different Police Forces, the number of indictable offences not summarily disposed of, committed in each Police District, so far as known to the Police, the number of persons apprehended, charged with offences, and the disposal of the persons apprehended, are shown in Table 3.

In accordance with the rule established, all larcenies reported to the Police where the value is above 5*s.* are in the first instance recorded as indictable. When offenders are brought before the magistrates, in any case which is dealt with summarily the record is amended, and the case is omitted from the table of indictable offences. Larcenies reported to the Police under 5*s.* value, when no offender is brought before the magistrates, are not returned to the Home Office.

As compared with the number for 1872-3, it will be seen, there is an increase in the total number of indictable offences reported in 1873-4, with a trifling decrease in the number of persons apprehended.

Offences against the person.

In Class I., Offences against the person, the total number of offences committed in 1873-4, as shown in the Table, was 2,881; the number of persons apprehended during the year for offences of this description was 2,885; of these 580 were discharged on being brought before the magistrates (109, or 18·8 per cent. of the number, for want of prosecution), leaving 2,305 who were held to bail or committed. This number is in the proportion of 80·0 per cent. to the number of offences of this class reported. In the preceding year, under this class of offences, this proportion was 76·2 per cent.; in 1871-2, 80·0 per cent.; in 1870-71, 79·6 per cent.; in 1869-70, 78·7 per cent.; in 1868-9, 79·2 per cent.; in 1867-8, 80·5 per cent.; in 1866-7, 79·1 per cent.; in 1865-6, 78·6 per cent.; in 1864-5, 82·8 per cent.; in 1863-4, 83·3 per cent.; in 1862-3, 83·0 per cent.; in 1861-2, 84·7 per cent.; in 1860-1, 81·1 per cent.; in 1859–60, 77·4 per cent.

This number is in the proportion of 32·1 per cent. to the number of offences of this class reported. Under this class of offences this proportion, in the preceding year, was 33·4 per cent.; in 1871–2, 36·8 per cent.; in 1870–1, 37·7 per cent.; in 1869–70, 36·8 per cent.; in 1868–9, 37·2; in 1867–8, 35·2; in 1866–7, 35·5; in 1865–6, 39·5; in 1864–5, 39·4; in 1863–4, 44·7; in 1862–3, 43·0; in 1861–2, 38·8; and in each of the years 1860–1 and 1859–60, 36·0 per cent.

Under Class IV., Malicious offences against property, the number of offences reported in 1873–4 was 510; the number of persons apprehended was 529 for offences of this description; of these, 239 were discharged by the magistrates (of whom 41, or 17·1 per cent., for want of prosecution), leaving 290 as the number who were held to bail or committed. This number is in the proportion of 56·8 per cent. to the number of offences of this class reported. Under this class of offences this proportion, in the preceding year, was 44·3 per cent.; in 1871–2, 44.4 per cent.; in 1870–71, 45·5 per cent.; in 1869–70, 51·4 per cent.; in 1868–9, 51·6; in 1867–8, 63·8; in 1866–7, 51·6; in 1865–6, 56·9; in 1864–5, 53·3; in 1863–4, 56·0; in 1862–3, 70·0; in 1861–2, 54·3; in 1860–1, 49·4; and in 1859–60, 38·1 per cent.

Malicious offences against property.

Under the three remaining classes of offences, III., V., and VI., the number of offences reported in 1873–4 amounted to 40,257, and the number of persons apprehended to 17,105, of whom 5,466 were discharged (1,231, or 22·5 per cent., for want of prosecution), leaving 11,639 as the number who were held to bail or committed. This number is in the proportion of 28·9 per cent. to the total number of offences of these classes taken together. This proportion, with regard to these three classes of offences, in the preceding year, was 31·3 per cent.; in 1871–2, 31·1 per cent.; in 1870–71, 34·0 per cent.; in 1869–70, 32·2 per cent.; in 1868–9, 30·7; in 1867–8, 30·8; in 1866–7, 32·7; in 1865–6, 34·8; in 1864–5, 35·4; in 1863–4, 35·0; in 1862–3, 36·7; in 1861–2, 37·4; in 1860–1, 33·1; in 1859–60, 29·4.

Other offences.

As already stated, the total number of indictable offences reported in 1873–4 was 47,824. The total number of persons apprehended for these offences was 22,331, and the total number of those discharged by the magistrates 6,756 (1,432, or 21·1 per cent. of the number, for want of prosecution), leaving 15,575 as the number who were held to bail or committed; this number is in the proportion of 32·5 per cent. to the total number of offences. This proportion, with regard to the total number of offences, in the preceding year, was 34·4 per cent.; in 1871–2, 34·6 per cent.; in 1870–71, 37·2 per cent.; in 1869–70, 32·2 per cent.; in 1868–9, 30·7; in 1867–8, 30·8; in 1866–7, 32·7; in 1865–6, 34·8; in 1864–5, 35·4; in 1863–4, 35·0; in 1862–3, 36·7; in 1861–2, 37·4; in 1860–1, 36·1; in 1859–60, 32·1 per cent.

Total offences.

The number of persons committed or bailed for trial for indictable offences during the year ended the 29th September 1874, as shown in the Police Returns, was 15,426; and of this number it may be calculated that about 11,569* (75 per cent., about the usual proportion,) would be convicted. To this number, in order to show the total convictions during the year, may be added 486,786 summary convictions before the magistrates, making together 498,355, being in excess of the number on the same calculation for the preceding year by 26,200, or 5·5 per cent.; of the summary convictions, however, a large proportion is for offences of a trifling character (see Table, p. 25).

* The numbers brought to trial at Assizes and Sessions in the year ending 31st December, as shown under Criminal Proceedings (Report, p. xxvi, Tables, p. 45), it is obvious are not identical with the numbers committed or bailed for trial as shown in the Police Returns for the year ending the 29th September. The number of convictions would therefore not necessarily be the same, although the proportion would probably not vary.

CORONERS' RETURNS.

Coroners' Returns. (pp. 38–42.)

Returns showing the number of inquests held, with the verdicts, for each county, division, or district, liberty, city, and borough, have been furnished, in the same form for 1874 as for preceding years, distinguishing, in the case of children of seven years of age and under, those of legitimate from those of illegitimate birth.

The number of verdicts of murder in the cases of infants of one year old and under is also shown in the Returns for the past year, as for preceding years. The number of these cases in 1874 was 127, against 138 in 1873; 148 in 1872; 131 in 1871; 149 in 1870; and 165 in 1869. Of the 127 cases in 1874, 66, or 52·0 per cent., were in the county of Middlesex, including three in the city of Westminster, against 80, or 57·9 per cent., in 1873; 72, or 48·6 per cent., in 1872; 75, or 57·2 per cent., in 1871; 74, or 49·6 per cent., in 1870; and 81, or 49·0 per cent., in 1869. In 1869, 15 cases, or 9·5 per cent. of the whole number, occurred in the borough of Liverpool, against 20, or 12·3 per cent. of the whole number, in 1868. In 1870 the number of cases was 7, or 4·7 per cent.; in 1871, 6, or 4·5 per cent. of the whole number; in each of the years 1872, 1873, and 1874 there was one case only. In the latter year there were six cases in the city of Manchester; in 1873 there were five cases.

The following were the inquests held in each of the years 1874 and 1873, distinguished under the different verdicts :—

The difference observable between the number of verdicts of murder shown in the Coroners' Returns and the number of murders reported by the Police (151 for the year ending 29th September 1874) arises, as has been explained in previous years, from the occurrence of cases of supposed infanticide, in which verdict of murder is given, while, if the offenders are brought to trial, the result is conviction for concealment of birth. The verdict of the coroner's jury remains recorded, and the case is returned by the coroner as one of murder. But in the Police Reports such cases are classed in accordance with the finding at the trial. Cases also occur under similar circumstances with regard to manslaughter; and these cases together are sufficient to account for the difference referred to. But further, the periods embraced in the Returns are not identical, the Police Returns being for the twelve months ending the 29th September, and the Coroners' Returns for the year proper, to the 31st December.

The following are the numbers of inquests under each verdict for each of the five years preceding 1873, with the average of the five years preceding 1867, and the totals :—

Offences against property without violence.

Embezzlement.

The commitments for embezzlement in 1874 were 294, against 271 in 1863, and 266 in 1872, showing an increase in 1874 of 8·4 and 10·5 per cent., as compared with 1873 and 1872 respectively. As compared with the average for the four years 1869–72, since the passing of the Act by which this offence was made subject to the summary jurisdiction of magistrates, there is a decrease of 15, or 4·8 per cent., in the number for 1874. The number of cases summarily determined for the year ending 29th September 1874 was 777, against 571 in the preceding year.

To the number of sentences to penal servitude in 1874, as stated above, may be added eight cases in which the capital sentence was commuted to penal servitude, in seven cases for life, and in one case for 15 years.

Capital convictions.

In 1874, 25 persons, of whom six were females, were sentenced to death for murder. Against one man judgment of death was recorded for piracy with violence, this, when accompanied by assault with intent to murder, or by stabbing, cutting, or wounding, or by any act endangering life, and high treason being the only crimes, besides murder, subject to the punishment of death.

Of the 25 persons sentenced to death, sixteen, fourteen males and two females, were executed. Of six, four males and two females, the sentences were commuted to penal servitude for life. Of one female the sentence was commuted to penal servitude for fifteen years. The punishment of the man convicted of piracy with violence also was commuted to penal servitude for life. One male and one female were removed to Broadmoor Asylum as insane.

Executions.

The following are the particulars of the 16 cases in which the capital sentence was carried into effect :—

Central Criminal Court.—James Godwin, rug maker, age 27. In a domestic quarrel he beat his wife's head in with a bedpost. He pleaded guilty, but without premeditation.

Central Criminal Court.—Frances Stewart, widow, age 43. After quarrelling with her son-in-law, with whom she lived, she took away a child of 12 months of age in order to vex him, and afterwards threw it into the Thames.

Central Criminal Court.—John Walter Coppen, coffee-house keeper, age 32. In a quarrel with his wife he stabbed her with a knife with which he was cutting up meat.

Central Criminal Court.—Thomas Smith, a soldier, age 41. At target drill at Aldershot he shot the captain of his company in revenge for a punishment which he had awarded him.

Central Criminal Court.—James Canwell, shoemaker, age 52. He struck on the head with a hammer, and with a knife cut the throat of a woman with whom he had formed a connection after the death of his wife, because she had deceived him by saying she was a widow when in reality she was a married woman.

Devonshire.—Thomas McDonald, a marine pensioner, age 35. He murdered his mistress by striking her with a bedpost, and afterwards attempted suicide.

Durham.—Hugh Daley, pitman, age 37. Coming home drunk he found a man in his house in a drunken sleep, and beat him to death with a poker.

Liverpool.—Mary Williams, house-keeper, age 30. She murdered a man by shooting him with a pistol, in revenge, arising from a quarrel with the sister of the deceased.

Liverpool.—Henry Flanagan, shoemaker, age 22. He murdered his aunt, by strangulation, for the sake of robbery, and through drunkenness.

Liverpool.—John McCrave, labourer, age 20; Michael Mullen, carter, age 17. Without quarrel or apparent motive (with Peter Campbell), they kicked a man to death, through mere brutality.

Liverpool.—William Worthington, bargeman, age 33. He kicked kis wife to death.

Monmouth.—James Henry Gibbs, butler, age 22. Murdered his wife, by cutting her throat, in order to marry again.

Northampton.—Thomas Chamberlain, shoemaker and toll-keeper, age 40. He attacked and killed with a cutlass an old man of 70 in his own house, without provocation, the only apparent motive being notoriety. He also wounded a servant who came in his way.

Stafford.—Robert Taylor, mine sinker, age 21. He cut the throat of a woman from whom he had begged as she passed him on the road. There was no assignable motive.

York.—William Jackson, labourer (he had been a soldier), age 29. With a razor, without motive, he cut the throat of his sister, to whom he appeared to have been greatly attached. He confessed his crime a few hours before his execution.

Sentences commuted. Penal servitude for life.

The particulars of the cases in which the capital sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life were as follows:—

Lancaster.—John Caton, weaver, age 22. He killed an old woman, by kicking her in the ribs with heavy clogs, after a quarrel about a dog. After the violence, the woman lived from the 23rd of February to the 3rd of March, and was of a very delicate constitution. The prisoner was first indicted for manslaughter.

Liverpool.—Peter Campbell, porter, age 19. He was convicted along with John McCrave and Michael Mullen (who were executed) of kicking a man to death. He was recommended to mercy.

Southampton.—Elizabeth Ellen Trevett, servant, age 20. She murdered her illegitimate child of four months by striking it on the head. Poison also was found in the stomach. She was recommended to mercy by the jury, and the judge concurred.

Surrey.—George Poplett, labourer, age 44. He murdered his wife, by stabbing her, through jealousy, on the ground of infidelity.

Warwick.—Frederick Smith, painter, age 25. Without provocation, in a brawl on boxing-night in the street, in Birmingham, he stabbed and kicked a man to death. The deceased received seven stabs, and deposed to their infliction by more than one person. Commutation of sentence was recommended by the judge, as it was doubtful whether the fatal stab was given by the prisoner.

Wilts.—Maria Burfitt, servant, age 21. She was convicted of the murder of her illegitimate child of three months of age. The body was found in a privy with the skull fractured. She was recommended to mercy.

Worcester.—Sarah Liddell, a married woman deserted by her husband, age 38. She cut the throat of her illegitimate child of two years of age, in a fit of desperation at being rejected by a man to whom she had engaged herself to be married.

Central Criminal Court.—John Johnson, sailor, age 21. Mutinous conduct on board the ship "Satsuma." He was found guilty of piracy with violence. In this case sentence of death had been recorded.

Broadmoor Lunatic Asylum.

The two following convicts were removed to Broadmoor Asylum as insane:—

Central Criminal Court.—William Parker, butcher, age 40. He cut the throats of two of his children, aged respectively two and four years. He then washed their bodies and put them to bed. He was certified insane.

Somerset.—Jane Grant, charwoman, age 26. She was convicted of the murder of her illegitimate child by starvation. Her object was to free herself of the burthen of the cost of the child's maintenance. She was certified as insane.

CROWN CASES RESERVED.

Crown cases reserved. (Table, p. 57.)

The Crown cases reserved for the consideration of the Court of Criminal Appeal during the year 1874 are shown in a Return prepared in the usual form by the Clerk of the Court, stating the names of the persons charged, the courts which certified the cases for re-consideration, the offences charged, and the judgment of the Court in each case.

CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS.

Nine cases only were submitted for the decision of the Court in 1874, against 24 in 1873; 21 in 1872; 27 in 1871; 32 in 1870; 24 in 1869; and 25 in 1868.

The following abstract shows the offences for which the trials took place, the courts in which the cases were tried, and the judgment of the Court of Appeal in each case in 1874:—

Costs of Criminal Prosecutions. (Table, pp. 57–59.)

The usual Return is given of the sums paid by Her Majesty's Treasury on account of criminal prosecutions at assizes and quarter sessions, and at the Central Criminal Court, and for proceedings under the Criminal Justice Act and the Juvenile Offenders Act, showing in detail the costs for each county and borough, at assizes and at sessions, and with respect to the Metropolitan Counties, at the Central Criminal Court, and under the two Acts above named. The number of prosecutions for each jurisdiction is also shown. This Return is for the year 1873, being, as in former years, one year in arrear of the other matters under the head of Criminal Proceedings.

The following are the totals under each head in the Return, and the average cost per case at each of the courts, and under each of the two Acts:—

	No. of Cases.	Costs.			Average of each Case.

As compared with the numbers and amounts for 1872, the foregoing figures show an increase of 58 in the number of cases tried on indictment, and of 2,989*l.* 17*s.* 5*d.*, or 2·7 per cent., in the costs of these cases. There is a decrease of 24 in the number of summary proceedings, and of 180*l.* 7*s.* 10*d.* in the amount of costs of these proceedings. In the average cost of each case tried on indictment there is an increase of 1*l.* 9*s.* 10*d.* Under summary proceedings there is an increase of 10*d.* in the average costs.

Criminal Proceedings.

Government Prosecutions.

The total number of Mint cases prosecuted and concluded in the year 1874, as shown in a Return furnished by the Solicitor to the Treasury, was 48, and the total costs paid by the department in these cases amounted to 62,029*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* The number of criminal cases, other than Mint cases, prosecuted by the Solicitor of the Treasury, and brought to a conclusion within the year 1874, was 182, and the costs incurred in respect of the same amounted to 1,544*l.* 16*s.* 3*d.*

In the preceding year the number of Mint cases was 168, and the costs were 1,567*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*; the number of other prosecutions was 32, the costs of which amounted to 1,754*l.* 14*s.* 9*d.*

The number of cases other than Mint cases represents those cases only which have been prosecuted upon indictment.

PRISONS.

Prisons, &c. (Tables, pp. 63–89.)

Under the head of Prisons the usual information is given.

The returns for the local prisons, for the reformatories, and for the industrial schools, and those with regard to criminal lunatics, are for the year ended the 29th September 1874; those for the convict prisons are for the year ended 31st March 1875; all in continuation of the returns for the preceding twelve months, respectively.

Commitments. (Table, p. 63.)

The list comprises 116 prisons, of which 81 are county and liberty prisons, including two for the Isle of Ely, and three, one each, for the liberties of St. Alban, Peterborough, and Ripon; and 35 city, town, and borough prisons, inclusive of Newgate (for the City of London and County of Middlesex).

The commitments of each description to these prisons during the year 1873-4 were as follows, the males and females being distinguished, with the proportions per cent. of the numbers under each class of commitments to the totals, for each of the years 1873-4 and 1872-3 :—

Commitments.	Males.	Females.	Total.	Proportion per Cent. 1873-4.			Proportion per Cent. 1872-3.

As compared with the number for 1872-3 the total commitments for 1873-4 show an increase of 1,446, or 0·8 per cent.; an increase of 1,922, or 1·6 per cent., in the number of males, with a decrease of 476, or 1·0 per cent., in the number of females. In the total number for 1872-3 there was an increase of 7,001, or 4.4 per cent., as compared with the number for 1871-2; an increase of 3,804, or 2·1 per cent., in the number of males, and of 3,197, or 7·1 per cent., in the number of females. In the number for trial there is a decrease of 124, or 1·0 per cent., as compared with the number for 1872-3. In the number convicted at assizes and sessions

Prisons.

(not previously in custody) there is an increase of 211, or 15·2 per cent. In the number committed on summary conviction there is an increase of 2,287, or 1·0 per cent. In the number committed for want of sureties there is an increase of 488, or 5·8 per cent. The commitments for debt and on civil process show a decrease of 1,529, or 22·8 per cent. For military and naval offences there is an increase of 608, or 20·0 per cent.

Excess of commitments under summary process above the number sentenced to imprisonment on summary conviction.

The number of offenders sentenced to imprisonment on summary conviction by the magistrates for the year ending 29th September 1874, as shown in the police returns, is 89,998, exclusive of those sent to reformatories and industrial schools. The excess in the number of commitments of those convicted summarily, as stated in the prison returns, is therefore 38,726, and arises, as has been explained in former years, from the police returns showing the numbers sentenced to imprisonment, while those who, being sentenced to the payment of a fine, are, in default of payment, committed to prison, are included in the prison returns along with those sentenced to imprisonment, under the heading "convicted summarily."

Commitments for two last periods of five years.

The following are the commitments as shown in the tables for each of the last five years, with the totals for those years, and for the preceding period of five years, with the average for each period of five years :—

Previous Commitments. (Table, pp. 63–65.)

In the total number of recommitted prisoners for 1873-4, there is an increase of 1,883, or 3·0 per cent., as compared with the number for the previous year. In the number for 1872-3 there was an increase of 3,810, or 6·6 per cent., as compared with the number for 1871-2. In the numbers for 1871-2 and 1870-1 there was a decrease of 420, or 0·7 per cent., and 1,814, or 3·0 per cent., as compared with the number for the two preceding years respectively. The numbers for 1869-70, 1868-9, 1867-8, and 1866-7, showed an increase, respectively, of 2,440, or 4·1 per cent.; 5,750, or 11·1 per cent.; 5,093, or 10·9 per cent.; and 2,034, or 4·6 per cent., as compared with the numbers for each preceding year. The increase in the number of recommitted males in 1873-4, as compared with the number for the previous year, amounts to 1,844, or 4·8 per cent.; the increase in the number of recommitted females to 39, or 0·1 per cent. The proportion of the recommitted to the total number committed (exclusive of debtors, and naval and military offenders,) is 40·0 per cent., against 39·4 per cent. in 1872-3; 36·3 per cent. in 1871-2; 38·8 per cent. in 1870-1; 37·9 per cent. in 1869-70; 36·4 per cent. in 1868-9; 38·8 per cent. in 1867-8; 38·5 per cent. in 1866-7; and 39·0 per cent. in 1865-6.

The recommitted males were 35·7 per cent. of the total number of males committed (exclusive of debtors, and naval and military offenders); the recommitted females 49·9 per cent. of the total number of females committed (exclusive of debtors). In the preceding year the proportions were 35·1 per cent. with respect to the males, and 49·5 per cent. with respect to the females.

The following are the classified numbers of the previous commitments for 1873-4, with the proportion per cent. of each number to the total recommitted, for each sex respectively, and also for the total numbers for each of the years 1873-4 and 1872-3.

The higher proportionate number of females frequently recommitted is, as usual, remarkable.

MIDDLESEX INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

The Industrial School at Feltham was provided under a Local Statute (17th & 18th Vict. c. clxix.) for male offenders convicted of offences committed within the county of Middlesex, the commitments being limited to the cases of offenders, whether convicted summarily or after trial, who are above seven and under 14 years of age, and who may be sent to the school for not less than one year or more than three years, without the previous committal to prison which is required in the case of offenders sent to reformatory schools. The expenses of the school are defrayed out of the county rate, justices being empowered to order payment not exceeding three shillings per head per week to be made by parents or guardians of children sent to the school, where of sufficient ability.

In February 1868 the school was certified by the Secretary of State under the 29th and 30th Vict. c. 118; and the boys under detention in the school under this Act will be found accounted for in a separate return under the head of industrial schools.

The commitments under the Local Act (17th and 18th Vict. c. clxix.), during the year ended the 29th September 1874, amounted to 52, against 69 under this Act in the preceding year, making, with 230 commitments under the 29th and 30th Vict. c. 118, a total of 282 commitments in 1873-4, against 211 in the preceding year, 254 in 1871-2, 275 in 1870-71, 276 in 1869-70, 272 in 1868-9, 265 in 1867-8, 264 in 1866-7, 208 in 1865-6, and an average of 197 for each of the five years 1860-1 to 1864-5.

Of the 52 commitments in 1873-4 under the 17th and 18th Vict., 13, or 25·0 per cent., were after trial on indictment; 39, or 75·0 per cent., on summary conviction. In the preceding year, of the 69 commitments under the 17th and 18th Vict., 31, or 44·9 per cent., were after trial; 38, or 55·1 per cent., on summary conviction. In 1873-4, 48, or 92·3 per cent., of the commitments were for larcenies and attempts to steal. In the preceding year 89·9 per cent. were for these offences. There was no committal for vagrancy in 1873-4 or in either of the two preceding years. In 1870-1 there were 3, against 1 in 1869-70, 7 in 1868-9, 1 in 1867-8, and 99, or 37·5 per cent. of the total commitments, in 1866-7.

The strength of the Police Force of Birkenhead has been reduced in numbers, as stated by the Head Constable, by excluding therefrom "the Dock Police, consisting of 25 men of all grades, because they are paid by the Mersey Dock and Harbour Board, and are not inspected by Her Majesty's Inspector of Constabulary, nor is any allowance received for them from Government."

† The same person acts as Chief Constable for the Counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland.

CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS — ENGLAND AND WALES.

NUMBER of PERSONS committed for Trial or Bailed for Appearance at the Assizes and Sessions for the Year 1874, the Offences with which they were charged, and the Result of the Proceedings, showing the Acquitted and Discharged, and the Sentences of those convicted; made out by Order of Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department from the Criminal Registers kept in his Office.

ALSO,

THE NUMBER of Crown Cases Reserved for the Consideration of the Court of Criminal Appeal in the Year 1874, showing the Court and Session before which they stood for Trial, the Offences charged, and Judgment of the Court in each Case.

ALSO,

AN ACCOUNT for the Year ended 31st December 1873 of the Sums paid by Her Majesty's Treasury for Criminal Prosecutions at the Assizes and Sessions, and for Proceedings under the Criminal Justice Act and Juvenile Offenders Acts, with the Number of Prosecutions and Amount of Costs under each head.

Note.—The Courts at which persons committed or bailed for Trial by Jury, are tried, are,—

1st. The County Courts of Quarter Sessions, composed of the unpaid County Justices, presided over by a Chairman chosen from their own body, except in Middlesex, where a paid Assistant Judge is appointed by the Crown, and where the Sessions with Adjournments are held 24 times in the year.

2d. The Borough Courts of Quarter Sessions, of which the Recorders, salaried officers appointed by the Crown, are the sole Judges. In one hundred and four Cities, Boroughs, and Towns (including certain ancient jurisdictions not under the Municipal Act,) separate Courts of Quarter Sessions are or may be held.

3d. The Circuit Courts of Assize held in every County (excepting Middlesex) twice in each year, in the Spring and Summer, with an additional special Assize in the Winter, in such Counties as it may be considered necessary on account of the number of prisoners then for Trial. In these Courts the Trials take place before a Judge of the Superior Courts of Common Law, the Queen's Counsel and Serjeants-at-Law being included in the Commission, and one of their number occasionally trying prisoners, to assist the Judge.

4th. The Central Criminal Court held in the City of London twelve times in the year, with a jurisdiction extending over the whole of the County of Middlesex, including the City of London, and parts of the Counties of Essex, Kent, and Surrey. This Court is composed of such of the Judges of the Superior Courts as are associated with the Lord Mayor, Recorder, Common Serjeant, and Aldermen, the Judge of the City Court, &c., in a Commission from the Crown.

The Courts of Assize and the Central Criminal Court have Commissions of General Gaol Delivery, and try all Treasons, Felonies, and Misdemeanors. The County and Borough Courts of Quarter Sessions are restrained by Law from trying for Treason, Murder, and sundry other offences.

The Court of Criminal Appeal Constituted by the Act of the 11th and 12th Vict. c. 78. is composed of five Judges of the Superior Courts of Common Law, of whom one of the Chief Judges is required to be one. Questions of Law arising on the Convictions in the Criminal Courts are reserved for this Court, which is empowered to hear all such questions, and to revise, affirm, or amend the Judgments.

The Jury for the Trial of Prisoners is composed of twelve persons.

In each County the Jurors are summoned by the Sheriff from Lists deposited with him by the Clerk of the Peace.

By the Act of 6th Geo. 4. c. 50., amended by the 25th & 26th Vict. c. 107., the Churchwardens and Overseers of every Parish and Township are required to make out Lists of all persons in their respective Parishes or Townships duly qualified according to the first-mentioned Act.

These Lists, after approval by the Justices in Petty Sessions, are transcribed by the Clerk of the Peace into a book called "the Jurors' Book," for the year in which it is to be in use. This book is by the Clerk of the Peace transferred to the Sheriff before the 1st January in each year, and forms the List of Jurors of the County for the year.

PART II.

INTRODUCTORY AND EXPLANATORY REPORT.

For all the Courts of Civil Jurisdiction Returns for the year 1874 have been received, and are given under the usual arrangement in the Tables.

COMMON LAW COURTS.

The Return made by the Queen's Coroner and Attorney and the Master of the Crown Office shows certain of the proceedings under the peculiar jurisdiction of the Court of Queen's Bench on the Crown side. (Tables pp. 1–12.) Court of Queen's Bench, Crown-side.

It is explained by these officers, for 1874 as for previous years, that the nature of the offences tried is, conspiracies, perjuries, assaults, nuisances, and other misdemeanours, and occasionally, but rarely, felonies; but that no record is kept in the Crown Office of the number of cases tried, as the trials take place in London and Middlesex, and at the Assizes for the other counties; nor of the number of persons tried; nor of the number acquitted or convicted, except in cases in which judgment is entered up in the Queen's Bench, and except in cases of fines; nor of sentences, except where they are passed by the Court in Banc. (Table, p. 1.)

In 1874 there were eight persons convicted, and two acquitted, against eleven convicted in the previous year, in which cases judgment was entered up in the Queen's Bench. In 1873, one person was fined 500*l.*, and on the same day the same person was sentenced to three months' imprisonment as a 1st class misdemeanant, for contempt; one person was fined 150*l.*, and two persons were fined 100*l.* each, for contempt; one person was fined 50*l.*, one 10*l.*, and four persons were fined 1*s.* each, for misdemeanour; the inhabitants of Leamington were fined 6*s.* 8*d.* for non-repair of a road.

In 1874, Thomas Castro, otherwise Orton, otherwise Tichborne, was sentenced to 14 years' penal servitude for perjury. Henry Jacobs was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for contempt. Four other persons were fined, one 250*l.*, for contempt, and to be imprisoned until such fine should be paid; one, one farthing; and one, one shilling for misdemeanour; and one, 200*l.*, for libel.

The total number of proceedings in 1874 appears to be as given in the following abstract, the corresponding numbers for 1873 being also shown for comparison, and the numbers for 1864. The different proceedings on each matter for 1874 are shown in the table.

Costs taxed.

It is not possible, it is stated, to give a correct account of the amount of costs taxed in the Crown Office, inasmuch as the bills of costs are not only often withdrawn from taxation when partly taxed, but when completed are sometimes taken away by the attorneys and not returned to the office.

Fees.

The total amount of fees received for business done in the Crown Office, exclusive of business for the public departments for which no fees are received, was 550*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*, being less than the amount for 1873 by 98*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.* This amount includes all the fees received at the office, not only in respect of the different items specified in the Return, but also for other duties, as writs of subpœnâ ad testificandum, copies of proceedings, &c. It is stated by Her Majesty's Coroner and Attorney, and the Master of the Crown Office, that this amount of fees gives no idea of the business of the office, as the fees were reduced to mere nominal charges by the 6th and 7th Vict. c. 20., and further reduced by subsequent Acts. There are many Court fees which are paid by parties proceeding in the Crown Office, which are not received by or for the office, but by other officers of the Court, of which Her Majesty's Coroner and the Master have no account.

Plea side. (Tables, pp. 2, 5, and 8.)

The process, practice, and mode of pleading in the three Superior Courts of Common Law at Westminster being similar on the Plea side, the proceedings of each Court, as given in the Returns for 1874, furnished by the Masters, are shown in the following summary. The totals for the three Courts of the matters under each heading are given for 1873, and also the totals for 1864.

The proceedings under the columns in the table headed "process issued" are the preliminary and incidental matters in suits transacted in the different offices connected with the Courts, and not coming before the Judges. The "matters heard" come before the Judges sitting in Banc. In the Court of Queen's Bench a certain number of these matters (which are distinguished in the Table p. 2.) are heard by a single Judge.

In the number of Writs of Summons issued up to 1872, there had been a continued decrease for some years. As compared with the number for 1872, the number for 1873 showed an increase of 3,105, or 4·8 per cent.; there having been a decrease of 1,371, or 2·0 per cent., in 1872, as compared with the preceding year, and of 7,363, or 10·1 per cent., in 1871 as compared with 1870, the number for 1870 having been less by 9,118, or 11·1 per cent., than the number for 1869. As compared with 1873, the number for 1874 shows an increase of 1,919, or 2·8 per cent. As compared with 1864, the decrease in 1874 amounts to 44,208, or 39·0 per cent.; as compared with the number for 1866, the highest recorded, the decrease in 1874 amounts to 64,210, or 48·2 per cent. It is, however, to be observed with regard to the Court of Exchequer, that the numbers of Writs of Summons given in the Returns for previous years have included renewals. In the numbers for the Courts of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas renewals have never been included, and for the Court of Exchequer they have been omitted for 1872, 1873, and 1874. The number is not great, but must affect the comparison between the years to some extent.

Since the passing of the Debtors Act of 1869, which came into operation on the 1st January 1870, no Writs of Capias have been issued.

In the total number of proceedings in 1874, under "Process issued," there is an increase, as compared with 1873, of 2,534, or about 1·9 per cent., following an increase of 2,204, or 5·3 per cent., in 1873 as compared with 1872, there having been a large decrease in the numbers for each of the three preceding years. As compared with 1864, the decrease in 1874 amounts to 74,358, or 35·4 per cent. Under "Matters heard," as compared with 1873, there is an increase of 40, or 2·8 per cent.; as compared with 1864 there is a decrease of 29, or 1·9 per cent.

The number of bills of costs taxed in the Court of Exchequer in 1874, exclusive of bills taxed under the statute, was 3,941, against 3,865 in 1873. No return is given under this head for the Court of Queen's Bench, or for the Court of Common Pleas.

From a Return furnished by the Master of the Court of Common Pleas it appears that the proceedings under the Parliamentary Elections Act, 1868, in the year 1874 were as follows:—

„ declared void		17
„ „ valid		8
„ withdrawn by Judge's order		10
„ filed, but no security given		2
			37
Total costs	£29,649 15 0
Taxed off	15,340 10 0
Allowed	£14,309 5 0

It is stated in the Return that the amount given above as "allowed" is minus the $2\frac{1}{2}$ per-centage on the total costs for taxing.

Election petitions.

No proceedings took place under this Act in either of the years 1872 or 1871. In the two preceding years the proceedings were as follows:—

Issue of the proceedings.

The number of writs of summons issued in 1874 being, as already shown, 68,950, and the number of appearances entered 24,398, it would appear that in 44,552, or 64·6 per cent., of the writs of summons issued, no step was taken towards a defence, the suits having no doubt been settled by the parties themselves, or not having been pursued, and not appearing on the record. In the preceding year the proportion of the cases in which writs of summons were issued and no appearances entered was 65·1 per cent. Of the cases in which appearances were entered in 1874, 3,837, or 15·7 per cent., against 16·7 per cent. in 1873, were entered for trial, of which 2,028, or 52·8 per cent., against 56·0 per cent. in 1873, were brought to trial, 188, or 9·2 per cent., of those brought to trial, against 10·8 per cent. in 1873, having at the last been undefended. For the decision of a jury there remained, therefore, 2·6 per cent. only, against 2·9 per cent. in 1873, of the cases in which writs of summons were issued.

Under the various forms of procedure judgments were obtained in 1874, as has been already shown, in 25,005 cases, or in 36·3 per cent. of the number of suits commenced. In the preceding year this proportion was 36·9 per cent.

For the enforcement of the judgments in 1874, 15,168 writs of execution were issued, of which 14,638, or 96·50 per cent., were to levy on the goods; 10, or 0·07 per cent., were against the person; 432, or 2·85 per cent., for possession after recovery in ejectment; and 88, or 0·58 per cent., to take in execution. In the preceding year the proportions were 96·55 per cent. to levy on the goods; 0·04 per cent. against the person; 2·78 per cent. for possession after recovery in ejectment; and 0·63 per cent. to take in execution. In 1869 the proportions were 62·38 per cent. to levy on the goods; 34·72 per cent. against the person; 2·11 per cent. for possession after recovery in ejectment; 0·44 per cent. to take in execution; and 0·35 per cent. under exegi facias and capias ut legatum. In 1864 the proportions were 69·13 per cent. to levy on the goods; 28·34 per cent. against the person; 1·63 per cent. for possession after recovery in ejectment; 0·67 per cent. to take in execution; and 0·23 per cent. under exegi facias and capias ut legatum.

The total number of writs issued in 1874 was in the proportion of 60·6 per cent. to the total number of judgments entered up. In the preceding year the proportion was 62·5 per cent.; in 1864, 69·9 per cent. In many instances, however, it is to be observed, more than one writ of execution is issued in the same case.

COUNTY COURTS.

COUNTY COURTS. (Tables, pp. 13–16.)

The proceedings in the County Courts in the year 1874 for the recovery of debt, the proceedings under the Charitable Trusts Act of the 16th and 17th Vict. c. 137, the proceedings under the Act of 20th and 21st Vict. c. 85, for the protection of wives deserted by their husbands, and the proceedings against absconding debtors, are shown in the Tables; also, the number of Courts having bankruptcy jurisdiction, the number of debtors summonses issued, the number of declarations of inability filed by debtors, and the number of petitions for adjudication filed, under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, in each County Court Circuit. The number of County Courts having jurisdiction in bankruptcy is 130. Circuits Nos. 39, 40, 41, 42, 44, and 46, which are comprised in the district of the London Bankruptcy Court, have no jurisdiction in bankruptcy. The Judges of the London Court only have jurisdiction in Bankruptcy in the City of London. The Court of Passage at Liverpool has concurrent jurisdiction in Bankruptcy with the County Court held there.

Returns of the proceedings of the County Courts under the Jurisdiction in Equity, conferred by the Act of 28th and 29th Vict. c. 99, have been furnished by the Treasurers, as obtained by them from the Registrars, for the year 1874, and will be found abstracted in the Tables, in continuation of the Abstract for the preceding year.

Pursuant to an Act passed in the session of 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 71.), Her Majesty, on the representation of the Lord Chancellor, may, by Order in Council, confer Admiralty jurisdiction to a certain extent, and under certain restrictions declared in the Act, on any County Court. Under this Act, 34 County Courts and the City of London Court have been appointed to have Admiralty jurisdiction, and the proceedings for the year ending 31st December 1874 are shown in the Table.

The cases in which probates or administrations of wills were granted under decrees of County Courts are shown in the Returns furnished by the District Registrars of the Court of Probate.

Formerly there were 59 County Court Circuits, but Nos. 10, 34, and 56 having been absorbed in the Circuits adjoining to them respectively, 56 Circuits only now remain. The number of places at which Courts are held is now 499. The number in each Circuit is shown in the Table; the number of days of sitting on each Circuit in 1874 is also shown.

For Circuit No 6, in which Liverpool is comprised, there are two Judges. For each of the other Circuits there is one Judge only.

In the number of plaints entered in 1874 there is a decrease of 223, as compared with the number in 1873. The number for the latter year showed a decrease of 35,512, or 3·9 per cent., as compared with the number in 1872. As compared with the number in 1864 there is an increase, in 1874, of 126,678, or 17·1 per cent.

The cases from the Superior Courts show an increase of 12 as compared with the number for 1873, and of 536 as compared with the number for 1864.

From a Parliamentary paper issued in 1873, (No. 123, Sess. 1873,) it appears that from the establishment of these courts in 1847 to the 31st December 1872, the total number of plaints entered was 18,200,811, for an aggregate amount of 48,794,746*l.* The amount for which judgment was obtained during the same period is 24,732,095*l.*

Adding to these the numbers for 1873 and 1874 the totals up to 31st December 1874 will be as follows: number of plaints entered, 19,931,114; aggregate amount for which entered, 54,084,378*l.*; amount for which judgment obtained, 27,286,692*l.*

The number of days of sitting for the whole of the Circuits was 8,028 in 1874, against 8,014 in 1873; 7,973 in 1872; 8,041 in 1871; 8,085 in 1870; 7,909 in 1869; 7,987 in 1868; and 7,893 in 1867. The number for 1874 gives 61·7 causes for each day of sitting, calculating on the total number of causes determined. This average was 61·1 for 1873; 64·2 for 1872; 64·9 for 1871; for 1870, 64·7; for 1869, 68·5; for 1868, 71·7; for 1867, 68·7; for 1866, 62·1; for 1865, 57·1. The greatest number of days of sitting on any Circuit in 1874 was 338, on Circuit No. 6, for which there are two judges; the greatest number for a single judge was 172, on Circuit No. 27; the lowest was 101, on Circuit No. 5; against 298 on Circuit No. 6; 174 on Circuit No. 12; and 104 on Circuit No. 5 respectively, the highest and lowest numbers in 1873. The highest average number of causes determined on each day of sitting was 143, on Circuit No. 13; the lowest 24, on Circuit No. 28. In the preceding year the highest average was 132, on Circuit No. 13; the lowest 25 each, on Circuits Nos. 28 and 32. In 1872 the highest average was 142, on Circuit No. 13; the lowest 25, on Circuit No. 32.

The causes determined in Court were in the proportion of 57·3 per cent. to the total number of plaints entered, leaving 42·7 per cent. as the proportion settled out of Court. In 1873 these proportions were 56·6 and 43·4; in 1872, 56·8 and 43·2; in 1871, 56·7 and 43·3; in 1870, 57·3 and 42·7; in 1869, 58·6 and 41·4; in 1868, 58·5 and 41·5; in 1867, 57·5 and 42·5; in 1866, 55·9 and 44·1; in 1865, 55·4 and 44·6; in 1864, 56·4 and 43·6, respectively.

Of the judgments given in 1874, 96·5 per cent. were for the Plaintiff, 1·6 per cent. were nonsuits, and 1·9 per cent. were for the Defendant. In 1873 the proportions were the same. In 1872 the proportions were 96·7, 1·6, and 1·7; in 1871 the same. In 1870, 96·6 per cent. were for the Plaintiff, 1·6 per cent. were nonsuits, and 1·8 per cent. were for the Defendant; in 1869 the same. In 1868, 96·9, 1·5, and 1·6; in 1867, 96·6, 1·7, and 1·7; in 1866 and 1865, 96·2, 1·9, and 1·9; in 1864, 95·9, 2·1, and 2·0.

The number of debtors imprisoned gives one for 206·2 of the number of plaints entered, with the cases from the Superior Courts included. In 1873 the proportion was one for 166·5; in 1872, one for 130·6; in 1871, one for 115·3; in 1870, one for 138·3; in 1869, one for 95·8; in 1868, one for 101; in 1867, one for 112; in 1866, one for 115; in 1865, one for 123; in 1864, one for 113.

The amount for which plaints were entered in 1874 exceeds the amount for 1873 by 80,218*l.* The amount for 1873 exceeded the amount for 1872 by 13,890, the amount for 1872 having been less by 71,340*l.* than the amount for 1871. The amount in 1871 showed an increase of 17,370*l.* over the amount for the preceding year, following an increase of 22,197*l.* in 1870 over the amount in 1869, of 45,432*l.* in 1869 over the amount in 1868, and an average increase of 144,817*l.* in each of the three years preceding 1868. The average for each plaint entered in 1874 is 3*l.* 0*s.* 1*d.*; in 1873 it was the same; against 2*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* in 1872; 2*l.* 17*s.* 10*d.* in 1871; 2*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.* in 1870; 2*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.* in 1869; 2*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.* in 1868; 2*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.* in 1867; 2*l.* 7*s.* in 1866; and 2*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.* in 1865.

The amount of debt for which judgment was obtained in 1874 on original hearings is 48·1 per cent. of the total amount for which plaints were entered. In 1873 this proportion was 48·4 per cent.; in 1872, 45·6 per cent.; in 1871, 49·7 per cent.; in

The amount of costs in 1874 exceeds the amount for 1873 by 526*l.* The amount for 1873 showed an increase of 2,015*l.*, or 3·2 per cent., as compared with the amount for 1872. In the amount for 1872 there was an increase of 690*l.*, as compared with the amount for 1871. The amount for 1871 was less than the amount for 1870 by 649*l.* The amount for 1870 showed an increase of 2,045*l.* on the amount for 1869, following an increase of 1,655*l.* in 1869 on the amount for 1868, and an average increase of 6,967*l.* for each of the three years preceding 1868. The costs are 5·0 per cent. of the amount of debt for which judgments were obtained on original hearings. It is supposed that the majority of the cases given as pending in the Great Yarmouth, Hartlepool, Hull, Lowestoft, and Liverpool Courts and in the City of London Court have been settled out of Court. It is stated also that in many instances the attorneys agreed upon the costs and settled the cases out of Court, and that consequently they are not included in the Return.

CITY OF LONDON COURT.

Under the Act of 30th and 31st Vict. c. 142, which came into operation on the 1st January 1868, the Sheriffs' Court of London was assimilated with the County Courts under the title of the City of London Court. CITY OF LONDON COURT. (pp. 13–16.)

The total number of suits in which judgment was signed was 10 in 1874, against 20 in 1873; the total amount recovered was 404*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.*, against 915*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*; the amount of fees received was 139*l.* 4*s.* 10*d.* in 1874; the expenditure for salaries and other disbursements was 475*l.* 14*s.* 11*d.* It is remarked that when the commutation took place the fees left a surplus, but subsequent legislation, by abolishing some fees and reducing others, has caused a deficiency. Although a less amount is now received for fees, official daily attendance is required during the whole year, and as to the Assizes, the duty remains the same.

The names of twenty-four Local Courts still existing which have jurisdiction for the recovery of debts are given in the Table. THE LORD MAYOR'S COURT, LONDON.

The proceedings of the Lord Mayor's Court, London, in the year 1874, are shown in the usual form in the Return furnished by the Registrar of the Court, under the heads of proceedings of the Court in actions, proceedings in Foreign Attachments, and proceedings on the Equity side of the Court. LORD MAYOR'S COURT.

The number of actions entered in 1874 was 12,755, being less than the number for the previous year by 2,612, or 16·9 per cent. In 1873 there was a decrease of 444, or 2·8 per cent., as compared with the number for 1872. The number for 1872 exceeded the number for 1871 by 347, or 2·2 per cent. For the five preceding years the numbers showed successively an increase of 520, or 3·4 per cent.; 1,982, or 15·2 per cent.; 2,882, or 28·5 per cent.; 3,996, or 65·6; and 297, or upwards of 5·0 per cent. There were, further, in 1874 22 ejectments, against 21 in 1873; 25 in 1872; 14 in 1871; 11 in 1870; 16 in 1869; 17 in 1868; 7 in 1867; and 19 in 1866. There were 6 apprentice petitions in 1874, against 5 in each of the three preceding years; 1 in 1870; 5 in 1869; 7 in 1868; 10 in 1867; and 8 in 1866. In 1864 the number of actions entered was 4,723, or little more than one third of the number in 1874.

With regard to the falling off in the number of actions entered in the Lord Mayor's Court in 1874, as compared with 1873, the Registrar observes that this does not arise from any diminished desire on the part of suitors to avail themselves of the process of the Court, such desire rather increasing, but is owing to the decision of the Court of Common Pleas that the entire cause of action must arise within the City of London, and that this is a question which the Corporation of London are endeavouring to have further and maturely considered.

The total amount for which actions were entered in 1874 was 802,275*l.*, against 345,801*l.*, the amount for the previous year. The amount for 1873 exceeded that for 1872 by 4,938*l.*, or 1·4 per cent., and the amount for 1872 exceeded that for 1871 by 29,514*l.*, or 9·4 per cent.; the amount for 1871 having been less by 5,711*l.*, or 1·8 per cent., than the amount for 1870. The amounts for 1870 and the three previous years showed an increase, respectively, of 47,577*l.*, or 17·6 per cent.; 40,871*l.*, or 17·8 per cent.; 89,177*l.*, or 63·9 per cent.; and 4,558*l.*, or 3·3 per cent.; the amount for 1866 having been 134,877*l.* In 1864 the amount was 123,569*l.*, or 15·4 per cent. only of the amount for 1874.

Of the number of actions entered in 1874, 46, or 0·4 per cent., for 176*l.*, or 0·02 per cent. of the total amount, were for under 5*l.*; 3,307, or 25·9 per cent. of the total number, for 25,346*l.*, or 3·16 per cent. of the total amount, were for 5*l.* and under 10*l.*; 6,425, or 50·4 per cent. of the total number, for 91,009*l.*, or 11·35 per cent. of the total amount, for 10*l.* and under 20*l.*; 2,258, or 17·7 per cent. of the total number, for 59,395*l.*, or 7·40 per cent. of the total amount, for 20*l.* and under 50*l.*; and 719, or 5·6 per cent. of the total number, for 626,349*l.*, or 78·07 per cent. of the total amount, for 50*l.* and above.

For the preceding year the proportions were as follows:—

	Of the total number.	Of the total amount.
Under £5	0·4 per cent.	0·04 per cent.
£5 and under £10	26·3 „	8·97 „
£10 and under £20	50·4 „	32·11 „
£50 and above	5·2 „	37·55 „

The proceedings of the Court in actions are further shown in the Table under the headings of, orders to stay proceedings; judgments for Plaintiffs; for Defendants; verdicts for Plaintiffs; for Defendants; causes referred to arbitration; verdicts for claimants on precepts to assess compensation under Railway Acts, &c.; executions; judgment summonses; committals; and certiorari. There were 291 committals issued, 177 debtors arrested, and 6 imprisoned in 1874, against 282, 175, and 16 in 1873; in 1864 there were 78 committals issued and 16 debtors imprisoned.

Foreign Attachments.

The number of Foreign Attachments issued in 1874 was 793, for a total amount of 784,784*l.* Of these 291 for 225,650*l.* were withdrawn, settled by the parties. In 1873 the number of attachments was 945; the total amount was 663,129*l.*, of which 355 for 316,674*l.* were withdrawn, settled by the parties. In 1864 the number of attachments issued was 884; the total amount 741,705*l.*

The jurisdiction of the Court in Foreign Attachments, as has been before stated by the registrar, extends only to commercial debts accruing in the City of London, and not to such debts accruing abroad. It has also been remarked by the registrar that the amount for which judgment is signed forms no criterion of the sums recovered in attachments, as the majority of the cases is settled by parties themselves out of Court, and thereupon the proceedings are withdrawn. In 1874, 291, or 36·6 per cent., of the number of attachments issued, for 225,650*l.*, or 28·7 per cent. of the amount; in 1873, 355, or 37·5 per cent., of the number, for 316,674*l.*, or 47·7 per cent. of the amount, were withdrawn; in 1864, 328, or 37·1 per cent., of the number issued, for 207,030*l.*, or 27·9 per cent. of the amount, were withdrawn.

The proceedings are further shown in the Table under the headings of verdicts, judgments, bills of proof, and certiorari. The average attachment was 989*l.* In 1873 the average attachment was 701*l.*; in 1872, 552*l.*; in 1871, 810*l.*; in 1870, 1,045*l.*; in 1864, 839*l.*

On the Equity side of the Court there were four bills of complaint filed in 1874, and four in 1873. In 1872 there were two bills of complaint, and two decrees and orders. In 1871 there were seven bills of complaint, and four decrees and orders.

The fees (exclusive of costs) on all proceedings, including attachments, in 1874, amounted to 7,197*l.*, against 8,516*l.* in 1873; 8,597*l.* in 1872; 8,419*l.* in 1871; 7,904*l.* in 1870; 7,620*l.* in 1869; and 5,832*l.* in 1868. In 1864 the amount was 3,956*l.* LORD MAYOR'S COURT.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, (32 and 33 Vict. c. 71.,) the whole of the prior law of bankruptcy was repealed. Pursuant to the 59th section of the Act, the Bankruptcy Court consists of the London Court and Local Courts. The district of the London Court comprises the City of London and Liberties thereof, and all places situated within the districts of the Metropolitan County Courts. BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1869. (Tables, pp. 21–24.)

The Local Bankruptcy Courts are the County Courts.

By the 130th section of the Act, the former Country District Courts of Bankruptcy were abolished.

The London Court consists of the Chief Judge in Bankruptcy and such number of Registrars, not exceeding four, Clerks, Ushers, and other subordinate officers, as may be determined by the Chief Judge, with the sanction of the Treasury.

An appeal lies to the Chief Judge in Bankruptcy from the decisions in respect of matters of fact or law of the Local Bankruptcy Courts; and the orders of the Chief Judge in Bankruptcy are subject to an appeal to the Court of Appeal in Chancery. There is a further appeal to the House of Lords, but only with leave of the Court of Appeal. Appeals.

Provision is also made by the Act for trial by jury. Trial by jury.

The practice and procedure of the courts are regulated by orders and rules issued by the Lord Chancellor, with the advice of the Chief Judge in Bankruptcy. Orders and rules.

Imprisonment for debt is abolished by the Debtors Act, 32 and 33 Vict. c. 62., with exceptions stated in the Act. Debtors Act.

To bring a person within the control of the Bankruptcy Laws there must have been committed by such person one or more of six acts or defaults called acts of bankruptcy, specified in the Act, on which a petition is to be grounded. These are as follows: (1.) That the debtor has made a conveyance or assignment of his property to a trustee or trustees for the benefit of his creditors generally; (2.) That the debtor has made a fraudulent conveyance, gift, delivery, or transfer of his property, or of any part thereof; (3.) That he has, with intent to defeat or delay his creditors, departed out of England; or, being out of England, remained out of England; or, being a trader, departed from his dwelling-house, or otherwise absented himself, or began to keep house, or suffered himself to be outlawed; (4.) That he has filed in the court a declaration admitting his inability to pay his debts; (5.) That execution issued against the debtor on any legal process, for the purpose of obtaining payment of not less than 50*l.*, has in the case of a trader been levied by seizure and sale of his goods; (6.) That the creditor presenting the petition has served in the prescribed manner on the debtor a debtor's summons, requiring the debtor to pay a sum due of an amount of not less than 50*l.*, and the debtor, being a trader, has, for the space of seven days, or, not being a trader, for the space of three weeks succeeding the service of such summons, neglected to pay such sum, or to secure or compound for the same. But no person can be adjudged bankrupt unless the act of bankruptcy on which the petition for adjudication is grounded has occurred within six months before presentation of the petition. The sum due by the debtor must be of an amount of not less than 50*l.* When a debtor's summons is served the debtor may, within seven days if a trader, or three weeks if not a trader, pay or secure or compound for his debt. Acts of Bankruptcy.

A petition for adjudication of bankruptcy can only be presented by a creditor or creditors jointly, and no longer by the debtor himself, as under the Act of 1861. Petition for adjudication.

As soon as an order has been made adjudging the debtor a bankrupt, a general meeting of creditors, called the first meeting of creditors, is called, by whom a fit person, whether a creditor or not, is appointed to fill the office of trustee of the property First meeting of creditors.

of the bankrupt; inspectors are also appointed to superintend the administration by the trustees of the bankrupt's property.

Discharge of bankrupt.

When all the property has been realised, and a final dividend declared, or a composition or arrangement has been completed, the bankruptcy is closed; and if a dividend of not less than ten shillings in the pound has been declared, or the creditors resolve that the bankruptcy, or the failure to pay ten shillings in the pound, was involuntary on the part of the bankrupt, he may obtain his discharge. Under certain circumstances the discharge may be suspended or withheld by the court. If no discharge is granted, the bankrupt is left unmolested for three years, after which the court may make such order in the matter as it thinks fit.

Liquidation by arrangement and composition.

Further, the affairs of a debtor may be settled by liquidation, by arrangement, under the 125th section of the Act, or, under 126th section, by composition with the creditors, without any proceedings in bankruptcy.

Annual report.

By the 115th section of the Act, the registrars and other officers are required to make returns of the business of their respective courts and offices to the Comptroller in Bankruptcy, by whom a general annual report, judicial and financial, is required to be made to the Lord Chancellor, and to be laid before Parliament.

The following is taken from the report of the Comptroller for the year ending 31st December 1874:—

"The results of the year 1874 are generally similar to those of the preceding year.

"The number of bankruptcies during the year 1874 shows a slight increase on the preceding year, as against a similar decrease in the year 1873.

"The number of liquidations by arrangement and compositions with creditors, and the total liabilities of estates administered under the several provisions of the Act, again show an increase on the previous year, as appears by the following Table:—

YEARS.	Bankruptcies.	Liquidations by Arrangement.	Compositions.	TOTAL.	Total Liabilities.
1873 - - -	915	4,152	2,422	7,489	19,184,812
1874 - - -	930	4,440	2,549	7,919	20,136,670

Although the total liabilities in 1874 show an increase of 951,858*l.* over the previous year, the assets show a decrease of over 500,000*l.*

"The total number of estates administered under the several provisions of the Act has increased 58 per cent. in 1874, as compared with 1870; the numbers being 5,002 in 1870, and 7,919 in 1874.

"The number of discharges granted to bankrupts during the year 1874 was 82, as compared with 73 in the year 1873.

"Of this number 4 only as against 10 in 1873 were granted on the ground that the bankrupts had, or might have, paid 10*s.* in the pound, the remainder, 78, having been granted on special resolutions of creditors that the bankruptcy, or the failure to pay 10*s.* in the pound, had arisen from circumstances for which the bankrupt could not justly be held responsible.

"The number of cases pending in the London Bankruptcy Court on the 31st December 1874 was 1,058, being an increase of 138 on the number pending on the 31st December 1873.

"Against this increase there was, however, a decrease of 33 in the number of cases pending in the several county courts, leaving a net increase of pending estates of 105.

"The total number of estates pending on the 31st December 1874 was 2,924, of which—

833	„	„ - - - -	1874

"670 bankruptcies were closed during the year 1874, in 329 of which dividends were paid, in 118 no assets whatever were realised, and in 223 the assets, averaging about 77*l.* in each case, were absorbed in costs.

"The average cost of realising and distributing the bankrupts' estates closed during the year amounted to 36·39 per cent. of the assets realised (of which 19·72 per cent. was law costs, including stamp duty), as against 30·33 per cent. in the cases closed in 1873.

"This apparent increase in the cost of realisation is, however, chiefly attributable to the inferior character of the estates closed, the number of estates with assets exceeding 2,000*l.* closed in 1873, having been 13 or 2·97 per cent. of the total number closed with assets (437), as against 10 or 1·81 per cent. of the total (552) in 1874.

"The number of reports made by me to the courts on the conduct of trustees during the year 1874 was 562.

"In 320 of these cases the trustees complied before the hearing of the summons.

"In 174 cases orders were made against the trustees.

"In 50 cases the trustees were not served, chiefly in consequence of their having removed or absconded.

"In four cases the trustees have been removed from their office. In one case no order was made, and 13 cases are still pending.

"Of the increase in the number of compositions registered in 1874 (127), 75 are at rates not exceeding 1*s.* in the pound, the total increase being confined to rates not exceeding 7*s.* 6*d.* in the pound.

"The per-centage of compositions exceeding 7*s.* 6*d.* in the pound has declined from 34·77 per cent. of the total number in the year 1870 to 16·05 per cent. of the total number registered in the year 1874, as shown by the following Table :—

Liquidation by arrangement and composition with creditors.

With a view to liquidation by arrangement, a debtor unable to pay his debts may summon a general meeting of his creditors, and such meeting may declare that the affairs of the debtor are to be liquidated by arrangement and not in bankruptcy, and a trustee may be appointed, with or without a committee of inspection. The provisions of the Act relating to meetings of creditors in the case of a bankruptcy, subject to modifications, apply to meetings for the purposes of liquidation by arrangement. The provisions with respect to the close of the bankruptcy, the discharge of a bankrupt, the release of the trustee, and the audit of accounts by the Comptroller, do not apply; but the close of the liquidation may be fixed, and the discharge of the debtor, and the release of the trustee may be granted by a resolution of the creditors in general meeting, and the accounts may be audited in pursuance of such resolution, at such time, in such manner, and upon such terms and conditions as the creditors think fit.

In order to composition, the creditors of a debtor unable to pay his debts may, without any proceedings in bankruptcy, by a resolution passed by a majority in number and three-fourths in value of the creditors assembled at a general meeting, resolve that a composition shall be accepted in satisfaction of the debts.

The following tables, as taken from the reports of the Comptroller, show the business under these proceedings during each of the years 1874 and 1873.

Clerks of Records and Writs. (Return, p. 29).

The Return made by the Clerks of Records and Writs shows the number of suits instituted in the Court of Chancery, whether by bill or information, or by claim, or summons, or as special cases, as well as the subsequent proceedings on the part both of plaintiff and defendant, all such suits and proceedings being filed in the Office of Records and Writs. The Return distinguishes the number of suits instituted in the Court of the Master of the Rolls and in the Courts of each of the three Vice-Chancellors. The total number of suits instituted, as shown in the Return for the year commencing 2nd November 1873, and ending 1st November 1874, was as follows, in comparison with the numbers for the preceding year, and with the numbers for the year 1863–4:—

Suits instituted:
Bills or informations filed { higher scale	2,092	2,136	2,280

When the property which is the subject of a Chancery suit is above the value of 1,000*l.*, the higher scale of fees is payable; when it does not exceed that amount the lower scale applies. Suits instituted by bill or information are the only suits other than suits by summons originating proceedings in Chambers to which the higher scale and lower scale of fees of Court apply. The proportion of the numbers on each scale to the whole number, which in 1872–3 was 83·9 per cent. on the higher scale, and 16·1 per cent. on the lower scale, in 1873–4 was 84·9 and 15·1 per cent. respectively.

The total number of proceedings (the number of each description being distinguished in the Return), and the total amount of fees collected by stamps in the Office of Records and Writs in each of the years 1873–4 and 1872–3, and in 1863–4, were as follows:—

HIGH COURT OF ADMIRALTY OF ENGLAND.

ADMIRALTY COURT. (Table, pp. 34–41.)

A Return of proceedings in the High Court of Admiralty of England for the year 1874 has been furnished by the Registrar of the Court, prepared in the usual form and in continuation of the Returns sent in previous years for the purposes of the Judicial Statistics.

In the Return for 1872, the Registrar observed that the form of the Return had been somewhat altered from that of the preceding year, in order to show more clearly the amount of business transacted in the Liverpool District Registry as compared with that in the Principal Registry. He further observed that none of the motions under the head of the Liverpool District Registry are heard or disposed of in that Registry; all that the District Registrar does is to receive the motions and forward them to the Principal Registry, when they come on in the usual way before the judge, and are disposed of by him; and the order is thereupon drawn up in the Principal Registry, and a copy thereof is transmitted to Liverpool for registration in the District Registry. No causes are heard or decrees made in the District Registry, but when the cause is ready for hearing, the papers are transmitted to the Principal Registry, and the cause having been heard by the judge in London, the order or decree is drawn up in the Principal Registry, and a copy thereof is forwarded to Liverpool for registration in the District Registry. No moneys are received in the District Registry except for transmission to the Principal Registry, where all the accounts are kept. All the general business, the Naval Prize business, &c., is transacted in the Principal Registry exclusively.

The Return for 1874 also shows in detail, as was shown in the Returns for 1872 and 1873 with regard to those years, the number of causes appealed or transferred from County Courts, and the results.

Number of causes, &c. (Table, p. 34.)

The number of causes pending at the commencement of the year, and the number instituted during the year, with the amount for which the causes were instituted, under each head of proceedings, are shown in the following abstract, for each of the years 1874 and 1873, so far as relates to the High Court of Admiralty and the Principal Registry.

Motions.

With regard to motions, as has been before explained by the Registrar, opposed motions necessarily imply argument by counsel, and frequently involve points of great importance, while unopposed motions are little more than formal applications. Motions in chambers are almost always opposed, but they are on minor points, on which the proctors and solicitors alone are heard.

Principal Registry. (Table, p. 34.)

The total number of motions heard (the number for 1874 being distinguished in the table under each head of salvage, &c.) for the years 1874, 1873, 1872, 1871, and 1864, (including summonses heard for the latter year,) was as follows:—

Judgments.

As formerly explained by the Registrar, judgments have been divided in the Return into judgments in contested causes and after arguments of counsel; judgments by consent, as where the defendant consents to a decree, and only wishes to have the amount of his liability ascertained; and judgments by default, where the defendant does not appear, but allows the cause to go on, and the vessel to be sold in his default, generally because the property is insufficient to satisfy all the claims upon it. The first alone of these classes represents real judicial work; the two latter involve little more than pro formâ business.

An appeal lies within three months from any decision of the Judge Ordinary alone to the full Court; and further, an appeal to the House of Lords from the decision of the full Court on any petition for the dissolution of marriage.

TOTAL AMOUNT of FEES received in the CROWN OFFICE (exclusive of business done for Public Departments for which no Fees are received)	£ 550 14 2			This amount gives no adequate idea of the business of the Office, as the fees were reduced to mere nominal charges by the 6 & 7 Vict. c. 20., and further reduced by subsequent Acts. For all business done for Government Boards which is considerable, no fees whatever are received.

No certain information can be given from the Crown Office of the results of cases sent down for trial at Nisi Prius, very few cases occurring in which the judgment when given at Nisi Prius is entered up of Record in the Queen's Bench.

PART I.—CRIMINAL STATISTICS.

PART I. CRIMINAL STATISTICS.

THE returns of Criminal Statistics have been collected and presented to Parliament since 1863, under the directions of successive Lords Lieutenant, in compliance with an address presented by the House of Lords to Her Majesty. They are arranged in order similar to that adopted in the volume of English Criminal Statistics, and so as to compare with the Irish Statistics of preceding years.

As far as possible, the returns in the Appendix relating to matters connected with each other are grouped together. Thus the Police Tables show the establishments of the Police, the criminal classes known to the Police, the offences committed and the character of criminals; and grouped with these are the returns of Coroners, which give the number of inquests held, distinguishing the cases in which the result of the inquest was the disclosure of crime, thus presenting points of comparison with the returns of crime made by the Police.

The next class includes returns of criminal proceedings at the Assizes on the several circuits, at the Commission Court in Dublin, and at Quarter Sessions held throughout Ireland, made by the Local Inspectors of Gaols; and with these are classed the returns of Crown Solicitors as to costs of criminal proceedings.

The last group of Criminal Returns relates to the different places in which criminals are kept in confinement. Under the general head "Prisons," this group comprises returns from County Gaols, Bridewells, Convict Prisons, Reformatory Schools, Industrial Schools, and Lunatic Asylums.

In this Introductory Report the Statistics are divided more completely, according to subject-matter, independently of the source from which the information is received, under the four following heads:—1st, Statistics of Crime; 2nd, Modes of Procedure for Punishing Crime; 3rd, Criminal Classes, and Places of Detention of Criminals; 4th, Staff employed in the Suppression of Crime, and Cost incurred.

CHAPTER I.—STATISTICS OF CRIME.

CHAPTER I. Statistics of Crime.

The following table shows the indictable offences compared with the corresponding figures since the year 1864:—

Comparison of crime in 1874 with crime in previous years.

The amount of serious crime has now diminished for four years in succession; the number of crimes in 1874 is less than in any year since the Criminal Statistics were first in a complete shape in 1864.

Part of the improvement in the past ten years has been in agrarian offences. The number of outrages specially reported was, on an average of the past two years, 233. In 1862–63 it was on an average 324. Agrarian crimes.

* Estimated population for the middle of each year from Registrar-General's Returns, 1875, No. 45.

Agrarian outrages up to 31st July, 1875.

The agrarian outrages in 1874 were 41 less than in 1873. There was an increase in 1874 in the number of such offences in Donegal of 12, and in Down of 8. There was an increase in four other Ulster counties, making a total increase in Ulster of 28 offences. This unfavourable result in Ulster was, however, more than counterbalanced by the diminution in the other provinces, of 2 in Leinster, 14 in Connaught, and 53 in Munster, making the total of Ireland 41 less than in 1873.

The favourable result as to agrarian crime up to the end of 1874 has been surpassed in the first seven months of 1875, the agrarian outrages specially reported up to 31st July, being 82 as compared with 131 in the first seven months of 1874.

The outrages specially reported by the Constabulary, 1,186, up to 31st July, 1875, as compared with 1,286 in 1874, and the crimes of all kinds in the Dublin Metropolitan Police district, 4,396, up to 31st July, 1875, as compared with 4,537 in 1874, show that the general criminal statistics of the first seven months of 1875 are more favourable than those of the first seven months of 1874.

The following table shows the comparison, in detail, between 1874 and 1873, of indictable offences not disposed of summarily.

The different offences are divided into two classes—first, those in which the results were more favourable in 1874 than in 1873; and, secondly, those in which the results were more favourable in 1873 than in 1874.

In each class the offences are arranged according to the degree of difference between the years—those that contribute most to the general result coming first; the exact difference is stated in each case, and the degree by which the lesser number is below the greater is added as a per-centage on a uniform principle for exact comparison.

This table shows a decrease in indictable offences in 1874 in eight classes, and an increase in six. The increases were not large or in the gravest classes of offences. The decreases were in classes of offences in which Ireland presents the most unfavourable contrast to England and Wales:—(1) riots and breach of the peace, 53 per cent.; (2) assaults and inflicting bodily harm, 11 per cent.; (3) malicious offences against property, 2 per cent.; and (4) crimes against human life, 2 per cent.

This table shows an increase in 1874 of 4,658 on the 223,843 offences determined summarily in 1873—raising the offences determined summarily to a higher number than in the three preceding years, and to 430 per 10,000 of population—a higher proportion than in the majority of the years since the statistics were first in the present shape, in 1864; the average of the ten previous years being only 425 in each 10,000 of population.

The following table shows the different offences determined summarily, classified according to the degree in which the statistics of each were more favourable in 1873 than in 1874, or the reverse :—

† Registrar-General's Estimate, in Abstract, 1875, No. 45, for middle of each year.

It appears from this table that more than a third of the increase in offences disposed of summarily in 1874 may be ascribed to drunkenness. The total increase was 4,658, and in drunkenness the increase was 1,815. The other large increases—1,227 in offences against Police Acts, 1,063 against local Acts, and 606 against Weights and Measures Acts—all mark increased vigilance of the Police in prosecuting for minor offences.

The classes of offences which show a marked decrease are—violation of Ways Acts, 904, and prostitutes under Vagrant Act, 627.

Distribution of Crime in Counties and Districts.

The distribution of crime in counties and districts is shown in the following tables, one having relation to indictable offences not disposed of summarily, and the other (p. 16) relating to offences disposed of summarily.

The most marked feature disclosed by this table is one that was particularly noticed in the past three years, viz., the extent to which crime is concentrated in towns in Ireland.

Thus whilst the average of all Ireland of indictable offences not disposed of summarily is 12, the crime in the Dublin Metropolitan Police district reached 110 in the 10,000 of population; and it gives a more definite conception of the matter to notice that of the 6,662 indictable offences not disposed of summarily in Ireland, 3,734, or more than half, occurred in the Dublin Metropolitan Police district.

That this is only part of a general law, of which Dublin is an extreme case, is shown by some other figures:—

NUMBER OF CRIMES IN EACH 10,000 OF POPULATION.

DISTRICTS.	In Urban District.	Adjoining County.	Excess in Urban District.	Excess per cent.
				Per cent.
Dublin Metropolis,	110·8	9·4	101·4	91
Cork City,	14·2	6·1	8·1	57
Waterford City,	6·5	3·2	3·3	51
Galway Town,	11·0	5·6	5·4	49
Belfast,	5·7	3·2	2·5	44
Limerick City,	11·3	6·5	4·8	42

It appears from this table that the excess of crime in urban districts, as compared with the adjoining county, is, in the case of Dublin, 91 per cent.; in Cork, 57 per cent.; in Waterford, 51 per cent.; in Galway, 49 per cent.; in Belfast, 44 per cent.; and in Limerick, 42 per cent.

In counties at large Kildare stands highest both in 1874 and in 1873, the crime in it in 1874 being 11·4 in 10,000 of the population.

The account given by one of the Judges at a late Assizes, of the crime in Kildare being connected with the large concentration of troops, accounts for this excess above other rural districts. Such concentration is calculated to have the same effect on crime as the concentration of people in towns and cities.

So that the great problem indicated by the statistics of Irish crime in 1874, as by those in 1873 and 1872, is how to deal with town crime.

Columns have been added to the table to indicate the changes in the amount of crime in 1874 as compared with 1873 in those jurisdictions in which there has been a change of 2 in the 10,000 of population or upwards. It appears that the most marked diminution in crime has been as follows:—The city of Cork, from 158 crimes to 112, or 5·9 in the 10,000 of population; Armagh county, owing to cessation of party disturbances, from 214 to 115, or 5·5; in the North Riding of Tipperary, from 82 to 43, or 4·2; in Kildare, from 123 to 96, or 3·3; and in Clare, from 107 to 76, or 2·1 in the 10,000 of population. Some disturbance in Clare had rendered it necessary to place it under the Peace Preservation Act in July, 1873. The only jurisdictions showing marked increase in proportion of crime are the county of Fermanagh, from 29 to 48, or 2·1; and Drogheda town, from 5 to 8, or 2·4 in the 10,000 of population.

This table of offences disposed of summarily indicates the same result as the preceding table relating to more serious crime—the excess of town crime.

Six out of the eight principal towns in Ireland that are distinguished from the adjoining counties, are above the average of offences disposed of summarily. Dublin Metropolitan Police District, Limerick, Waterford, and Cork are above double the average. These four cities, with Galway and Belfast, all show a greater proportion of offences disposed of summarily than any county at large in Ireland.

The degree of preponderance is shown by the comparison of the offences disposed of summarily, compared with each 10,000 of population, in the several town districts and in the adjoining counties :—

Offences summarily disposed of in towns and adjoining counties compared.

Limerick City,	1,095	406	689	63
Drogheda,	404	352	52	13

It appears from this table that the offences determined summarily were 1,048 in each 10,000 population in Waterford city, and only 232 in the adjoining county, or 78 per cent. less. In Dublin Metropolitan district the offences were 1,247 in each 10,000, and in the adjoining county only 397, or 68 per cent. less.

Columns have been added to the table to show the districts which indicate a marked change in offences determined summarily in 1874 as compared with 1873.

The districts which show a marked increase are:—Waterford city, from 2,084 to 2,429' or an increase of 142 in the 10,000 population; Westmeath county, from 3,400 to 4,304, or 116 in 10,000; Dublin metropolis, from 39,374 to 42,032, or 79 in 10,000; Queen's county, from 2,803 to 3,328, or 66 in 10,000; and Kildare, from 4,126 to 4,622, or 59 in 10,000—Kildare thus appearing in nearly the same unfavourable position as it is as to serious crime. The districts which show a decrease of over 40 in the 10,000 population are:—Drogheda, 226 in 10,000, from 820 in 1873 to 525 in 1874; Sligo, 67 in 10,000, from 3,805 to 3,043; Tipperary, North Riding, 53 in 10,000, from 3,365 to 2,864; and Kerry, 45 in 10,000, from 8,626 in 1873 to 7,735 in 1874.

Relative Criminality of different divisions of the Dublin Metropolitan Police district.

The prevalence of offences disposed of summarily in the poorer and more crowded parts of the Dublin Metropolitan Police district, is no less marked than the contrast between the entire metropolis and the adjoining county. Thus in Division "A" (south-west city, including the Liberties) the offences disposed of summarily reached 1,778 in the 10,000 population; whilst in Division "E" (south city with rural district from Crumlin to Sandymount) the offences were only 555 in the 10,000 population. The number of indictable offences in Division "B" (the south-east city) was the greatest, reaching 136 in the 10,000; and in division "F" including Kingstown and rural district from Merrion old church to Mount Malpas, Killiney, was the least, only 57 in the 10,000 population.

Statistics of Irish Crime compared with corresponding Statistics in England and Wales.

In the following tables the statistics of crime in Ireland for the year ended 31st December, 1874, are compared with the corresponding statistics of crime in England and Wales for the year ended 29th September, 1873, the date up to which the returns are made which are included in the Judicial and Criminal Statistics for England and Wales presented to Parliament in 1874.

The tables are arranged on the plan adopted in the Irish statistics for last three years. The total is given first, and the different offences are given in the order in which they correspond with the general result, those offences which most closely correspond with the general result coming first, and those which differ most from the general result coming last.

It appears from this table that the Irish statistics of indictable offences are more favourable than the English in the total number of indictable offences not disposed of summarily, to the extent of 3,614, or 35 per cent.

This proportion corresponds very closely with the proportion given in the last four years—33 per cent. in 1870, 34·6 per cent. in 1871, 28·2 per cent. in 1872, and 32 per cent. in 1873.

The characteristics of the offences follow the same general law—the classes of offences in which Irish statistics are more favourable being, with a single exception, the same as in 1873. The Irish statistics are more favourable than the English in crimes against property, other than malicious, from 49 to 58 per cent.; in perjury, 37 per cent.; and in attempts to commit suicide, 73 per cent.

The crimes in which the English statistics are more favourable than the Irish are:—Riot and assaults of various classes, ranging from 78 per cent. to 98 per cent.; malicious offences against property, 71 per cent.; and offences against the lives of others, 16 per cent.

The only change is in rape and assaults with intent to ravish, in which the Irish statistics are more favourable by 15 per cent. in 1874: the English statistics were more favourable by 3 per cent. in 1873.

The above comparison relates entirely to indictable offences not disposed of summarily; but in both countries Justices have power to deal with certain cases of theft, assaults,

* In this and all subsequent tables in which the English figures are estimated according to population for the purpose of comparison with the Irish figures, the enumerated population of England and Wales is taken for the 1st of April, 1873, as estimated from the Registrar-General's figures, at 23,284,269, and the population of Ireland for the middle of 1874, as estimated by the Registrar-General, at 5,314,884. These numbers show that the population of the former country is 4·4 times greater than that of the latter; and by this proportion, for all tables similar to the above, the figures given in the English Judicial and Criminal Statistics for 1873 have been divided.

and malicious injuries to property, either summarily or by indictment. The Courts of Petty Sessions are, however, somewhat differently constituted in Ireland and England and Wales, from the presence of official or paid Magistrates in all districts in Ireland, rural as well as urban. The following table of offences disposed of summarily, belonging to classes that possibly might be indicted, has been constructed and the comparison carried out in it on the same plan as in the preceding table :—

It appears from this table that in the statistics of offences actually disposed of summarily, but which belong to a class that might be dealt with by indictment, the result follows the same law and presents the same characteristics as in the more serious offences which are actually made the subject of indictment.

The Irish statistics are more favourable than the English in this class of offences, to the extent of 3,903 offences, or 17 per cent., corresponding very closely to the proportion in 1873, which was 21 per cent.; in stealing alone to the extent of 56 per cent., and in aggravated assaults on women and children, 39 per cent. On the other hand, the Irish statistics are less favourable by 37 per cent. in the minor cases of malicious offences against property.

Statistics of murder and infanticide in Ireland and in England and Wales compared.

In the Police Tables of crimes reported, the statistics of murder are included with other offences affecting human life, and not taken separately for comparison, for the following reasons, as explained in preceding reports :—In consequence of the difference of the system of public prosecutions in Ireland from that in England, the returns of the Police are framed on a different principle in the two countries. The Police returns in Ireland are framed chiefly according to the crime charged at the commencement of the prosecution. In England the Police returns are made according to the verdicts at the trial;† and all those cases in which the Jury convicts of a crime other than that charged in the indictment (e.g., in cases where upon a trial for murder a verdict of manslaughter or of concealment of birth is returned) appear in different classes in the statistics of England and of Ireland. In the former they are classified according to the verdict of the Jury, while in the latter they are returned as murder, that being the crime charged, and for which the indictment was framed. The English statistics which afford the best standard of comparison of the cases commonly referred to as murders, irrespective of the legal definition of the offence or final verdict, are the verdicts at Coroners' inquests, and these in Ireland and in England and Wales are to a large extent comparable.

* Common assaults have not been included. As to the impossibility of any assaults that would be properly the subject of indictment being thus excluded so far as the Irish statistics are concerned, vide Judicial Statistics of Ireland, 1869, p. 16.

In this comparison, however, it is to be borne in mind that when any one is arrested before the Coroner's inquest is held, the practice in Ireland is different from what it was two years ago. The prisoner is not produced before the Coroner's inquest unless he applies for a habeas corpus; and this sometimes leads the Coroners' Juries not to enter into the evidence beyond the medical cause of death, and so not to find a verdict of murder in cases where, under the previous practice, such a verdict would have been found.

STATISTICS OF MURDER, ACCORDING TO THE CORONERS' RETURNS, IN IRELAND AND ENGLAND COMPARED.	IRELAND, in 1874.	Number in a portion of the Population of England and Wales in 1873 equal to that of Ireland.	Actual Difference.		Difference per cent.

Total, ...	58	51	–	7	–	12

It appears from this table that the number of cases in which murder, other than infanticide, was charged by the verdicts of Coroners' inquests, was 32 in Ireland in 1874, as compared with 19 in an equal portion of the population of England and Wales in 1873, showing a difference against Ireland of 13, or 41 per cent.

The statistics of infanticide in both countries are quite startling.

The proportion of children in Ireland to the rest of the population was ascertained by the Census Commissioners in 1861 to be as 2·4 to 97·6, or, in other words, that in every 200 of the population, about 5 are infants under one year of age. It follows from this that the proportional number of murders other than infanticides which would correspond to the 26 infanticides would be 1,057. The difference between this number and 32, the number of murders other than infanticides, indicates at a glance the excess of this crime.

In England and Wales the proportion of the population under one year to those above one year of age is 3 to 97; it follows, therefore, that the number of murders of persons above one year of age to be expected from the 32 infanticides would be 1,034 in a portion of the population equal to that of Ireland. This, compared with 19, the actual number of such murders in that portion of the English population, indicates a still greater excess of infanticides, as compared with other murders, than in Ireland. The excess of infanticides above other murders in both countries presents matter for consideration in estimating the whole effects of the immorality which leads to this crime.*

* Vide commencement of Chapter II., where the extraordinary proportion of verdicts on illegitimate children appears.

The statistics of offences, other than indictable offences, determined summarily, present a general result unfavourable to Ireland as compared with England and Wales—the number of such offences being 98,288, or 47 per cent. less in a corresponding portion of the population of England and Wales than in Ireland.

The Irish statistics show in the most unfavourable manner in the following offences, being less favourable than the English to the degree stated :—Offences against Fishery Acts, 85 per cent. ; offences against Ways Acts, 80 per cent. ; offences against Weights and Measures Acts, 76 per cent. ; offences against Nuisance Acts, 68 per cent. ; drunkenness, drunk and disorderly, 57 per cent.

On the other hand, the Irish statistics present more favourable features than the English chiefly in the following classes of offences, to the degree stated :—Offences against Mercantile Marine Acts, 55 per cent. ; violation of Cattle Plague Orders, 62 per cent. ; offences against Poor Law Acts, 66 per cent. ; offences against Game Acts, 67 per cent. ; enforcement of Vagrant Act other than against prostitutes, 69 per cent. ; offences against Factory Acts, 70 per cent.

In two classes of offences there is no basis of comparison, in consequence of the difference of the law. Thus, there were 682 convictions for disobedience of the bastardy laws in England, with no corresponding convictions in Ireland, the Irish law not giving a summary remedy to a seduced woman in the same form as in England. Again, there were 1,521 convictions under the Elementary Education Act in England, whilst there were no convictions in Ireland, as there is no compulsory provision in connexion with Irish education.

Supposed excessive criminality of persons of Irish birth in England and Wales.

Last year, in some comments on the Irish Criminal Statistics, a theory was suggested to account for the characteristics above noticed, of Irish as compared with English crime, that the large proportion of Irish prisoners in English prisons furnished the true reason for the small prevalence of certain crimes in Ireland, upon which so many ingenious theories had been based.

It was alleged that while persons of Irish birth in England and Wales were only 566,540 in number, or one-fortieth of the population, they appeared in the commitments to prisons as one-seventh of the commitments, and it was thence assumed that they were much more criminal than the other inhabitants of the towns or parts of towns in which they resided.

What has been already observed as to the great preponderance of town crime in Ireland, appears from the English Criminal Statistics to be equally true of England and Wales.

It appears, however, from the Census that the persons of Irish birth reside chiefly in large towns:—91,171 in London; 76,761 in Liverpool; and 34,066 in Manchester; in some sixty other large towns, 118,862. To judge whether there was any excessive criminality amongst them, it would be right to compare their offences with the criminality of the population of the towns, or parts of the towns where they chiefly reside, and not of the whole of England and Wales.

Again it appears from the Census that the persons of Irish birth are very peculiarly distributed as to age, owing to the migration to England and Wales from Ireland being usually not of families, but of young persons seeking employment, who afterwards marry and settle in England, and whose children are all classed as of English birth. The persons of Irish birth do not represent a complete portion of the Irish race in England, but only a portion of the higher ages. Thus, of the entire number of 566,540, no less than 498,733 were 20 years of age, and only 67,717 under that age, whilst in a corresponding portion of the entire population of England and Wales, with 498,733 persons above 20 years of age, there would be 92,000 between 15 and 20, and 332,000 under 15. This renders it necessary to compare the criminality of the persons of Irish birth not with that of the entire number of non-Irish birth, but with that of those of the same age.

In England and Wales persons above 20 years of age commit 80 per cent. of the crime, and taking the small number of persons of Irish birth below 20, it may be estimated that the whole number of 566,540 belong to such a section of the general population as forms 60 per cent. of the whole, and owing to the almost total absence of children of Irish birth, belong to the ages at which 90 per cent. of the crime is committed.

The English Criminal Statistics do not distinguish the different divisions of the Metropolis as the Irish do into the six police divisions, neither is Liverpool or Manchester divided, though so much larger than Dublin; so that it is not possible to compare the criminality of persons of Irish birth with that of the divisions of these great cities in which they actually reside. But the whole population of the three—including part of the county of Middlesex—the population of the same ages as those of Irish birth (at 60 per cent.) is 2,638,000, and the indictable offences committed by persons at these ages in these towns, is (at 90 per cent. of the whole number) 20,252. This gives the criminality of the entire population of London, Liverpool, and Manchester, at the ages of persons of Irish birth through England and Wales, as 76·2 in the 10,000 population of such ages.

It is not possible to determine the criminality of persons of Irish birth from the usual returns of birth-place of prisoners, as no distinction is made as to whether they are committed for indictable offences or for offences disposed of summarily; but, through the courtesy of the Home Secretary, special returns have been obtained, the summary of which is shown in the following table:—

It appears from this table that in commitments for trial at Assizes and Quarter Sessions, corresponding to the Police returns of indictable offences not disposed of summarily, the commitments of those of Irish birth only reach 8·1 per cent.

The indictable offences not disposed of summarily in England and Wales in 1873 were 45,412; 8·1 per cent. of this number amounts to 3,678, and this number of offences amongst the 566,540 gives the criminality of those of Irish birth as only 64·9 in the 10,000 of population; whilst, as we have seen above, the criminality of persons of the same ages in the entire of London, Liverpool, and Manchester, the three towns where the persons of Irish birth reside in greatest numbers, is 76·2, or 11·3 in the 10,000 greater than 64·9, the ascertained criminality of those of Irish birth.

Supposed excessive criminality of persons of Irish birth in England and Wales.

The criminality of persons of Irish birth in England appears from this comparison to be not excessive, and so cannot account for the less amount of indictable offences in Ireland than in an equal portion of the population of England and Wales.

The extraordinary difference between the poorer and more crowded and the richer police divisions of Dublin in the number of offences disposed summarily—1,778 in the 10,000 in one of the poorer, and only 555 in one the of richer—indicates the explanation of the apparent excess of commitments for offences disposed of summarily amongst those of Irish birth. If the statistics were so framed as to allow the comparison to be made in divisions of towns, the apparent difference would disappear.

Statistics of crime in Ulster compared with statistics of crime in Scotland.

A comparison has been instituted, as in preceding years, between the crime of Ulster and that of Scotland, as close as the differences in the law and modes of administration in Scotland and Ireland would admit of.

In Scotland the distinction between indictable offences and those disposed of summarily is not so clearly marked as in Ireland; but, by reducing the offences of all kinds to the following five classes, a sufficiently good basis of comparison has been obtained :—Offences (1) against human life, (2) against morals, (3) against property, (4) against veracity, and (5) Police offences, including riot, assaults, and violation of discipline under various Acts of Parliament. The offences against human life are subdivided into three classes—(1) murder and attempts at murder or to do grievous bodily harm; (2) manslaughter, called in Scotland culpable homicide ; and (3) offences against the lives of infants short of infanticide.

The comparison of crime in Ireland and England is open to the consideration that the circumstances of the two countries differ very much, agriculture preponderating in the one and manufactures in the other. There is, too, a great contrast in wealth and in concentration of the population in the towns.

The comparison with Scotland affords a more perfect test of the different effects of laws, institutions, and social arrangements, especially if the comparison be limited to Ulster. From the close proximity of Ulster to Scotland, and the early migration of the Ulster Scoti to Argyle (the Hill of the Gaels or Irish) and thence to the whole Highlands, transferring their name to Scotland, and the modern migration of Ulster Celtic labourers to the Scotch towns, and from the large part which the Lowland Scotch of Anglo-Saxon race took in the plantation of Ulster and in the subsequent development of trade and manufactures, being the ancestors of the majority of the Protestant population—Ulster and Scotland correspond more closely in respect of race than any two portions of the United Kingdom. From the development of manufactures in Ulster, that province more closely resembles Scotland than any portion of Ireland in the distribution of the population between agriculture and manufactures. Ulster, too, resembles Scotland in the more friendly relations between landlord and tenant.

Scotch Statistics more favourable than Ulster.
Murder and Attempts at Murder, and to do grievous bodily harm, ...	60	48	–	12	–	20

It appears from this table that the total of offences of all kinds in Ulster in 1874 was 57,976, whilst in a portion of the population of Scotland equal to that of Ulster it was in 1873, 71,313. The number in Ulster was thus 13,337, or 19 per cent., less than in Scotland.

The unfavourable feature of the Ulster statistics is in murder and attempts at murder and to do grievous bodily harm; they were 60, as compared with 48 in Scotland, or 12 (or 20 per cent.) more. In cases of "culpable homicide" (the Scotch term), as compared with "manslaughter" in Ulster, the Scotch statistics show an excess—22 cases to 16 (or 27 per cent. of excess). In offences against the lives of infants and children (exposing, deserting, and concealing pregnancy or birth), the Scotch figure is 20 as against 19 in Ulster. The total of offences against human life is 95 in Ulster and only 90 for Scotch population equal to that of Ulster.

The crimes against veracity were only 3 in Ulster, as compared with 11 in Scotland, or 73 per cent. less. The crimes against morals (rape, attempts to ravish, bigamy, and abortion,) were only 31 in Ulster, as compared with 82 in Scotland, or 62 per cent. less. The offences against property in Ulster were only 3,820, as compared with 12,526 in Scotland, or 8,706 (or 69 per cent.) less. In Police offences, including riot, assaults, and violation of discipline under Acts of Parliament, there were 54,027 in Ulster, as compared with 58,604 in Scotland; so that the offences of this class in Ulster were 4,577, or 8 per cent., less.

The larger proportion of offences against morals in Scotland (62 per cent.), has an important bearing on the policy of maintaining a different law of marriage in Scotland from that in other portions of the United Kingdom, after the strong recommendations of the Marriage Law Commission made some years since on this subject.

The fifth table in the Appendix contains the number of indictable offences committed in the year, the number of persons apprehended for them, and the disposal of the persons so apprehended.

* The Scotch figures are obtained from the Scotch Judicial and Criminal Statistics for 1873, by an estimate, in which the population of Scotland for the middle of 1873 is taken, as returned by the Registrar-General, at 3,430,923, and the population of Ulster for the middle of 1874 is estimated from the Census population (1,841,397). The Scotch figures in the above table have accordingly been obtained by dividing the total offences returned by 1·87.

Number of persons apprehended for indictable offences.

The following is a summary of the returns with respect to crimes and apprehensions :—

This table shows a very high proportion (73 per cent.) of apprehensions to crimes in Ireland; in 1871 the proportion was considered high at 69.

It also appears how much larger the proportion of persons apprehended to the number of crimes committed is in Ireland than in England and Wales, viz.—73 per cent. as compared with 49 per cent. This is what might be expected from the larger proportion of Police to population in Ireland, and the more complete system of official prosecutions by Stipendiary Magistrates and Sessional and Assize Crown Solicitors.

The highest proportion noticed in the English statistics for some years was 58, in 1863; while the proportion in Ireland has, since the compilation of these statistics was commenced in 1863, always been very much higher than this.

Character of persons proceeded against.

In connexion with the criminal classes known to the Police, the most important statistics are those which show the character of the persons actually proceeded against, whether apprehended for indictable offences or proceeded against summarily.

The persons proceeded against in Ireland in 1874, classified according to character, are compared with the number in England and Wales in 1873 in the following table :—

CHARACTER OF PERSONS PROCEEDED AGAINST IN 1874, COMPARED WITH SIMILAR STATISTICS FOR ENGLAND AND WALES IN 1873.	IRELAND IN 1874.		ENGLAND AND WALES IN 1873.	English Proportion higher than Irish.	Irish Proportion higher than English.

Vagrants, Tramps, and others without any visible means of subsistence, ...	3,830	2·0	4·7	2·7	–
Known Thieves, ...	1,671	1·0	4·2	3·2	–

It appears from this summary that in Ireland 20·4 per cent. of the persons proceeded against were of character unknown to the Police, whilst in England and Wales 32·9 per cent. of those proceeded against were of that class. This arises in part from the much higher number of Police in proportion to the population in Ireland than in England and Wales, already noticed, and in part from the greater number of foreigners and the greater aggregation of the people in cities and towns in England than in Ireland.

In Ireland 85·6 per cent. of those proceeded against whose characters were ascertained, were of previous good character; while in England and Wales only 65·4 per cent. were of this class.

In analyzing the statistics in order more minutely to trace the causes of crime that admit of prevention, the following remarkable results are disclosed.

In the case of men proceeded against summarily, if we deduct those whose character is unknown and those of previous good character, those of bad character are classed as follows:—

Character of men proceeded against on indictment and summarily.

Men of ascertained Bad Character proceeded against on Indictment and Summarily.	Men proceeded against in Ireland in 1874.	Per-centage of each Class to Total of Bad Character.
Total number,	14,785	100

Suspicious Characters,	4,769	32
Vagrants, Tramps, and others without visible means of subsistence,	2,833	19
Known Thieves,	1,102	8

From this table it appears that of 14,785 men of bad character proceeded against by indictment and summarily, no less than 6,081, or 41 per cent., were habitual drunkards. In England and Wales the proportionate number of men of ascertained bad character proceeded against in 1873 (21,634) was much greater than the above total for Ireland (14,785). The proportionate number of habitual drunkards proceeded against was also much greater, reaching as high a number as 7,183.

These figures indicate the importance of the provisions in the Intoxicating Liquors Licensing Act, 1872, extended to Ireland, which impose increased penalties on drunkenness, and of the recommendations of the Select Committee of the House of Commons for dealing with cases of habitual drunkards.

Character of women proceeded against on indictment and summarily.

Women of ascertained Bad Character proceeded against on Indictment and Summarily.	Women proceeded against in Ireland in 1874.	Per-centage to Total of Bad Character.

Suspicious Persons,	1,651	14
Known Thieves,	569	5

It will be seen from the number of habitual drunkards in this table, that in the case of women as well as men, the question of habitual drunkenness is of importance, as they form a more numerous class (1,725, or 14 per cent.,) than suspicious persons (1,651), are not far from twice as numerous as vagrants (997, or 8 per cent.), and are more than three times the number of known thieves (569, or 5 per cent.) The most important figure in this table, however, is the number of prostitutes. It appears that of 12,107 women of ascertained bad character proceeded against in Ireland, no less than 7,165, or 59 per cent., were prostitutes.

In connexion with the discussions as to the legislation required for checking the physical evils arising from prostitution, these figures, showing the intimate connexion between prostitution and crime, suggest the larger question of the moral and social results of prostitution.

CHAPTER II.—MODES OF PROCEDURE FOR PUNISHING CRIME.

Difference in procedure in Ireland and in England and Wales.

In Ireland the modes of procedure for punishing crime are a combination of the English and Scotch systems, with some special arrangements added which are peculiar to Ireland. There is in each county a Sessional Crown Solicitor for criminal cases at Quarter Sessions and special cases heard at Petty Sessions or at Inquests, and also a Crown Solicitor for Assizes, the same officer sometimes acting for two counties. These officers in some degree correspond to the Procurators-Fiscal, for each Scotch county. In the county and city of Dublin there is only one Crown Solicitor for all purposes. There is, in addition, a complete system of Coroners for the holding of inquests exactly on the model of Coroners' inquests in England, though in Scotland there are no Coroners, the Procurators-Fiscal discharging the duty. In addition to the Crown Solicitors, the Police in Ireland (under central control) report specially on all crimes, and act as prosecutors. There are in each county, in addition to the Justices of the Peace, Stipendiary Magistrates in communication with the central Government, and also acting in the collection of evidence in serious cases.

Proceedings under Peace Preservation Act, 1870.

Since 1870 there are special provisions for the detection and punishment of crime in districts specially proclaimed under the second part of the Peace Preservation, Ireland, Act, 1870, and the usual return is given in the Police tables.

The return has relation to districts under the second part of the Act, during the whole year, comprising the counties of Mayo, Meath, and Westmeath, parts of the counties of Cavan, King's county, Limerick, Roscommon, and Tipperary.

The return also shows the districts which have been for some years under the Peace Preservation Act of 1856, which makes it obligatory to have licence to carry arms, and the provisions of which are incorporated in the first part of the Peace Preservation Act, 1870. These districts comprise 26 counties wholly and 5 partially proclaimed, and 7 counties of cities or towns wholly proclaimed; leaving 1 county, Tyrone, and 1 county of a town, Carrickfergus, entirely exempt from the first part of the Act.

Proceedings under Peace Preservation Act, 1870.

It appears from this table that of the 8 counties wholly or partly proclaimed under the special provisions of the Act in 1874 and 1873, there has been a decrease of proceedings under the Act, in 1874 as compared with 1873, of 72—reducing the number in Mayo from 92 to 2, in Cavan from 31 to 11, in King's county from 32 to 11, and in Meath from 81 to 57. In Westmeath there was an increase of 1, and in Limerick an increase of 96, of which 95 cases were those of closing public-houses by order of the Lord Lieutenant.

The town of Belfast and parts of the counties of Antrim and Down, which were specially proclaimed in August and September, 1872, owing to the party riots in Belfast, and which showed a marked diminution of proceedings (from 109 in Belfast and Antrim and 9 in Down—or 118—in part of 1872, to 31 in both counties during the whole of 1873), were entirely released from the special proclamation in 1874, but continue subject to the restriction as to the use of arms.

Returns have been received of the number of inquests held by the Coroner of each district, whether in his own or other districts, with the verdicts found by the jury. The returns further distinguish, in the case of children under seven years of age, the legitimate from the illegitimate. Coroners' Inquests.

The returns distinguish the sex of the body on which the inquest was held, and it appears that there is a much greater sacrifice of men and boys by violent death than of women and girls, the inquests on men and boys being 2,094 as compared with 924 on women and girls, and this difference occurs in every class of verdict.

Ages of deceased compared with population at such ages.

The classification of the inquests according to age of the person on whom the inquest was held is shown in the following table, and is compared with the proportion of population at the same age :—

INQUESTS CLASSIFIED AS TO AGE OF DECEASED, AND COMPARED WITH POPULATION AT SAME AGE.	Total Number of Inquests.	Proportion at each Age to Total Number ascertained.	Proportion of Total Population at corresponding Ages.*	Proportion of Inquests less than Proportion of Population.	Proportion of Population less than Proportion of Inquests.

16 years and under 60,	1,519	52	56	4	–
60 years and above,	881	30	9	–	21

It appears from this table that the age-periods at which inquests are excessive are those of infants (1 year and under) and aged persons (60 years and above). In the case of infants the proportion is 7, amongst the aged it is 30, and in both cases it is above three times the proportion to be expected, 2 and 9 per cent.

In connexion with the question of the effect of illegitimacy as productive of infanticide and death amongst children, statistics have been obtained in the case of 317 out of the above 396 children, 7 years and under, on whom inquests have been held, and the result is shown in the following table :—

Inquests on illegitimate compared with those on legitimate children.

„ „ Girls,	69	3	100	31	31

In this table the number of verdicts on children where legitimacy or illegitimacy is ascertained is compared with the number on the illegitimate, and the excess of inquests on illegitimate is shown by calculating the total number that would be held on the several classes of children if the total inquests bore the same proportion to those on illegitimate children, as the proportion of total births to illegitimate births (100 to 2·9) as ascertained by the Registrar-General for Ireland, in his annual Report for 1869.

It appears that the excess of inquests on illegitimate infants, whether boys or girls, is 94 per cent. In the case of boys between 1 year and 7 years, the excess is 66 per cent. : in the case of girls of those ages the excess is only 31 per cent.

* The proportions for this column are estimated from the latest published proportions of the population of the various ages, in the Report of the Census Commissioners, in which the age periods are different from those in this table.

In the following table Coroners' inquests in Ireland in 1874 are compared with those in England and Wales in 1873 :—

Verdicts of Coroners in Ireland in 1874 compared with those in England and Wales in 1873.	Number in Ireland in 1874.	Number in 1873 in a portion of England and Wales equal to that of Ireland.	Actual Difference.		Difference per Cent.

Death from excessive drinking,	130	95	–	35	–	27

The leading characteristic of the comparisons in this table is, that the entire number of inquests in Ireland was 3,018, being 2,988, or 50 per cent., less than 6,006, the corresponding number in England and Wales. If we deduct the verdicts of death from causes not specified in the returns, and the verdicts of found dead, the English excess is caused mainly by two causes—by the great excess of accidental deaths, 2,564, as compared with the Irish number, 978 (arising from the greater density of town population and greater use of railways and machinery), and by the great excess of suicides, 647, as compared with the Irish number, 440.

The most unfavourable features of these statistics, as regards Ireland, are in the number of deaths from excessive drinking, 130, as compared with the proportionate English number of 95 ; in deaths from want, cold, and exposure, 92 in Ireland, as compared with the English number, 69 ; and in murders other than infanticide, 32, as compared with the English number, 19.

The apprehension, trial, and punishment of criminals.

After the statistics of Coroners' inquests, the statistics relating to the apprehension, trial, and punishment of criminals, come to be treated.

With regard to persons dealt with summarily, the Police tables give complete information as to the number apprehended, the number punished, and the nature of the punishment. But in the case of persons proceeded against by indictment, the Police supply only the number apprehended and the disposal of them prior to trial. With regard to the number actually tried, or discharged for want of evidence or otherwise, the number acquitted on trial or punished, and the nature of the penalty, statistics have been made up, as in former years, from returns by the Local Inspectors of Gaols for each county, compiled from the records of the Clerks of the Crown and of the Peace. As, in the first place, the apprehension often takes place a considerable time after the commission of the crime, and as, in the second place, the trial sometimes does not occur in the same year as the apprehension, the statistics as to trials necessarily do not agree in any one year with the Police accounts of persons sent on for trial, although in a series of years there is a substantial agreement between the two classes of returns.

As in the previous chapter, persons proceeded against are divided into two classes—those dealt with by indictment at Assizes, the Dublin Commission Court, and Quarter Sessions, and those dealt with summarily by Magistrates.

Disposal of persons apprehended, prior to trial, compared with like disposal in England and Wales.

The following summary shows the number of persons apprehended by the Police for indictable offences in Ireland in 1874, with the manner of their disposal before trial, together with the corresponding statistics for England and Wales in 1873 for comparison :—

Committed for want of sureties, . .	42	32	10	1·0	1·0	0·1	0·1

The larger proportion of those discharged for want of prosecution in Ireland, 7 per cent. of men and 18 per cent. of women, as compared with 6 per cent. of men and 10 per cent. of women in England and Wales, arises from the system of public prosecutions under the direction of the Attorney-General in Ireland. In Scotland in 1870 14 per cent. of men and women taken together were discharged without being tried, and 11 of the 14 per cent. by the Lord Advocate, who occupies a position in Scotland as to prosecutions somewhat similar to that occupied by the Attorney-General in Ireland.

The proportion discharged for want of evidence in England and Wales, 22 and 27 per cent., is larger than the proportions of 13 and 18 per cent. in Ireland; the difference being, no doubt, caused by the prosecutions conducted by private parties, as in England, failing oftener from want of evidence than when conducted by public prosecutors, as in Ireland.

The great difference in the proportion of those bailed for trial, 39 per cent. of men and 20 per cent. of women, in Ireland, as compared with 7 per cent. of men and 5 per cent. of women in England and Wales, with a corresponding difference in the opposite direction in the number committed for trial, indicates very clearly the less serious character in Ireland than in England and Wales of the crimes for which, or the more doubtful character of the evidence on which, parties are made amenable to the Superior Courts.

In the following table the number and disposal of persons proceeded against by indictment in the two countries are compared :—

Number and disposal of persons apprehended compared with like disposal in England and Wales.

Number and Disposal of Persons Tried at Dublin Commission Court, Assizes, or Quarter Sessions.	Ireland, 1874.	Number in a portion of Population of England and Wales equal to that of Ireland, 1873.	Proportion disposed of.

The total returned as tried in this table, does not necessarily agree with those returned by the Police as bailed or committed for trial; for in all cases of persons committed or bailed for trial in the last half of the year in the case of Assizes, and the last quarter of the year in the case of Quarter Sessions, the trial takes place in a subsequent year to the committal; again, where persons die in prison, or do not attend in discharge of their bail, whilst they would be committed or bailed for trial, they would never be actually tried.

Proportion of acquittals to convictions in Ireland compared with proportion in England and Wales.

The proportion of acquittals in Ireland, 30·7 per cent., is large as compared with the 21·4 per cent. in England and Wales; but it appears from the following table, that this is above the average of acquittals for Ireland since 1865, which was 26·3. The minimum, in 1870, was only 22·8, nearly corresponding with the proportional number in England and Wales.

Proportion of acquittals to convictions in France.

At the Court of Assizes in France in 1872 the acquittals were 23·7 per cent.

Convictions and acquittals for a series of years.

With regard to persons actually tried by indictment at Assizes, Dublin Commission Court, and Quarter Sessions, the following table sets forth the numbers for a series of years, and shows also the results of the trial :—

Disposal of Bills of Indictment by Grand Juries.

The result of proceedings before Grand Juries in criminal cases is shown by the returns of the Clerks of the Crown and Peace. The difference between the number, 3,438, actually tried, and 4,130 returned by them as for trial in Superior Criminal Courts, is 692, and the grounds of discharge of these is thus accounted for by them :—

No bill found by Grand Jury,	331
No prosecution,	322
Bailed and not tried,	39
Total,	692

These figures indicate the function discharged by Grand Juries in stopping prosecutions, to the extent of 8 per cent. of the persons for trial. In England and Wales the number of persons against whom no bills were found was 4·7 per cent. of the persons for trial.

Court for consideration of Crown cases reserved.

In the Court for the consideration of Crown cases reserved, constituted by Stat. 11 & 12 Vic., c. 78, corresponding to the Court for Criminal Appeal in England, there were 5 cases before the Court in 1874, including 1 only partly heard in 1873. In 2 the conviction was affirmed, and in 3 cases reversed.

Sentences compared with preceding years in Ireland, in England and Wales, and in France.

In the following table the sentences passed on those convicted in 1874 are shown in detail, and in comparison with the sentences on the average of the five preceding years :—

It thus appears that 2,367 persons were punished for serious offences in 1874; the remaining 15 included in 2,382 on preceding page as convicted, were detained as insane. The 49 sent to reformatory or industrial schools are classified in the table according to the gaol punishments, and then appended separately as of importance in connexion with the reformatory system for juvenile criminals.

In England and Wales a different method of classification is pursued. Those sent to reformatories are not included in the detail classification for the preliminary sentence which they receive. The average total, 2,781, includes the average number of 48 so sent as a distinct class.

Irish and English sentences of imprisonment and penal servitude compared.

It appears from the above table that the number punished for serious offences in Ireland (2,367) is less than the average (2,633) for five years ended 1873, and much less than the corresponding English average (2,781) for the same five years.

The excess in the English average is in the heavier classes of punishment. Thus, the numbers sentenced to imprisonment for six months and under was, in Ireland, 1,306, the English average, 1,326, showing only a slight excess in the English number. But in the sentences for one year and above six months, the English number was 696, more than double the Irish, 309. In sentences for two years and above one, the English number, 270, is still more in excess, being above three times the Irish number, 78.

* Forced labour, not perpetual, and reclusion.

In penal servitude, the English number (384) is largely in excess of the Irish number (213). The Irish number is below the French proportional figure for population of Ireland—263 sentenced to forced labour or reclusion.

The number of Irish sentences of death in 1874 (3), which is the same as the average of the previous five years in Ireland, is still less than (4) the average of five years ended 1873 in a portion of the population of England and Wales equal to that of Ireland.

Irish and French sentences of death and of imprisonment for life compared.

It is, too, below the proportion to be expected in Ireland (4½) from the number of sentences to death in France in 1872.

That this larger amount of sentences of death in France than in Ireland does not arise from executions there being adopted in cases where penal servitude for life would be adopted in Ireland, is shown by other figures in the table; the sentences of imprisonment for life in France giving a proportional figure of 22 for a population equal to that of Ireland, while the Irish figure is 0 in 1874 and 1½ on an average of the preceding five years.

Particulars of cases of persons sentenced to death.

There were 3 persons sentenced to death in Ireland in 1874, of whom none were executed, the sentence having been commuted as stated below:—

Antrim.—Jane Mills—murder of her child—commuted to 7 years' penal servitude.
Londonderry.—David Drifles—poisoning his wife—penal servitude for 20 years.
Tipperary.—Ellen Davy—murder of her illegitimate female child—penal servitude for 20 years.

The cases in which persons charged with murder were found insane were:—

Cork county.—John Higgins—killing an old woman.
Dublin city.—S. Morley—throwing a child overboard on journey from Liverpool to Dublin.
Meath.—Patrick Duffy—murder of his brother, John Duffy.

Convictions and punishments of persons proceeded against summarily.

The following table shows the number of persons proceeded against summarily, with the number discharged and the number convicted, in Ireland, in 1874, as compared with 1873:—

PERSONS PROCEEDED AGAINST.	Total of both Sexes, 1874.	1874.		1873.		Proportion per cent. to Total.

Number discharged, . .	35,438	26,809	8,629	24,871	7,744	14·1	13·4	22·4	20·5

From this table it appears that of 189,951 men and boys proceeded against, 26,809 or 14·1 per cent. were discharged and 85·9 per cent. convicted; and of 38,550 women and girls proceeded against, 8,629 or 22·4 per cent. were discharged, and only 77·6 per cent. convicted.

In the criminal statistics of preceding years the statistics showed a complete distinction as to sex up to the proceedings of persons sent for trial. In the forms since 1872, this distinction has been extended to the results of the trial, so as to allow of a comparison of the mode in which the sexes are dealt with at trial and in subsequent punishments.

The statistics for 1874 showed a slightly larger proportion of men than of women prosecuted on unsatisfactory evidence, only 7·1 per cent. of the cases of the prosecution of women and girls having been stopped by Grand Juries for insufficient evidence, while no less than 8·3 per cent. were stopped in the case of men and boys. In the sentences, the proportion of women sentenced to penal servitude, 9·9 per cent., is very much greater than the proportion of men, 5·6.

Punishments for offences determined summarily of men and boys, compared with those of women and girls.

In the following table, the punishments inflicted summarily on men and boys and on women and girls are set out for comparison:—

This table indicates a much larger proportion of commitments, as compared with minor punishments, amongst women than amongst men, the former being 21·6 per cent. and the latter only 7·3 per cent., showing a disparity of 14·3 per cent. The number fined present an opposite contrast, the men fined being 84·7 per cent. of the persons convicted and the women only 60·8 per cent.

Punishments for offences determined summarily of men and boys, compared with those of women and girls.

These great differences arise partly from the offences of this class being to a large extent violations of Roads Act, Hackney Carriage Acts, and Nuisance Acts, matters of mere discipline, which men from their employment are more likely to commit than women, and for which fines are either the only or the suitable punishment. Again, amongst the classes prosecuted for offences for which summary convictions take place, men are generally better able to pay fines than women, and so more likely to escape imprisonment.

Proceedings for offences disposed of summarily in Ireland compared with those in England and Wales.

The following table shows the punishments for offences determined summarily in Ireland in 1874, compared with those in England and Wales in 1873 :—

The most remarkable feature in this table is the extent to which fines are resorted to as a punishment in Ireland. The number of fines imposed in an equal population is 85,533 in excess in Ireland, the English proportionate number being only 70,796, whilst the Irish number of cases where fines were imposed was 156,329.

CHAPTER III.—CRIMINALS AND OTHERS IN CONFINEMENT AND KNOWN CRIMINALS AT LARGE.

The statistics of persons in confinement include—in addition to actual criminals—persons accused of crime, debtors, children detained in industrial schools to prevent their falling into crime, and lunatics who show an intent to commit a crime and are dangerous. They do not include idiots or lunatics detained by order of the Lord Chancellor, or upon medical certificate for the purpose of cure.

Admissions in course of 1874.

The number of admissions into the various places of confinement in the course of 1874 is shown in the following table:—

Admissions to Places of Detention in 1874.	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Total.	Per cent.
Total in all Ireland,	31,649	16,620	48,269	100·

Into Reformatory Schools,	234	65	299	0·6
Into Convict Prisons,	172	78	250	0·5

The number of admissions to gaols and bridewells, compared with the number of persons in custody at the end of the year, shows that the commitments are for short periods.

From this table it appears that there were 48,281 admissions into places of confinement in all Ireland in the course of 1874. But, as the children received into reformatories, and some of the lunatics received into asylums, were previously confined in bridewells and gaols, and are simply transferred therefrom to those places, these admissions do not represent so many separate commitments. Much less do they represent distinct individuals, as the same person is often the subject of several committals to gaols and bridewells in the course of one year. The figures of the table indicate the relative importance with regard to commitments considered simply numerically, of the different places of confinement.

The distribution of the persons in confinement, among the different places of detention, is shown in the following table:—

Criminals, &c., under Detention at end of 1874.	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Total.	Per cent.

In Reformatories,	879	221	1,100	8·2
In Bridewells,	56	16	72	0·5

It appears from this table that at the close of the year 1874 there were 13,433 persons in the different places of confinement in all Ireland, either for prevention or for punishment, and that the persons in confinement who have been detained to prevent them from falling into crime rather than as punishment, without considering the juvenile criminals in reformatories as belonging to this class, amounted to 8,610, (viz., 4,569 children in industrial schools, and 4,041 lunatics,) or considerably more than half of the entire number in confinement.

The county and town gaols included in these tables are 38 in number. They are not divided into county, borough and liberty prisons, as in England and Wales. Only 4 of the 33 boroughs in Ireland have distinct gaols, viz.:—Dublin, which has 2; Cork, Limerick, and Drogheda, which have 1 each. There are 2 county gaols in Tipperary, 1 at Nenagh and 1 at Clonmel, for the North and South Ridings respectively. Only 5 boroughs, with gaols in common with adjoining county, have distinct taxation for gaols, viz.:—Belfast, Carrickfergus, Galway, Kilkenny, and Waterford.

Gaols.

The total number of commitments of all kinds to county and town gaols in 1874 was 38,580.

Women and Girls,	14,001	12,697	1,304	–

This table shows a marked increase in the number of commitments of both men and women in 1874, following an increase of 3,377 in 1873. The total number, 38,570, is very large compared with 32,870, the number in 1864.

The number of commitments to gaols in Ireland during 1874, classified according to grounds of commitment, with the proportion per cent. of each class to the total commitments, as compared with the proportion per cent. of the similar classes in England and Wales in 1873, is shown in the following summary:—

For debt and on civil process,	90	85	5	0·3	5·4	–	0·6
Under Lord Lieutenant's Warrant,	–	–	–	–	–	–	–

Upon this table it is to be observed, that in both countries the commitments arise mainly from summary convictions, which in Ireland amount to 90 per cent. in the case of women and girls, and 78·3 in the case of men and boys. The differences between the two countries are as follow:—The proportion of men and boys summarily convicted, or committed for trial, or convicted at Assizes and Quarter Sessions, of those remanded and discharged, and of those committed for military and naval offences, is greater in Ireland than in England and Wales; and the proportion of men and boys committed for debt and on civil process, and for want of sureties, is greater in England and Wales than in Ireland; whilst in the case of women and girls, the proportion highest in Ireland is in those convicted summarily, and in all the other classes of commitments the proportions in England and Wales are highest.

In the gaol statistics for 1874, the distinction between ordinary criminals, on the one hand, and persons committed for debt or on civil process, or for military and naval offences, on the other, is uniformly carried out. Of the latter classes there were committed in 1874:—

	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Total.
Military and Naval Offences,	722	–	722
Debt and Civil Process,	85	5	90
Total,	807	5	812

Deducting these from the total commitments, we get the number of commitments of ordinary criminals in the year:—

Men and Boys,	23,762

Gaols.

With regard to these ordinary criminals, the tables set forth, for each gaol, the age and sex, the birthplace, the degree of instruction and the occupation, the number remanded and discharged, and of all others the number who had, and the number who had not, been previously committed to any prison. The new column added in 1871 shows the number of persons, other than those remanded and discharged, who, when previously convicted, had received a sentence of transportation or penal servitude.

In setting forth the number of commitments, persons who were remanded and discharged as presumably innocent, may be assumed to form a small, if any, part in the number of re-commitments. Of this latter class, there were, in 1874—

Total,	2,560

The number of commitments of ordinary criminals other than those remanded and discharged is, accordingly—

Men and Boys,	21,744
Total,	35,198

Of these, it may be estimated that 14,288, or about 41 per cent., were never previously in prison, and 20,910, or about 59 per cent., had been previously committed with more or less frequency; showing at once that the greater number of the commitments was of habitual criminals, including amongst this number some who had, of course, become so during the year.

Re-commitments.

In consequence of this characteristic, it becomes important to trace the degree of frequency of the re-commitments, and this is done in the following table:—

Number of Times in which Persons were Previously Committed.	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Total of both Sexes.	Proportion per cent. to the Total of each Sex.
				Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.
Total number of re-commitments,	10,594	10,316	20,910	100·	100·
Once,	3,397	1,712	5,109	32	17
Twice,	1,705	1,114	2,819	16	11
Thrice,	952	740	1,692	9	7
Four times,	668	524	1,192	6	5
Five times,	451	524	975	4	5
Seven times and above five,	654	945	1,599	6	9
Ten times and above seven,	696	1,107	1,803	7	10
Above ten times,	2,071	3,650	5,721	20	36

The frequency of re-commitments is shown in a marked manner by this table. A large proportion of the re-commitments of men (20 per cent.) were cases which had been preceded by 10 or more commitments, and 37 per cent. were of men who had been previously committed 5 times or upwards. Amongst the women, the proportions are more remarkable: 36 per cent. of the re-commitments amongst them were of women who had previously been committed upwards of 10 times, and 60 per cent. were of women who had been previously committed 5 times or upwards.

The results indicate very plainly that some further legislation is required in dealing with habitual criminals, especially in the case of women committed above 10 times. Such cases appear fitted for an extension to adults of the habitual criminal class, of the Reformatory system, which has been so successfully applied to young persons.

The statistics of commitments of persons not previously committed to any prison, afford the best gaol test of the amount of fresh crime in the year. In these figures each commitment indicates a distinct criminal.

Gaols.

First commitments to gaols.

The following table shows the number of persons estimated as having been committed to gaols for the first time in 1874, compared with those of the same class in 1873 :—

PERSONS COMMITTED FOR FIRST TIME.	1874.	1873.	Actual Difference.		Difference per cent.
			Number in 1874 less than in 1873.	Number in 1873 less than in 1874.	Number in 1874 less than in 1873.	Number in 1873 less than in 1874.

Women and Girls, .	3,138	3,690	552	–	18	–

Considered as an index of the amount of fresh crime within the year, the figures of 1874, as to men, contrast unfavourably with those of 1873. There were no less than 1,758, or 16 per cent., more first committals of men to gaols in 1874 than in 1873. On the other hand, there was a decrease of 550, or 18 per cent., in the number of women committed for the first time.

Number of Convicts amongst the re-commitments in Ireland and in England and Wales.

The column already referred to, showing among the re-commitments the number of persons who when previously convicted had received a sentence of transportation or penal servitude, throws light upon the repressive efficacy of those punishments. There were 118 men and 94 women of this convict class in the Irish re-commitments; whilst in an equal population in England and Wales there were 186 men and 55 women convicts amongst the re-commitments.

In the following statistics relating to ordinary criminals committed to gaol in 1874, the persons who were remanded and discharged are included; and a comparison, under each head of information, is instituted between the English and the Irish figures.

Ages of prisoners in gaols.

The following summary shows the age and sex of the persons (other than debtors and persons charged with military and naval offences) committed to the different county and county of city or of town gaols in Ireland in 1874, together with the proportion per cent. of each sex at the different age-periods to the total number of each sex, as compared with the corresponding proportionate numbers in England and Wales in 1872–73 :—

Gaols.

Birthplace of prisoners.

It appears that the Irish proportion is in excess of the English between 21 and 30—in men as 37·2 per cent. is to 30·5 per cent., and in women as 42·5 per cent. is to 31·0 per cent. In the case of girls between 16 and 21, the English proportion is in excess of the Irish as 14·8 per cent. is to 11·0 per cent.

The birthplace of the ordinary criminals confined in the different county and county of city and of town gaols in Ireland in 1874, together with the proportion per cent. of those born in each country to the total, as compared with the corresponding proportions in England and Wales for 1872–73, will be seen in the following table :—

BIRTHPLACE.	Total of both Sexes.	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Proportion per cent.
				Men and Boys.		Women and Girls.
				Ireland, 1874.	England and Wales, 1872–73.	Ireland, 1874.	England and Wales, 1872–73.

Colonies and East Indies,	48	35	13	0·1	0·4	0·1	0·4

These figures show that of the ordinary criminals there was only 1·6 per cent. of women and girls, and only 3·4 per cent. of men and boys not of Irish birth in Irish gaols in 1874, whilst in England and Wales in 1872–73 there were 24·6 per cent. of women and girls and 16·0 per cent. of men and boys in English prisons not born in England and Wales, and of these strangers no less than 20·4 per cent. of the women and girls and 11·5 per cent. of the men and boys were of Irish birth.

Different distribution of the sexes of persons of Irish birth in the more criminal parts of England and Wales.

This difference of proportion arises, in part at least, from the different distribution of the sexes of Irish birth in the more or less criminal districts in England and Wales. The women exceed the men of Irish birth in England and Wales by 2,589, and in Lancashire and Cheshire by 15,484, and in London by 10,278. Lancashire, however, contains some of the most criminal parts of England and Wales. The criminality of Manchester reaches 178 in the 10,000, while that of all England is only 30 in the 10,000 of the ages to which persons of Irish birth appear from the Census to belong. For offences disposed of summarily, Liverpool reaches 1,343 in the 10,000, as compared with 389 in the 10,000 of such ages in England and Wales. London, again, is unfavourably above average for crime, both in indictable offences and in offences disposed of summarily.

Degree of instruction of prisoners.

The following summary gives the degree of instruction of ordinary criminals in gaols in Ireland in 1874, with the English proportionate number for 1872–73 for comparison :—

DEGREE OF INSTRUCTION.	Total of both Sexes.	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Proportion per cent.
				Men and Boys.		Women and Girls.

Superior instruction,	179	161	18	0·7	0·2	0·1	–

It appears from this table that of the ordinary criminals committed to Irish gaols in 1874, a large proportion were wholly uneducated. Of the men and boys 37·4 could neither read nor write, the proportion in England of this class in 1872–73 being considerably lower, viz., 31·3. The difference in the numbers of those who could read and write well in the two countries is striking—in Ireland the proportion of this class to the total number of men committed being 43·0 per cent., while in England and Wales it was only 3·8. There is also a marked difference, of an opposite kind, in the numbers of those who received an imperfect education. In England and Wales 64·4 per cent. of the men and boys could read or read and write imperfectly; in Ireland only 18·2 per cent. were of this class.

In the case of women and girls, it appears that in Ireland the largest proportion—more than a half (54·8 per cent.)—were wholly uneducated; while in England and Wales only 38·2 per cent. were wholly ignorant. There is a similar striking contrast between the two countries in the case of women and girls who could read and write well as appeared in the corresponding class of men and boys. In Ireland 21·9 per cent. of the women and girls were of this class, while in England and Wales only 1·0 of the women and girls could read and write well. It thus appears that in both countries a very large proportion of the criminals committed to gaols are wholly ignorant. This is especially true of the women and girls committed to Irish gaols.

The Irish National School system seems to be successful for the class that falls within its reach; but the want of compulsory education leaves a considerable substratum not reached by the Irish National system, allowing a wholly ignorant class to grow up who form such a large proportion of those committed to prison.

In the following table the various occupations of the ordinary criminals in the gaols of the two countries are set forth :— Occupation of prisoners in gaols.

Foremen and overlookers of labour,	230	228	2	1·0	0·1	–	–
Professional employments,	141	121	20	0·5	0·3	0·2	–

It will be observed that more than half the men and boys committed to gaols as ordinary criminals in both countries are labourers—the proportion in Ireland in 1874 being 53·2, and in England and Wales in 1872–73 55·0 per cent. It will also be observed, that in Ireland nearly three-fourths of the women in the gaols, and in England nearly half, are either prostitutes or else returned as having no occupation. No less than 32·5 per cent. are of the former class in Ireland, and 40·9 of the latter; whilst in England and Wales the proportions are 18·9 prostitutes and 29·6 of no occupation.

It appears, too, from the above figures, that the proportional number of men employed as domestic servants is larger amongst prisoners in Ireland than in England and Wales, while the reverse is the case with regard to women servants; the English proportion of women servants is to be borne in mind, as arising from the tax on men servants in England, and the greater proportion of female servants in consequence.

Gaols.

Total number in confinement in gaols.

The following summary shows the number of prisoners detained in gaols in Ireland during 1874, the number removed, discharged, or otherwise disposed of, and the number in custody at the close of the year; with the corresponding information for England and Wales in 1872–73, for comparison :—

PRISONERS IN GAOLS.	Ireland in 1874. Total.	Number in a portion of the Population of England and Wales in 1872-73 equal to that of Ireland.	Actual Difference.		Difference per cent.
			Irish Number less than English proportionate Number.	English proportionate Number less than Irish Number.	Irish Number less than English proportionate Number.	English proportionate Number less than Irish Number.
					Per cent.	Per cent.

Remaining at close of year, ...	2,518	4,017	1,499	–	37·0	–

In this summary it appears that while there is a larger number committed in Ireland during the year (38,570) than in a corresponding portion of the population of England and Wales (37,406) by 1,164, or 3 per cent., the number under detention at the end of the year is only 2,518 as compared with 4,017 for the English proportionate number, showing 1,499, or 37 per cent. less. As the total number under detention in both countries is as nearly as possible equal, this difference indicates shorter punishments in Ireland than in England and Wales, corresponding with the statistics of punishments and of minor and serious offences already referred to.

The following summary shows the number of persons the gaols in Ireland are constructed to contain, the greatest number confined at one time in 1874, and the daily average number in the year 1874, with corresponding information for England and Wales proportioned to population, for comparison :—

CAPACITY OF GAOLS AND NUMBER IN CONFINEMENT AT ONE TIME.	IRELAND, 1874.			Number in 1872-73 in a portion of the Population of England and Wales equal to that of Ireland.	Actual Difference.		Difference per cent.

Daily average number of prisoners in the year, .	2,016	774	2,790	4,018	1,228	–	31	–

From this summary it appears that the gaol accommodation in England and Wales is larger than in Ireland, the excess for a portion of the population equal to that of Ireland being no less than 956 separate cells, or 16 per cent., compared with the Irish number. It also appears that the daily average number of prisoners out of a portion of the population of England and Wales equal to that of Ireland is 4,018 against 2,790 in Ireland, or an excess of 31 per cent., indicating the less serious sentences, and, consequently, the less serious character of crime in Ireland, made the subject of punishment by imprisonment.

* The figure in the table in the Appendix, 38,676, includes some 7 accounted for amongst those received from other gaols, but not in those sent to other gaols.

The following summary shows the punishments for prison offences in the different gaols in Ireland in 1874, with the corresponding figures for English prisons in 1872–73 :—

Punishments for Prison Offences.	Ireland, 1874.			Proportion of Punishments in England and Wales in 1872-73 in number of Prisoners equal to Irish daily average number.	Actual Difference.		Difference per cent.

Irons and handcuffs, . . .	15	1	16	10	–	6	–	37

From this table it appears that the prisoners in Irish prisons are much less prone to violate the laws of prison discipline than those in English prisons. Thus, in Ireland there were 2,216, or 26 per cent., fewer cases of punishment for prison offences in 1874 than in a corresponding number of prisoners in England and Wales in 1872–73. The cases of confinement in solitary or dark cells were 2 per cent. less frequent; cases of stoppage of diet and other punishments were 35 per cent. less frequent, and cases of whipping 100 per cent. less frequent in Irish than in English prisons. On the other hand, the cases of punishment by irons and handcuffs were 37 per cent. more frequent in Irish than in English prisons.

Sanitary condition.

The following summary shows the number of cases of sickness and death in Irish gaols in 1874, and the number of like cases for England and Wales in 1872–73 amongst an average number of prisoners equal to the Irish daily average :—

Cases of Sickness and Death.	Ireland, 1874.			Proportion of Cases of Sickness or Death in English Prisons in 1872–73 in number of Prisoners equal to Irish daily average number.	Actual Difference.		Difference per cent.

Greatest Number sick at one time, . . .	247	156	403	278	–	125	–	31

It appears from this table that the proportion of deaths in English prisons is 44 per cent. greater than in Irish prisons, whilst the cases of sickness are against Ireland in the proportion of no less than 45 per cent. The infirmary cases and cases of insanity are respectively 67 and 59 per cent. more numerous in Ireland than in England and Wales.

Industrial Schools.

The institutions in which the largest number of persons were in custody at the end of the year were Industrial Schools.

The number of Industrial Schools in 1874, as compared with the number in 1873, is shown in the following table :—

	1874.	1873.	Increase in 1874.
Leinster,	17	15	2
Munster,	25	22	3
Ulster,	7	6	1
Connaught,	9	9	–
Total,	58	52	6

It appears from this summary that there were in all Ireland in 1873 52 schools, and in 1874 58 schools, showing an increase within the year of 6 schools—of which 3 were in Munster, 2 in Leinster, and 1 in Ulster.

Number in confinement.

The following summary shows the number of children under detention in Industrial Schools in Ireland in 1874, and the number discharged, as compared with similar statistics for 1873 :—

CHILDREN IN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS IN IRELAND.	1874.			1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.

Total number under detention in year,	1,892	3,320	5,212	4,764	448	–

Escaped,	6	5	11	14	4	3
Total remaining at close of year,	1,666	2,903	4,569	4,360	209	–

It appears from this table that the number of children admitted to Industrial Schools in Ireland is diminishing each year since 1872; it was 1,532 in 1872; 1,027 in 1873, and 852 in 1874. From the early age at which many of the children are admitted, and the length of time they are consequently detained in the schools, the total number in the schools at the end of each year increases, notwithstanding this diminution. Thus it was 3,761 at the end of 1872; 4,360 at the end of 1873, and 4,569 at the end of 1874.

Ages.

The following figures show the ages of the children placed in these schools in 1874 :—

AGES OF CHILDREN.	Boys and Girls.	Boys.	Girls.	Per-centage of Total.
				Boys.	Girls.
Total,	823	276	547	Per cent. 100·	Per cent. 100·

10 and under 12 years,	235	87	148	31	27
12 years and upwards,	135	67	68	24	13

It appears from these figures that 60 per cent. of the girls and 45 per cent. of the boys are brought under careful training in these schools at the early age of under ten years.

The classification of the children, according to the provisions of the Act under which they are committed, is as follows :—

Industrial Schools. Grounds of committal.

GROUNDS OF COMMITTAL TO INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.	Number committed in 1874.			Number committed in 1873.	Per-centage of Total.
	Boys.	Girls.	Total.		1873.	1874.

Charged before Justices with offences, and committed thereupon to Industrial Schools (sec. 13),	14	2	16	19	2	2

These figures show that it is girls especially who have been rescued from temptation and crime by the Industrial Schools, as they form 66 per cent. (547) of the whole number (823), that the chief ground of committal is begging (42 per cent.) and and the next most frequent ground of committal is destitution or want of guardianship of parents (33 per cent.)

Degree of orphanage.

How completely the schools come in to supply the want of parental care and control appears from the next summary, showing the number of orphans amongst children on admission. The per-centage of orphanage is the same in both years :—

State of education.

The result of orphanage and destitution in producing ignorance is shown by the fact that the number of children who on admission to Industrial Schools could neither read nor write was 496, which gives upwards of 61 per cent. entirely ignorant.

Industrial School systems of Ireland and England and Wales compared.

In the following table the working of the Industrial School system in Ireland is compared with that of England and Wales :—

CHILDREN IN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS IN IRELAND IN 1874, COMPARED WITH THOSE IN ENGLAND IN 1873.	IRELAND, 1874.	Number in a portion of the Population of England and Wales in 1873 equal to that of Ireland.	Actual Difference.		Difference per cent.

Total disposed of during year,	643	346	–	297	–	46
Total remaining at close of year,	4,569	1,658	–	2,911	–	64

In this table the children in the Feltham Industrial School in England, under the special Act (17 & 18 Vic., cap. 169), are not included, as they are committed—not for destitution, but as juvenile criminals, and fall more naturally under the head of Reformatories.

It appears that the Irish commitments during the year 1874 were 35 per cent. in excess of the English proportionate number in 1873. At the close of the year the Irish number was 64 per cent. in excess of the English number.

Lunatic Asylums come next to Industrial Schools in importance, from the number in them of criminal lunatics and dangerous lunatics charged with intent to commit crime.

Industrial Schools. Criminal and Dangerous Lunatics in Asylums. Total number in confinement.

The following figures show the number detained and disposed of in lunatic asylums during 1874 :—

The above summary shows an increase of 169 in the number under detention at the end of 1874, as compared with those at commencement of the year.

Offences which Criminal Lunatics charged with, and which Dangerous Lunatics charged with an intent of committing.

The following summary shows the offences with which criminal lunatics committed to asylums in Ireland in 1874 were charged with having committed, and the offences with which dangerous lunatics were charged with having a purpose to commit :—

OFFENCES OF LUNATICS OR GROUNDS OF COMMITTAL.	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Total of both Sexes.	Proportion per cent.
Total committed during the year,	698	465	1,163	100·

Assaults and riot,	10	1	11	1·0
Offences against human life,	9	2	11	1·0
Vagrants and insane persons without control,	1	6	7	0·6

It appears from this table that the number of lunatics committed as dangerous persons at large having an intent to commit a crime, was 94 per cent.

The following summary shows the judgments or orders under which criminal and dangerous lunatics were committed to asylums in Ireland in 1874 :—

JUDGMENT OR ORDER OF COMMITTAL.	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Total of both Sexes.	Proportion per cent.
Total committed during year,	698	465	1,163	100·
Committed to asylums by Justices as dangerous, under stat. 30 & 31 Vic., c. 118, s. 10,	649	450	1,099	94·4
Transmitted from gaols by Lord Lieutenant's warrant :—

Found or declared insane,	9	1	10	0·9
Acquitted as insane,	6	2	8	0·7
Became insane after committal and before trial,	5	2	7	0·6

It thus appears that 94 per cent. of the lunatics were committed direct to asylums

by Justices as dangerous, with intent to commit a crime, and less than 6 per cent. were sent by Lord Lieutenant's warrant.

The statistics on this subject for England and Wales are not for the persons committed within the year, as in Ireland, but for the whole of the persons under confinement. The following were the proportions in England and Wales in 1873, according to the judgment or order of committal, of the entire body of criminal lunatics in asylums :—

Irish and English Statistics as to Criminal and Dangerous Lunatics compared.

It thus appears that of the entire number of lunatics in asylums in England and Wales in 1873, less than 8 per cent. were committed by Justices as insane, and only 1 in 837 as dangerous, as contrasted with 94 per cent. committed to asylums in Ireland as dangerous.

Difference between Irish and English law as to Dangerous and Pauper Lunatics.

This difference appears to arise from Justices in England and Wales having power, under the Lunatic Asylums Act of 1853, to send a pauper lunatic to an asylum on a certificate that he is deemed to be a lunatic and a proper person to be sent to an asylum (sec. 67), and to send to asylums lunatics (whether paupers or not) wandering at large, not being properly cared for, or being cruelly treated (sec. 68) ; and from the stringent penalties upon medical officers and overseers of the poor, &c., who omit to give notice so as to have the above classes of lunatics brought before Justices.

The Justices have consequently not to wait for evidence "of derangement of mind, accompanied with an intent to commit a crime," in order to commit a lunatic under the powers conferred on them by the English Act of 1837 (1 & 2 Vic., c. 14).

In Ireland Justices have no powers similar to those under the English Lunatic Asylums Act of 1853, of sending lunatics as such to asylums. Their power, under the Irish Act of 1867 (30 & 31 Vic., c. 118), is founded on the earlier English Act of 1837, and not on the later Act of 1853, and is limited to the case of persons who have derangement of mind and intent to commit a crime, and who are dangerous lunatics or dangerous idiots.

These words are more stringent than the corresponding English Act of 1837 (1 & 2 Vic., c. 14), which limits the word "dangerous" to idiots, and allows an insane person to be committed when an intent to commit a crime is proved, though there is no certificate of the person being dangerous.

The fact that the Justices in Ireland have had to commit 1,099 lunatics in the year as dangerous, charged with intent to commit crime, while the Justices in England and Wales had not to commit any under their corresponding statutable power, indicates very plainly the importance of extending to Ireland the preventive provisions of the English Lunatic Asylums Act, 1853, above referred to, and of modifying the provisions of the Act of 1867 (30 & 31 Vic., c. 118), so as to correspond with the English Act of 1837 (1 & 2 Vic., c. 14).

Another difference between the two countries is in the mode of classing criminal lunatics whose sentences have expired. Under the 25th Order of the Lord Lieutenant in Council, of the 18th August, 1870, such lunatics, when transmitted from Dundrum Central Asylum to a District asylum, are no longer included amongst the criminal lunatics in the District asylum to which they are sent. This practice corresponds exactly with that introduced in England and Wales by Statute 30 Vic., c. 12 ; but the English Act has a more extended operation than the Irish Order, and under it all the lunatics sent to District asylums direct from gaols whose sentences had expired, would be treated in the same way as those sent from Dundrum, and omitted from the number of criminal lunatics.

Criminal and Dangerous Lunatics.

In the Lunatic Asylums Act of the present Session, a clause has been introduced to amend the law as to lunatics in Ireland in this respect. The Act enables all lunatics whose sentences have expired to be dealt with in the same way as those sent from Dundrum to a District asylum are dealt with under the 25th Order of the Lord Lieutenant in Council above referred to, and in the same way as all criminal lunatics whose sentences have expired are dealt with in England under Statute 30 Vic., c. 12. In this way, the want of uniformity in law and statistics since the English Act of 1867, will be terminated.

Excluding entirely those committed by Justices as dangerous in Ireland, and including those committed by Justices in England as insane (not distinguished for the current year, but appearing in the total number to be 7 per cent.), it appears that the proportionate number of criminal lunatics committed in England and Wales in 1872–73, was little more than half the number of the same class in Ireland, showing that the English system of having the lunatics committed before an intent to commit a crime can be established, leads to only half the number to be dealt with as actual criminals :—

The following table shows for Ireland the period, whether in asylum or gaol, during which criminal and dangerous lunatics in asylums at the close of 1874 have been held in detention, with the corresponding statistics for criminal lunatics under detention in the course of year in England and Wales in 1873 for comparison :—

The above table has been given for comparison with the corresponding table in the English volume for 1873, from which the per-centages are taken. The marked differences in the comparison are what might be expected from the difference in the administration above explained.

Convict Prisons.

Next to Criminal Lunatics, Convicts come in importance.

There are 4 Convict Prisons in Ireland, 3 for men and 1 for women. Returns for 1874 have been received from the Director, of which summaries are given below.

The total numbers detained and disposed of in 1874 are given in the following table, with the figures of 1873 for comparison :—

Convict Prisons.
Number in confinement.

These figures show the same number of convicts (250) received during 1874 as in 1873. The number is less than half the number received in 1863, eleven years previously, when the number was 540.

The numbers discharged on ticket-of-leave in 1874 were 174, against 190 in 1873. Of the women discharged on ticket-of-leave, two-thirds—50 out of 68—went into the Refuges at Golden Bridge for Roman Catholics and at Harcourt-road for Protestants, showing the satisfactory working of the only form of prisoners' aid society which is yet sanctioned in Ireland. The daily average number of prisoners was 1,151, or 22 more than in 1873. There were only 11 deaths during the year, or 10 per 1,000.

The following figures show the number of cases in which punishment was found necessary, and the nature of the punishment, with the corresponding statistics for 1873 for comparison :—

Punishment for Prison Offences.	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Total, 1874.	Total, 1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.

Solitary or Dark Cells,	25	–	25	29	–	4
Whipping,	6	–	6	8	–	2

There is a decrease in the number of punishments to the extent of 107, following a decrease of 207 in 1873. The punishments appear mainly to be stoppage of diet, the cases of solitary or dark cells being only 25, or 21 per 1,000, and of whipping only 6, or 5·9 per 1,000.

The English return as to Convict Prisons includes convicts received from Scotland (111), and from Gibraltar (93), and 97 convicts whose licences were revoked. Deducting the Scotch number (111), and 7 per cent. of those returned from licences and from Gibraltar (14) for possible Scotch convicts among them, from the total number received in 1873–74 (1,992), we get 1,767 convicts, received during the year, properly belonging to England and Wales. This gives 411 in a portion of the population of England and Wales equal to that of Ireland, whilst the corresponding number in Ireland is only 250.

It thus appears that the number of convicts, or of the most serious class of criminals, is much larger in England and Wales in proportion to the population than in Ireland.

Convicts.

Bridewells.

Number in confinement.

Returns have been received from all the Bridewells in Ireland for the year 1874, with respect to the prisoners detained. The following table gives the summary of them :—

Number of Prisoners confined in Bridewells.	1874.
	Men and Boys.	Women and Girls.	Total.
Total number confined in course of year, . . .	6,076	1,540	7,616

Otherwise received, ...	627	170	797
Remaining in Bridewells at close of year, . . .	56	16	72

To compare the result of this table with the statistics of 1873, the most important figure is the direct commitments by Magistrates, which were 6,338 in 1874, as compared with 5,878 in 1873, showing an increase of 460 in commitments.

Reformatory Schools.

Next to Bridewells come Reformatory Schools, for children under 16 years of age.

In 1874 there were 10 Reformatory Schools in operation in Ireland, 5 for boys and 5 for girls.

Number in confinement.

The following summary shows the number under detention and the number discharged during 1874, with corresponding figures for 1873 for comparison :—

Number and Disposal of Children in Reformatories in Ireland.	1874.			1873.	Increase in 1874.	Decrease in 1874.
	Boys.	Girls.	Total Boys and Girls.	Total.

Died, ...	7	3	10	6	4	–
Remaining in Reformatories at end of year,	879	221	1,100	1,089	21	–

From this table it appears that in 1874 the number of direct committals, 284, was 10 less than in the preceding year. The number re-admitted from licence, 15, showed an increase of 1, and the entire number of those admitted, 299, exceeded those disposed of by 11, so as to raise the number remaining at the end of the year to 1,100.

Of the total, 284, committed to Reformatories in 1874, 219 were boys and 65 girls. This large excess of boys, as contrasted with the large excess of girls noticed in Industrial Schools, arises from boys being allowed greater liberty than girls, and so being more liable to commit thefts and other offences which would render them liable to be sent to Reformatories.

The position of the children committed in 1874 to Reformatories in Ireland, as regards orphanage, is shown in the following table :—

	Boys.	Girls.	Proportion per cent. Boys.	Girls.
Total committed, . . .	219	65	100·	100·
Total orphans, . . .	21	5	10	8
One parent dead, . . .	65	24	30	37
Others, ...	133	36	60	55

Degree of orphanage.

Of the boys 40 per cent. have either one parent dead or both. The degree of orphanage amongst the girls is somewhat greater, amounting to 45 per cent. In the third class of the above summary, there are many whose parents are in prison, or who are otherwise uncontrolled by parents.

Degree of Instruction.

The degree of instruction of children committed to Reformatory Schools is shown in the following summary :—

	Boys.	Girls.	Proportion per cent. Boys.	Girls.
Total committed, . . .	219	65	100·	100·
Neither read nor write, . .	113	26	52	40
Read or read and write imperfectly,	80	33	36	51
Read and write well, . .	26	6	12	9
Superior instruction, . . .	–	–	–	–

Want of education.

The want of education is pointedly shown in this summary. Of the boys committed to Reformatories, 52 per cent., or one-half, were wholly uneducated; only 12 per cent. could read and write well, while the remainder, 36 per cent., had received a small amount of education. Amongst the girls the proportion that could read and write well was 9 per cent.; but 40 per cent. were wholly uneducated, and 51 per cent. could only read, or read and write imperfectly.

The Reformatory systems of Ireland and of England and Wales compared.

In the following table the working of the Reformatory system in Ireland is compared with England and Wales :—

Number and Disposal of Children in Reformatories in Ireland, and in England and Wales.	Ireland, 1874. Total. Total disposed of in course of year, .	288	358	70	–	19	–
Total remaining under detention at end of year, ...	1,100	1,064	–	36	–	3

It appears from this table that, unlike the case of the Industrial Schools, there are more children sent to Reformatories in England and Wales, in proportion to population, than in Ireland, the excess of those received in the year being 67. There were, however, so many more disposed of, that the number in Irish Reformatories at the end of year (1,100) was 36 more than the number in a portion of the population of England and Wales equal to that of Ireland.

The following table shows the number of criminals under 16 years of age committed to gaols in Ireland in 1874, compared with those of England and Wales in 1872–73;

* Including the children under detention in the Feltham Industrial School, under Stat. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 169 (Local).

and the number and per-centage of those who were further sent to Reformatory Schools. Children who are confined in Reformatories must, by Act of Parliament, be previously committed to gaol, and must be under 16 years of age. The proportion of the children who were sent to Reformatory Schools to the total number under 16 years of age who were confined in gaols, is the true test of the application of the Reformatory principle in the two countries.

The Reformatory systems of Ireland and of England and Wales compared.

Commitments of Youthful Criminals in Ireland and in England and Wales.	Total number of Boys and Girls committed to Reformatories.		Total number of Boys and Girls under 16 years of age committed to Gaols.		Proportion of those committed to Gaols who were further committed to Reformatories.
	In Ireland in 1874.	In England and Wales in 1872-73.	In Ireland in 1874.	In England and Wales in 1872-73.	In Ireland in 1874.	In England and Wales in 1872-73.

It thus appears that of the entire number of juveniles under 16 years of age committed to gaol in Ireland, 24 per cent. were further sent to Reformatories; whereas, of the entire number of juveniles under 16 years of age committed to gaol in England, only 16 per cent. were sent to Reformatories. Therefore, the excess of children sent in the year to English Reformatories over those sent to Irish Reformatories results, not from a more thorough application of the Reformatory principle, but from an excess of youthful criminals.

There is, however, still ample scope for the extension of the Reformatory principle even in Ireland, as in the year 1874 less than one-fourth of the offenders who were sent to gaols under 16 years of age, were sent on to Reformatories.

Estimate of the criminal population of Ireland and of England and Wales.

In concluding this chapter respecting criminals under confinement, an estimate of the criminal population in the two countries has been attempted. The number of criminals under confinement in the several places of punishment on a given day is perfectly definite, and readily obtained in the statistics already given. It only remains to summarize the figures for each class of places of confinement in a short table. But with regard to the criminals at large, the numbers are not so easily obtained. In both countries the Police have made returns of all the persons in each Police district known or suspected to be of the criminal classes in the month of April. But as these figures are founded largely upon mere opinion or hearsay, and relate to matters so obviously connected with the vigilance and numbers of the Police, they do not form a perfect basis of comparison between any two countries. From the peculiar circumstance of the Police in Ireland being entirely under central control, and from their greater number, as already pointed out, a comparison with England and Wales, on the basis of these Police returns, must be considered as disadvantageous to Ireland, and as affording an approximation only to the true facts of the case.

Numbers in places of punishment or reform in Ireland and in England and Wales compared.

In the following table the number of persons under detention for criminal reasons in all Ireland on 31st December, 1874, with the number per cent. in each class, is compared with the corresponding statistics for England and Wales on 30th September, 1873.†

* Feltham Industrial School, Middlesex, appears to serve the purpose of both a gaol and a Reformatory, and the total number of commitments to it in 1873 (69) under the Special Act has been added in this table to both the gaol and the Reformatory figures for England.

† In the case of Convict Prisons, on 31st March, 1874.

Numbers in places of punishment or reform in Ireland and in England and Wales compared.

It appears that in Ireland the persons held in confinement for punishment or reform under the law, are more numerous than in a corresponding portion of England and Wales. But in Ireland the proportion of children in Reformatory Schools is 22·8 per cent., as compared with 14·9 per cent. in England and Wales. In England and Wales, on the other hand, the convicts in a portion of the population equal to Ireland are 2,072 in number, as compared with 1,133 in Ireland.

The Police returns of criminal classes at large have been obtained under the three heads of—known thieves, receivers of stolen goods, and suspected persons; and the ages follow the Industrial and Reformatory School period, viz., the number under 16 years and the number above 16 years.

Criminal classes at large.

In compiling returns for the present volume, the Police were directed, as in England, to follow the rule that persons known to have been living honestly for one year at least subsequently to their discharge after any conviction, should not be returned in the class of known thieves and depredators.

In the following table the number of criminal classes at large in Ireland in April, 1874, is contrasted with the corresponding statistics for England and Wales in April, 1873 :—

Criminal classes at large in Ireland and in England and Wales compared.

From this table it appears that, notwithstanding the greater vigilance of the Police in Ireland than in England, the returns of the Police as to criminal persons at large are much more favourable to the former country than the latter. In Ireland the total number, 5,139, is half the total in a corresponding portion of the population of England and Wales, 10,272; the proportion of youthful criminals, 591, is little more than a third of the English figure, 1,434; the proportion of known thieves and depredators, 1,368, is less than a third of the English figure, 4,305; and the proportion of youthful criminals of this class, 170, is only one-fourth of the English figure, 682.

Criminal population (whether at large or in confinement) on a given day in Ireland and in England and Wales compared.

In the following table the total number of criminals on a given day, both in confinement and at large, as compiled from Police returns and returns from gaols, &c., in Ireland and in England and Wales, is compared with the total population:—

	Number in Confinement.	Number at Large.	Total Number of Criminal Persons.	Population.	In every 10,000 of Population.

England and Wales, . .	30,887	45,201	76,088	23,284,269†	32

If we exclude criminal lunatics and dangerous lunatics committed on account of an intention to commit a crime, and exclude children in Industrial Schools, so as to confine our definition of criminals to those in Gaols, Convict Prisons, and Reformatories and criminals at large known to the Police, it appears, according to the above table, that in every 10,000 of the population of England and Wales, 32 persons belong to the criminal classes, while in every 10,000 of the population of Ireland the proportion is only 19.

CHAPTER IV.—COST OF THE REPRESSION OF CRIME.

The returns in this volume show the cost of repression of crime, to compare with the cost as shown in the English Criminal Statistics, under the heads of Police, Persons in Confinement, and Criminal Prosecutions.

In this table the cost of criminal and dangerous lunatics in Ireland and of criminal lunatics in England and Wales has not been included, on account of the great difference in the law on the subject in the two countries, referred to in Chapter III., p. 49.

For a similar reason the cost of Industrial Schools has not been included in this total. These institutions are used in Ireland to a larger extent than in England and Wales, owing to the want of any statutable provision for compulsory education in Ireland, and the smaller amount of education of the poor provided for in Ireland in connexion with out-door relief under the Irish Poor Law.

* Middle of 1874. † April, 1873.

It appears from this table that the sum expended in repressing crime in England and Wales is proportionately less than the corresponding expenditure in Ireland by £611,080 in amount, or 41 per cent.

In a proportionate population in England and Wales the Police cost £583,520, being £635,702, or 52 per cent., less than in Ireland.

Cost in Ireland and in England and Wales compared.

There was £32,840, or 41 per cent., less expended on prosecutions in a proportionate part of England and Wales than in Ireland.

Criminals in confinement, other than lunatics, cost more in England and Wales—the Irish figure, £176,343, being £57,462, or 29 per cent., less.

Police Establishments.

The following summary shows the Police Force in Ireland in 1874, compared with the number in 1873, at the periods of the year stated in the tables :—

CONSTABULARY AND POLICE.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.

Proportion of Police to population in counties.

A column in the first table in Appendix shows the proportion which the number of effective force of Constabulary bears to the population in the various counties, and in towns with a separate Police force, in Ireland. In the following counties the proportion of Police to population is the smallest, as will be seen from the table :—

Londonderry,	7	in every 10,000 of the population.
Down,	8	„ „
Armagh,	10	„ „
Tyrone,	10	„ „
Antrim,	10	„ „

In the following counties in Ireland the proportion of Police is the largest :—

Meath,	40	in every 10,000 of the population.
Tipperary, North Riding,	38	„ „
Westmeath,	38	„ „
Tipperary, South Riding,	36	„ „
King's County,	33	„ „

The proportion of Police—excluding County Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors—to the Census population of Ireland in 1871 was 22 in every 10,000 of the people, while in England and Wales—excluding Superior Officers—in 1873 it was only 12 *

The number of the Royal Irish Constabulary has been decreased by 107 men, the Dublin Metropolitan Police have been decreased by 3 men, making a total decrease of 110 as contrasted with an increase in 1873 of 89 men.

In comparing the Police Forces of Ireland with those of England and Wales, the Royal Irish Constabulary may be considered as corresponding to the English Police in counties, boroughs and dockyards, but differs from the English Police Force in being placed exclusively under the control of the Central Government, and the Dublin Metropolitan Police may be considered as similar to the London Metropolitan Police and the City of London Police taken together.

* The way the proportion is stated in the English Statistics is 1 in 795 on the Census of 1871.

Omission of Local Force in towns.

In former volumes of the Judicial Statistics, from 1863 to 1871, the Local Force of Town Constables and Watchmen, reduced in 1871 to 124 in number, Officers of Health and Inspectors of Nuisances, 138, and Fire Brigade, 81, were included. In 1863 there was in Belfast and Londonderry a large force of local Police discharging regular Police duties. These forces have since been abolished by statute.

The Dublin Fire Brigade duties were discharged in 1863 by the Police, but the Fire Brigade since by statute came under the Dublin Town Council.

The English returns were supposed in 1863 to include the whole Police Force of England; but from the Parish Constables Act, 1872, it appears that there are Parish Constables in England not included in the English volume. Setting these off against the remains of old Local Forces in towns in Ireland, the comparison of Police in the two countries is more correct if confined to the Royal Irish Constabulary and Dublin Metropolitan Police in Ireland, and the London Metropolitan Police and county and borough Constabulary in England and Wales.

Detectives.

In England there is a special class of Detective Officers, the number of which in 1872–73 was 452, a slight decrease having been made upon the number of the previous year. In the Royal Irish Constabulary there is only a Detective Director, and the members of the different branches of the Force are selected, when necessary, to act as detectives; but in the Police of the Dublin Metropolitan Police District there is an entire division of 44 (42 Sergeants, 1 Inspector, and 1 Superintendent,) who are detectives.

Cost of Establishments.

The following table shows the total cost of the Police Establishments in Ireland in 1874, as compared with that for 1873 :—

Cost of Police Establishments.	*1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.

Dublin Metropolitan Police, . .	132,755 0 0	129,632 0 0	3,123 0 0

This table indicates an increase in the total cost of the Police Force in 1874, of £227,735, upon the cost of the preceding year, following an increase of £56,782 in 1873.

Cost of Criminal Lunatics in Asylums.

The cost of criminal lunatics and dangerous lunatics charged with an intention to commit a crime, which has been excluded from the following table for reasons explained at page 56, supra, is £101,961. The corresponding figure in a portion of the population of England and Wales equal to that of Ireland was only £8,876; this extraordinary difference arose from the marked differences in the law as to the power of Justices in respect of pauper lunatics, and as to the treatment of the lunatics whose sentences have expired, pointed out in Chapter III., supra.

Cost of Industrial Schools.

In the case of Industrial Schools, also excluded from the table, the total expenditure returned is £123,613—General Taxes, £55,774; Local Rates, £15,257; other sources, £52,583. In England and Wales the cost in 1873 was £124,282, or for Irish proportion of population £28,247.

Cost of Criminals in Confinement.

with the corresponding cost in a portion of the population of England and Wales in 1873 equal to that of Ireland, allowing for Scotch convicts in English prisons, was as follows:—

COST OF CRIMINAL CLASSES IN CONFINEMENT.	In Ireland in 1874.	In a portion of the Population of England and Wales in 1873 equal to that of Ireland.	In Ireland less than in England and Wales.	In England and Wales less than in Ireland.	In Ireland less than in England and Wales.	In England and Wales less than in Ireland.

It appears from the preceding table that the cost of persons in confinement in Ireland was less than the English proportion under the following heads, to the amount and per-centage stated, viz.,—County and Town Gaols, £25,721 or 20 per cent., Convict Prisons £29,328 or 41 per cent.; and was less in England and Wales than in Ireland to the amount and per-centage stated as follows,—Reformatories, £1,833, or 6 per cent.

The total cost of criminal classes in confinement in Ireland, except lunatics, is less than the English proportion by £53,216 or 23 per cent. The excess in Ireland is, however, entirely in the Reformatory Schools, while in England it is in Gaols and Convict Prisons, indicating the more serious character of the crime there.

Gaols.

The largest item, in the above summary, for Ireland is for County and Town Gaols, and the following summary shows the ordinary expenses in detail, the total costs of Gaols and of officers and prisoners, and the average charge per prisoner in Ireland in 1874, with the corresponding figures for England and Wales in 1873:—

Cost of Prisoners.

4. Clothing, &c., ...	3,618 0 0	1 5 11
Total, ...	98,573 0 0	35 6 7	33 1 7

The ordinary expenditure (£98,573) for 1874 (exclusive of £2,143 for extraordinary) shows an increase of £2,612 upon the similar amount (£95,961) expended in 1873.

It appears from this summary that the total cost per head of each prisoner in Ireland is £35 6*s.* 7*d.*, as compared with £31 1*s.* 7*d.*, the English figure, a difference caused, no doubt, by the daily average number in each prison in Ireland being only 73, while it is 152 in English prisons.

Bridewells.

The total cost of Bridewells for the year 1874 is shown by the following summary of Returns received from Local Inspectors:—

	1874. £	1873. £
1. Building and Establishment Charges, ...	1,805	1,720
2. Cost of Officers, ...	3,840	3,736
3. Cost of Prisoners, ...	867	651

This is entirely defrayed from local rates (except £19 from Bridewell receipts).

Convict Prisons.

As to Convict Prisons, the returns show that the total number of men employed in all the prisons on the establishment decreased by 12, viz., from 188 to 176, and the number of women (36) remains unchanged.

The total expense of the different Convict Prisons, and the annual cost per prisoner, is as follows:—

Total Expenses,	41,242	0	0

Reformatories.

As to Reformatories, the total costs in Ireland are returned as £30,269—£16,897 charged to Imperial Taxes, £7,033 to Local Rates, and £6,339 to other sources. In calculating the corresponding figure for England and Wales, it has been necessary, in addition to the contribution from the Treasury of £68,030, and contribution from parents of £3,239, which are the only items returned in England and Wales, to add a sum of £53,882, to cover the estimated expenditure, from other sources, based on the returned cost of £26 16*s.* 8*d.* per annum of children in the Middlesex department of the Feltham school, to approximate to the true cost and obtain a figure truly comparable with the costs returned in the Irish schools. This gives for Irish proportion of population £28,443.

Cost of Criminal Procedure.

The next item of costs of repression of crime is that connected with criminal procedure. This is distributed under two heads—Criminal Prosecutions and Coroners' Inquests :—

Cost of Procedure (Ireland).*	Total Costs.	Per cent.	Imperial Taxes.	Local Taxes.

The corresponding figures for England and Wales for 1873 are as follows :—

Cost of Procedure (England, &c.)†	Total Costs.	Per cent.	Imperial Taxes.	Local Taxes.
	£		£	£
Total cost,	209,815	100·	127,272	82,543
Prosecutions at Criminal Courts,	127,272	61	127,272	—

Coroners' Inquests.

The important position which the ancient Coroners' tribunal for inquiry and prosecution in cases of sudden or suspicious death appears from these figures to occupy in England and Wales arises from the system of private prosecutions that prevails there. Of the entire expenditure on criminal prosecutions in England and Wales, £127,272, only £3,323 was for Government prosecutions (£1,568 in 168 Mint cases, for issuing base coins and other offences against the currency, and £1,755 for 32 other criminal cases prosecuted on indictment by the Treasury Solicitor), whilst £106,976 was for defraying certain parts of the expenses of private prosecutors in 13,461 prosecutions at the Assize Courts, Central Criminal Courts, and Quarter Sessions, and £16,973 for 17,383 proceedings under the Criminal Justice Act and Juvenile Offenders Act. When the prosecution of infanticide and other murders and manslaughter is intrusted to private prosecutors, the Coroners' tribunal is essential to secure that crimes involving the loss of human life are not compromised or concealed.

In Scotland, where the State, through the Lord Advocate (an officer corresponding to the Attorney-General in Ireland and in England), undertakes prosecutions in general,

* In Ireland, the cost of criminal prosecutions is for the year ended 31st March, 1874, and the cost of Coroners' inquests for the year ended 31st December, 1874.

† In England, the costs of criminal prosecutions are for the year ended 31st December, 1872, and the costs of Mint and Treasury prosecutions are added for the year 1873; and the costs of Coroners' inquests are for the year ended 31st December, 1873.

Coroners' Inquests.

and where the Crown is represented in each locality by an officer, like the Crown Solicitor in Ireland, called the Procurator-Fiscal, under the direction of the Lord Advocate, charged with the prevention of crime, there are no Coroners' inquests. All inquiries into sudden or suspicious deaths are made by the Procurator-Fiscal, and are made without a jury. This officer, besides inquiries into causes of death, discharges the duties which in Ireland are divided between the Assize Crown Solicitor and Sessional Crown Solicitor.

In Ireland, in addition to the ancient English system of prosecuting crime by Judges, Magistrates and Coroners, and the Scotch system of official prosecutions by Crown Solicitors under the Attorney-General, there is a Police force, under central control, twice as numerous in proportion to population as in England and Wales, and also a complete staff of Stipendiary Magistrates, also under central control, more specially charged with the detection and punishment of serious crime than other Magistrates.

A recent rule of the law officers, that where a prisoner is arrested and a prosecution commenced before Magistrates he will not be produced before a Coroner's inquest without a writ of habeas corpus from the Court of Queen's Bench, appears founded upon the principle that once a prosecution is commenced by a responsible authority the object of the Coroners' tribunal to check the compromising or concealing of crimes has come to an end. This circumstance it is essential to notice and bear in mind, as an important modifying circumstance, in comparing the verdicts of Coroners' inquests in Ireland before and after this rule has been acted upon, and in comparing the verdicts of Coroners' inquests in Ireland since the rule, and in England and Wales, where, though the law as to Coroners' inquests is the same, the system of prosecutions is so different.

It is also important to bear in mind, as accounting for a part of the cost of criminal prosecutions in Ireland in excess of the proportion corresponding to that of England and Wales, that the combination of the English, Scotch, and Irish modes of procedure for prosecuting crime in Ireland leads in many important cases to a duplicate course of procedure, as before Coroners and Magistrates, in the same case, which is necessarily attended with immediate expense, and which, leading to unnecessary complication, is sometimes attended with a still larger amount of ultimate expense without any corresponding advantage in securing a more certain administration of justice.

Costs of Criminal Prosecutions.

The new form of return as to costs of criminal prosecutions, settled in 1872, has been continued. It brings the information up to 31st March, 1874. As a large part of prosecutions of the crimes of the preceding year take place at the January Sessions and March Assizes, the expenses for the year ended 31st March more nearly represent the cost of the crime of the calendar year under consideration than was possible with the date in previous returns of expenses, which were for the year ended 1st of October.

COMMON LAW, EQUITY, AND CIVIL LAW.

PART II. JUDICIAL STATISTICS.

THE general arrangement of this Part follows the corresponding portion of the English Report, treating first of the Superior Courts of Common Law and the Superior Courts of Equity, including the Landed Estates Court and the Court of Probate, connected with them as being under the Chancery Appeal Court. Then follow the High Court of Admiralty and the Court of Bankruptcy and the Supreme Courts of Appeal. In this volume, as in other recent volumes, the local Courts are placed last.

The arrangement of the tables in this part of the volume does not materially differ from that of the preceding year.

Superior Courts of Common Law.

The proceedings in Banco in the Superior Courts of Common Law in Ireland in 1874, as compared with those in the preceding year, are shown in the following table:—

Bills of Sale, acknowledgments by Married Women, and Revenue, &c., Cases.

Besides the business common to the three Superior Courts of Common Law at the Plea side, they have each small branches of distinct business. Thus, the Court of Queen's Bench has the registration of bills of sale, under the Bills of Sale Act (17 & 18 Vic., c. 36); the Court of Common Pleas has the acknowledgments of deeds by married women, under the Irish Act for the abolition of Fines and Recoveries (Stat. 4 & 5 Wm. IV., c. 92); and the Court of Exchequer has its ancient jurisdiction in Revenue cases, from which it derives its name.

The business in these matters, as compared with the preceding year, is as follows :—

Motions in Court,	1	9	–	8
Motions for Attachments without Argument,	33	9	24	–

It appears that there has been a large increase, 122, in the number of bills of sale registered, indicating some pressure upon debtors ; there was also an increase of 13 in the acknowledgments of married women, of 7 in the number of Revenue cases, and of 7 in the Legacy and Succession Duty cases.

Court of Queen's Bench.
(Crown Side.)

The Court of Queen's Bench in Ireland has, at the Crown side, a general jurisdiction corresponding to the jurisdiction of the Court of Queen's Bench in England. It has also a jurisdiction peculiar to itself, of fiating the presentments made by the Grand Jury of the county of Dublin for the expenditure of the local tax called Grand Jury cess, in the repairs of roads, expenses of prisons and asylums, and other local purposes, and of fiating the presentments of the Town Council of the city of Dublin, so far as it exercises the powers formerly vested in the Grand Jury of the city of Dublin in respect of Grand Jury cess.

In connexion with these fiscal powers, the Court has jurisdiction over the traverses of presentments of the Grand Jury or Town Council, which are chiefly for new roads and claims for malicious injuries to property. Claims for malicious injury in the city of Dublin amounted to £12.

The Court has also a jurisdiction, peculiar to Ireland, in the case of railway traverses, under the Railways (Ireland) Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vic., c. 70). There were no traverses in 1874.

The ordinary business at the Crown side of the Court of Queen's Bench in 1874, as compared with that in the preceding year, is set out in the following summary. The figures show a large decrease in the business during the year.

The fiscal business of the Court in 1874 and 1873 was as follows :—

This table shows an increase of 30 in the number of presentments, following an increase of 95 in the preceding year, and an increase of £1,288 in the amount fiated, following an increase of £9,083 in the preceding year.

Dissimilarity of the practice and procedure of Superior Courts of Common Law in Ireland and in England.

The English and Irish Law and Chancery Commissioners, in their First Report, 1863, reported that the powers which the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench in England have, under Statute 6 & 7 Vict., c. 20, s. 11, (1844,) of framing rules, did not exist in Ireland, and recommended that the Court of Queen's Bench in Ireland should be provided with the like powers of framing rules to those of the Court in England; and these powers have been conferred by the Act of 1872, introduced by Mr. Heron. Pending the dissussions connected with the change of practice contemplated by the Judicature Act, no general rules have been made.

The same Commissioners unanimously recommended that the systems of practice and procedure of the Courts of Common Law of England and Ireland should, as far as practicable, be assimilated. Bills to effect assimilation having been introduced in several Sessions, the subject was postponed, pending the inquiries of the Judicature Commission, which have ended in the great reform of combining all the English Superior Courts into one Supreme Court of Justice, with united equitable and legal jurisdiction, as effected by the Judicature Act, 1873, which is to come into operation on 1st November, 1875.

Writ and Seal Office.

The issue of writs for the three Superior Courts of Common Law from a Consolidated Writ and Seal Office was established in 1850 by the Process and Practice Act, (Stat. 13 & 14 Vic., c. 18,) and the writs of summons and plaint (English writ and declaration consolidated) are issued in rotation, twenty-five for each of the three Courts, under the provisions of the Irish Common Law Procedure Act, 1853, s. 15.

The number of proceedings in the Writ and Seal Office, other than writs of execution, in 1874, as compared with 1873, was as follows :—

PROCEEDINGS OTHER THAN WRITS OF EXECUTION.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Summons and Plaint returnable to—
Queen's Bench,	6,950	6,563	387	–

Records,	857	1,333	–	476
Total,	22,255	22,171	84	–

The above figures show that in 1874 the number of proceedings other than writs of execution were 22,255, or 84 more than in 1873.

Summonses and plaints, being, as above explained, the first step in an action, indicate the number of civil suits instituted during the year; and the increase in the different classes of summons and plaint, according to amount, is shown in the following table. The largest number of writs in any of the five classes was for sums not exceeding £20—6,809, and the largest increases (385), was in this class. The writs in the first two classes (not over £20, and not over £40), taken together amounted to 12,381, while all the writs for sums over £40, and for no sums specified, only amounted to 8,494. When the local Courts have jurisdiction up to £40, it is remarkable that 60 per cent. of the writs in the Superior Courts should be for sums not over £40.

WRITS OF SUMMONS AND PLAINT.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease 1874.

The number of writs of execution issued was as follows :—

Writs of Capias ad satisfaciendum, . .	200	522	–	322

Total, ...	5,634	5,712	–	78

This table shows a continuance of the cessation of writs on fiats observed in 1873, and a decrease of 322 in writs of capias, reducing the number to 200, while the number amounted to 1,370 so recently as 1872. This great change is to be ascribed to the abolition of imprisonment for debt, under the operation of the Debtors (Ireland) Act of 1872. There was a decrease of 129 in writs of sequestration and other writs, and of 118 in writs of habere, or those for taking possession of land. The number of sequestrations is reduced below (23) the number in 1872. The number of writs of habere, 550, is still above the number (374) in 1872. There was an increase of 490 in writs of fieri facias, following increases of 1,370, 189, and 234 in the same writs in 1873, 1872, and 1871, raising the number from 2,593 in 1870 by 2,283 to 4,876 in 1874. The largest part of this increase took place in 1873 and 1874, and arose from the substitution of the writ of fieri facias for the writ of capias, which in these years diminished, as already noticed, in consequence of the abolition of imprisonment for debt in 1872. The increases in 1871 and 1872, and part of the increases in 1873 and 1874, arose from the use of the writ of fieri facias for the sale by Sheriffs of leasehold and yearly tenants' interests at the suit of judgment creditors.

Attorneys' licences.

The number of Attorneys' licences sealed and entered were :—

In 1874, ...	1,039
Decrease in 1874, . . .	70

These figures show a decrease of 70 in 1874, following decreases of 30 in 1873 and 16 in 1872, in Attorneys' licences sealed and entered.

Proceedings returned by Masters.

The proceedings in the Masters' Offices of the Superior Courts of Common Law in Ireland in 1874, as compared with the preceding year, are shown in the following summary :—

The above table shows an increase of 766 in the number of writs of summons and plaint filed in 1874 as compared with the number in 1873. There was an increase in case judgments of 493, and in cognovit judgments a decrease of 47. In the amount recovered on both kinds of judgments there was an increase of £139,569, following a decrease of £26,453 in the preceding year.

PART II. JUDICIAL STATISTICS.

Superior Courts of Common Law.

Amount recovered.

The distribution of the sums recovered amongst the different classes of judgments is as follows :—

AMOUNT RECOVERED BY JUDGMENTS.	1874. Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Total,	Total, 1873.
	£	£	£	£	£
Total Amount recovered by Judgments on Postea,	12,647	14,195	16,957	43,799	50,740

Total,	170,864	131,681	407,971	710,516	570,947

These figures show a decrease in the sums recovered by judgments on postea, and an increase in the amounts recovered in each of the other classes of judgment, making up the total in the year 1874, already noticed.

Affidavits.

The number of affidavits filed in the year 1874 compared with 1873 was :—

	Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Total.
Decrease „	—	—	—	—

It appears from these figures that there has been an increase of 2,027 in the number of affidavits filed in 1874, following an increase of 1,147 in 1873, the increases in both years took place in all the Courts.

In Ireland there is not, as in England, a fifth Judge in each Court to sit for Chamber business. One of the four Judges, consequently, sits for each Court for ex-parte motions before the sitting of the Court in Banco. Out of term the puisne Judges sit in rotation to hear motions for the three Superior Courts of Common Law.

Proceedings returned by Clerks of Rules.

The following summary shows an increase of 594 in the business before a single Judge on the number (2,494) in 1873. In the Rules Office, in 1874, as compared with the preceding year, there has been a slight increase 48.

Much of the business now transacted in the office of the Clerk of the Rules was, before the Irish Common Law Procedure Act, 1853, transacted by motions in Court, and is therefore placed in the above table.

Superior Courts of Common Law.

There is in Ireland, as in England, an office for the registration of judgments, common to the three Superior Courts of Common Law. In England the office is superintended by the Senior Master of the Court of Common Pleas. In Ireland there is a separate officer, called the Registrar of Judgments.

Registry of Judgments Office.

The number of judgments registered in the Registry of Judgments Office in 1874, as compared with the preceding year, was as follows :—

REGISTRY OF JUDGMENTS OFFICE.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.

Requisitions for liberty to search made by public,	1,664	1,528	136	–

The duty on Negative Searches was reduced, by General Order, on 16th May, 1874, from 16*s.* 6*d.* to 15*s.* Negative Searches on 2*s.* 6*d.* Stamps have been permitted to be made, under General Order, since 16th May, 1874, under the restrictions in the Order mentioned.

The figures in the above table show a decrease in the business of the office in 1874, of 194 in Revivals of Judgments, and 90 in Recognizances and Crown Bonds. The falling-off of 44 in the re-registration of Recognizances and 29 in the re-registration of Crown Bonds arises from their being required to be re-registered only once in five years, under the change of the law as to Crown Bonds and Recognizances introduced by Lord O'Hagan's Act as to the office of Registrar of Judgments (34 & 35 Vic., c. 72).

The change in the duty on Searches led to a falling-off of 1,893 in the Negative Searches on 16*s.* 6*d.* Stamps, and an increase of 1,562 in those on 15*s.* Stamps, and 88 in those on 2*s.* 6*d.* Stamps. There was also an increase of 10 in Judgments registered.

On comparing the number of judgments registered with the number entered up in the three Superior Courts of Common Law, it appears that, whilst 5,873 judgments are returned in the proceedings in Masters' Offices as entered up, no less than 4,915 were registered in the Registry of Judgments Office. When the Judgment Mortgage Act was passed, it was expected by the framers of that Act that the amount of business in the Registry of Judgments Office would be diminished by its operation; but this expectation was founded upon the consideration of judgments only as charges on land, and the provisions of the Irish Bankruptcy Act of 1849, continued by the Act of 1857, requiring judgments to be registered within twenty-one days after being entered up, to secure priority in bankruptcy, were overlooked.

Difference between the Law of Judgments in England and Ireland.

The English and Irish Law and Chancery Commissioners, in their Second Report, in 1866, state that "they found the Law of Judgments of the Superior Courts of Common Law in Ireland, and the practice, process, and procedure therein, to be in a very complicated and unsatisfactory state, and to differ in some material respects from the law of England on that subject." They trace this difference in the law back to the reign of Queen Anne, from the operation of the Penal Act of Stat. 2 Anne, c. 6 (Irish), passed in 1703, and the Act for the Registration of Deeds, 6 Anne (Irish), c. 2 (1707). They state as the result of their inquiries that "it appears that while in England the tendency of the whole course of legislation down to and inclusive of the Act of 1864 (27 and 28 Vict., c. 112), has been to reduce a judgment to a step in the course of procedure for the recovery of a debt, in Ireland, on the other hand, the legislation down to and inclusive of the Record of Title Act, 1865, has been in the opposite direction, and judgments affect land in Ireland prior to and entirely independent of execution."

They further state that "as the difference between the laws of the two countries as regards judgments, is not one of mere practice and procedure, but extends to the law of Bankruptcy, the jurisdiction of the Landed Estates Court, the Registry of Deeds, the law of debtor and creditor, and generally to the law of property in land, the question of the simplification and amendment of the law of Judgments in Ireland could only be satisfactorily disposed of by a Parliamentary Committee, or by a Commission specially constituted for the purpose, with full powers to enter upon all the inquiries necessary for its solution."

Common Law Taxing Office.

There is in Ireland one Common Law Taxing Office for the three Superior Courts, with two Taxing Officers.

NUMBER OF BILLS OF COSTS CERTIFIED.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.

These figures show an increase of 55 in the number of bills of costs certified, the greatest increase being connected with records. The number of bills of costs for records shows an increase of 40, whilst those for assignment of judgments show an increase of 30. The amount certified in 1874 was £47,090, against £48,092 in the previous year, showing a decrease of £1,002.

In Cases of Tort.
Number of applications granted under sec. 6,	74	76	–	2
Giving security for costs, and continuing in superior Courts,	–	2	–	2
Failing to give security, and so remitted,	74	74	–	–

It appears from this table that there was a marked increase (51) in the number of applications to remit cases to the inferior Courts, showing a larger number (255) than in any year since the passing of the Act—1871 (193), 1872 (246), 1873 (204). Of the 194 applications granted, 120 were in cases of contract and 74 in cases of tort. Of the cases in tort none were retained in the superior Courts by giving security for costs.

Disposal of causes at Nisi Prius.

DISPOSAL OF CAUSES AT NISI PRIUS.	Total Causes Tried.	DUBLIN.					On Circuit.
		Queen's Bench.	Common Pleas.	Exchequer.	Consolidated Nisi Prius Court.	Extra Judges at After-Sittings.

The total number of causes tried at Nisi Prius, as appears from this table, was 661 in 1874, showing a decrease of 20 on the number (681) in 1873 ; it shows an increase, however, of 106 on the number (555) in 1872. The increase in the number of cases tried on circuit was 41 above the number in 1873, and 111 above the number in 1872.

Appeals heard at Consolidated Nisi Prius Court.

The Consolidated Nisi Prius Court, besides its ordinary jurisdiction, has a further jurisdiction as a Court of Appeal from the Courts of the Recorder of the City of Dublin and of the Chairman of the County of Dublin.

The statistics of these appeals or rehearings in 1874 and 1873 are as follows :—

APPEALS (REHEARINGS) AT CONSOLIDATED NISI PRIUS.		Entered.	Affirmed.	Reversed.	Case Stated, Settled, Struck out, &c.
From Decree or Dismiss of Recorder of Dublin, or of Chairman of County of Dublin,	1874,	34	19	11	4
	1873,	41	28	11	2

Circuit Business.

Appeals, Traverses.

The Nisi Prius proceedings on circuit have been included in the summaries of the business of the three Superior Courts, as will be seen from the preceding tables.

In Ireland the Judges on circuit have several branches of jurisdiction not exercised by the Judges on circuit in England, viz., appeals in the nature of rehearings from the decisions of the Chairmen of Counties, or Irish County Court Judges, and Recorders; the fiating of the presentments of the Grand Juries of the local tax in Ireland called Grand Jury cess; the hearing of traverses and objections to presentments and to claims for malicious injuries, and also the hearing of railway traverses under the Irish Railway Act, 1851 (14 & 15 Vic., c. 70).

The returns from the Clerks of the Peace and Registrars of Recorders as to appeals on circuit are not so complete as last year, the Clerks of the Peace for Meath, Louth, Galway and Cork city being in default, and the returns for 1873 having to be used for these counties.

The number of appeals on circuit in 1874 and in 1873 was as follows :—

Appeals (Rehearings) on Circuit.		Entered.	Affirmed.	Reversed or Varied.	Settled, Struck out, &c.
From Chairmen of Counties and Recorders,	1874,	586	260	182	144
	1873,	543	234	155	154

The figures show an increase of 43, from 543 to 586, in appeals heard by the Judges on circuit, following upon increases of 45 in 1873, of 25 in 1872 and of 108 in 1871; the number of appeals in 1870, having been only 365.

Presentments Fiated.

The number of presentments fiated by Judges on circuit has been returned for all the counties and ridings as 55,240. The railway traverses against the award of valuators for compensation for land, under the Railways (Ireland) Act, 1851, which have been returned, were only 3 in number, for £794. The traverses other than railway traverses in 1874 returned, were 52 in number, and for the gross amount of £4,423.

Railway and other Traverses.

Election Petitions.

In 1874 there were 8 election petitions :—1 was withdrawn, in 2 cases no security was given, 2 elections were declared valid and 3 declared void. The costs allowed were £1,067.

High Court of Chancery.

Business in Court before Lord Chancellor, Master of the Rolls, and Vice-Chancellor.

The following summary gives a comparative view of the Court business in Chancery for the years 1874 and 1873 :—

Causes and other matters for further directions heard,	20	29	–	9
Total,	1,199	1,417	–	218

This table shows a decrease of Court business in Chancery of 218 proceedings, reducing the number of petitions, bills, informations, and special cases heard and orders made without petitions from 1,417 to 1,199.

Lord Chancellor's Secretary's Office.

The proceedings in the office of the Lord Chancellor's Secretary are given in the following summary, and show a decrease of 55 petitions in 731, or 7 per cent. :—

Lord Chancellor's Secretary's Office.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Total number of petitions,	676	731	–	55
Fiats in chamber,	288	347	–	59

Before Master of the Rolls,	112	99	13	–
Before Vice-Chancellor,	117	96	21	–
Warrants as to Magistrates' Commissions,	158	155	3	–

Of the total number, 676, above stated, 135 were petitions in lunacy, 263 were in matters relating to minors, and the remainder, 278, are returned as petitions in "other matters;" on the whole there was a decrease of 55 petitions, leaving the number, however, still 1 above the number in 1872. The number of minors protected by the Court of Chancery at the end of the year was 1,098; but as there were 475 minor matters, it would appear that the latter number of families of minors are all that the Court of Chancery protects.

Master of the Rolls' Secretary's Office.

In the office of Secretary to the Master of the Rolls the number of petitions was 106, the greater part of which were petitions under the Trustee Acts and under the Public Works and Railway Acts. These petitions are not in addition to, but are included in the petitions upon which the Lord Chancellor in Chamber made an order for hearing at the Rolls.

Chief Clerks' Returns of proceedings in Chambers.

The following is a summary of the proceedings in the Chambers of the Lord Chancellor, the Master of the Rolls, and the Vice-Chancellor, under the Chancery Act (30 & 31 Vic., c. 44):—

Purchases of Estates under Orders of Court :—
Number of Purchases,	5	3	2	–
Number of Certificates filed,	135	829	–	694

The result of the above table is to show an increase in the number of proceedings in the Chambers of the Lord Chancellor, the Master of the Rolls, and the Vice-Chancellor, amounting to 123 in summonses, increasing them in 1874 to 1,547. There was also an increase in appointments disposed of amounting to 57, raising the number to 4,186, and in orders of the class drawn up in Chambers, amounting to 29, raising the number to 946.

There was, on the other hand, a very large decrease in the amount of property passed in accounts other than Receivers' accounts, from £685,901 returned for 1873, to 222,702 in 1874.

Registrars' Office.

In the office of the Registrars of the Court of Chancery, the total number of orders drawn up in 1874 was 2,050. As compared with 2,433 orders in 1873, there is a falling-off of 383. The total number of orders drawn up in preceding years are returned as follows:—In 1869, 2,420; in 1870, 2,538; in 1871, 2,417; in 1872, 2,663.

These totals all include Side Bar Orders, which were in 1874, 648. As compared with 753 Side Bar Orders in 1873, the part of the total falling-off due to Side Bar Orders was 105. The Side Bar Orders in preceding years were, in 1869, 730; in 1870, 758; in 1871, 811; in 1872, 854.

The returns as to orders for 1866, 1867, and 1868 are not made on a principle uniform with those in subsequent years, or as explained in the notes on a plan uniform with one another, and so do not admit, without revision, of the same comparison.

Accountant-General's Office.

The return of the Accountant-General is made up for the year ended 1st October, 1874, and as compared with the return for 1873 is as follows:—

	Year ended 1st Oct., 1874.	Year ended 1st Oct., 1873.	Increase, 1874.

Crown and Hanaper Office.

In the Crown and Hanaper Office there were, during the year 1874, 3,232 official acts, as compared with 3,687 in 1873, being a decrease of 455, following, however, a large increase of 1,386 in 1873.

Lunacy Office.

The non-extension to Ireland of the reforms contained in the Lunacy Regulation Acts, 1853 and 1862, which had been observed upon in earlier volumes of these statistics, was terminated by Lord O'Hagan's Lunacy (Ireland) Act, 1871, Stat. 34 Vic., c. 22, and the General Orders in Lunacy of 12th July, 1871, founded thereon.

The chief business in the Lunacy Office in 1874 compared with 1873 was as follows:—

LUNACY OFFICE.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Orders of the Lord Chancellor, . .	283	294	–	11
Affidavits filed, ...	301	371	–	70
Reports of Masters, ...	75	82	–	7
Accounts taken by Masters, . . .	84	76	8	–
Amount of receipts on such accounts, .	88,858	72,021	16,837	–

This summary indicates a decrease in the orders and affidavits, following, however, an increase in each of the preceding years, the orders in 1871, having been only 191, and the affidavits filed 232.

The number of lunatics under the care of the Court at the close of 1874 was 205, being 7 more than at the close of 1873, and 50 more than at the end of 1871. This increase for three years in succession is satisfactory evidence of the working of the Act; still, when 565 lunatics were returned by Clerks of Petty Sessions as committed as dangerous within the year, and 159 were returned as admitted to private lunatic asylums, 25 is a small number to have been brought under the benefit of the protection of the High Court of Chancery.

Court for their property and persons within the year. Of this 25 only 2 were found lunatic by inquisition, 23 having been declared lunatic under the less expensive proceeding provided by the Act of 1871.

Record and Writ Office.

In the Record and Writ Office the bills and summonses filed were 483. Owing to the absence of the return for 1873, they must be compared with the number in 1872 (494), which was somewhat more. On the other hand, the fees collected, showing the importance of the business, were £7,959 as compared with £6,823 in 1872.

Receiver-Master's Office.

In the course of the year the retirement of Master Brooke and Master Murphy took place so that the statistics now relate only to the business in the office of the Receiver Master, which is shown in the following table. Some of the business pending in the offices of the Masters who have retired was transferred into the Chambers of the Lord Chancellor, and appears in the return of his Chief Clerk. The Receiver-Master has also the audit of the accounts of County Treasurers and of the Collector-General of Rates in the city of Dublin.

„ „ by other Receivers, Other accounts,	251	248	3	–
Statements of facts as to management of property,	93	133	–	40

These figures show a decrease in the Chancery business transacted by the Receiver-Master.

Chancery Taxing Office.

The following is a summary of the returns made by the Taxing Masters, showing the business transacted in their offices in 1874, compared with 1873 :—

Chancery Taxing Office.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Number of bills taxed,	1,010	1,251	–	241
Number of items,	164,274	191,150	–	26,876
Amount of Chancery Fund on summons and certificate,	2,136 0 0	2,569 0 0	–	463 0 0
Amount of costs claimed,	89,798 0 0	96,312 0 0	–	6,514 0 0
Amount of costs allowed,	64,755 0 0	79,722 0 0	–	14,967 0 0

These figures show a decrease of 26,876 in the number of items taxed, with a decrease of 241 in the number of bills of costs. In the amount of costs allowed there was a decrease of £14,967, against an increase of £4,440 in the year 1873.

Examiner's Office.

In the Examiner's Office witnesses were examined in 29 causes in 1874, against 16 in 1873; but the total number of persons examined was 70, against 29 in the preceding year.

Landed Estates Court.

In the Landed Estates Court the net rental sold was £63,712, and the purchase money was £1,145,935 or 18 years purchase, on an average of all interests and all tenures. Of this rental £14,781 was fee-simple, and it sold for *£337,016 or 22·8 years purchase. Taking 3 years ended 1874, the average price of fee-simple was 21·38 years, and of all interests and tenures including fee-simple 19·10 years. For 3 years ended 1869, the average price of all interests and tenures, including fee-simple, was 17·43, and of fee-simple was 21·94 years. The slight fall in fee-simple for the 3 years average ended

* House of Commons Paper, 1875, No. 62, p. 2.

1874, as compared with 3 years ended 1869, was confined to the province of Leinster alone, where the average fell from 23·50 to 21·23 years. In Munster it rose from 21·61 to 22·58, in Ulster from 23·07 to 23·53, and in Connaught from 18·26 to 18·97.

Taking the fee-simple land as the best standard of value, these figures show no depreciation of land since the passing of the Land Act, except in Leinster. Had that Act produced any large or general depreciation it would have extended as to fee-simple land to all the provinces, and would probably have considerably affected the averages of all interests, though necessarily not admitting of an exact comparison.

Record and Affidavit Office.

There were 371 petitions filed in the Record and Affidavit Office in 1874, against 377 in 1873. The number of affidavits filed was 5,023. Tenants' objections were 402, as against 239 in 1873.

Taxing Office.

In the Taxing Office the amount taxed and certified in the year ended 31st July, 1874, was £38,402, against £40,687 in the preceding year.

It thus appears that the petitions filed showed a slight decrease of 6 in 377, or less than 2 per cent. The costs taxed showed a decrease of £2,285, or 6 per cent. On the other hand, there was an increase of 140 in affidavits filed, and of 163 in tenants' objections.

Record of Title Office.

In the Record of Title Office the titles to 40 estates were recorded in 1874. Of these 20 were less than £1,000 in value, 18 were of £1,000 and under £10,000 in value, and 2 were estimated at £10,000 and upwards. The total sum paid for these estates, as estimated from the consideration-money in the deeds of conveyance, was £101,000, and the mortgages and charges recorded amounted to £23,212. There was 1 application to record land under the 51st section, though an interval had elapsed since the declaration of the Court. The proceedings under the Land Debenture Act, 1865, were nil. The total number of estates, the titles to which have been recorded in the Record of Title Office since its establishment in 1865, under Stat. 28 & 29 Vict., c. 88, sec. 67, is 580, the total value of which is stated to be £2,028,913; the mortgages and charges recorded amount to £278,423. As the record of title is limited to cases of absolute title, the benefit of the machinery thus provided is lost in the cases where it would be most appreciated and where it is most wanted—that of marketable titles, which after a lapse of time will become perfect. Again, to suit cases like those of the value of less than £1,000, a system of optional local registry, on the principle that wills and marriages are locally registered, with central check registry, would be advantageous.

Court of Probate.

Principal Registry.

The jurisdiction of the Court of Probate in Ireland is similar to that of the English Court. The following is a summary of the business of the Court and the Principal Registry :—

COURT OF PROBATE—PRINCIPAL REGISTRY.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Probates and administrations with Wills annexed,	1,171	1,148	23	–

District Registries.

In the District Registries of the Court of Probate the chief business in 1874 and 1873 was as follows :—

COURT OF PROBATE—DISTRICT REGISTRIES.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Granted in Common Form :
Probates, ...	1,161	1,147	14	–
Letters of administration, ...	778	748	30	–
Letters of administration with the Will annexed,	195	236	–	41
Granted under direction of Judge :
Probates, ...	15	7	8	–
Letters of administration, ...	7	–	7	–
Letters of administration with the Will annexed,	1	–	1	–
Granted on Decrees of Chairmen of Counties :
Probates, ...	1	3	–	2
Letters of administration, ...	–	–	–	–
Letters of administration with the Will annexed,	1	3	–	2
Total, ...	2,159	2,144	15	–
Total amount of fees received, . .	7,821	7,614	207	–

It appears from these tables that there was a slight increase in probates and letters of administration in the District Registries—of from 2,144 in 1873 to 2,159 in 1874, or an increase of 15. The very small amount of contentious business—only 50 trials and causes heard by the Judge in relation to 1,864 probates and administrations in the Central Registry—indicates the satisfactory working of the law of Wills and the probate jurisdiction for the class of cases disposed of at the Principal Registry.

Accountant-General's Office.

The Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery is also Accountant-General of the Court of Probate. His return states that there were only 4 accounts open on the 1st October, 1874, and that the total amount of cash and other effects carried over in the books was £2,216.

From a return received from the Comptroller of Stamp Duties, it appears that the amount of property under which probates and administrations were sworn in 1874 was £6,361,915, and the amount of duty received thereon was £122,402.

Since 1st January, 1871, the jurisdiction as to matrimonial causes and matters has been transferred to the Court of Probate. A return of proceedings has been received for 1874, and also of proceedings under the Legitimacy Declaration Act (Ireland), 1868. It appears that there were 8 petitions filed in matrimonial causes and matters during the year ; 4 citations were issued, 3 appearances entered, and 4 answers filed. There were 2 decrees for divorce a mensâ et thoro, and 1 decree for restitution of conjugal rights. There were 15 motions during the year.

The jurisdiction as to divorce in Ireland is still founded on the precedent of the Ecclesiastical Courts, and corresponds to that which existed in England before the Divorce Court was established in 1857 ; so that the action for criminal conversation still continues distinct from the proceedings for a divorce, and a complete divorce in Ireland still requires a private Act of Parliament.

High Court of Admiralty

The practice and procedure of the High Court of Admiralty in Ireland was assimilated to that of the High Court of Admiralty in England in 1867 by Stat. 30 & 31 Vict., c. 114. The Irish Court was not, however, given any jurisdiction in prize cases.

In 1869 the power of conferring Admiralty jurisdiction upon County Courts in England, by order in Council, under Stat. 31 & 32 Vict., c. 71, was followed by an important extension of the jurisdiction of such Courts to certain maritime causes, including a large part of the disputes as to freight and demurrage in which foreign traders are so much interested. The former of these enactments was already provided for in Ireland by the fourth part of the Act of 1867 ; but the latter (Stat. 32 & 33 Vict., c. 51,) has created a substantial difference between Irish and English jurisdiction in maritime causes.

The following summary gives the number and nature of the causes before the High Court of Admiralty during 1874, and those for the previous year, for comparison :—

NATURE OF CAUSES.	Causes Instituted during Years		Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
	1874.	1873.
Salvage,	17	8	9	–
Damage by collision,	16	24	–	8
Bottomry,	4	1	3	–
Actions for necessaries supplied,	10	21	–	11
Towage,	1	2	–	1
Wages (seamen),	3	1	2	–
Wages (Masters) and disbursements,	2	–	2	–
Damage to cargo,	2	3	–	1
Ownership,	3	3	–	–
Total,	72	76	–	4

It will be seen that there has been a decrease of 4 in the number of actions instituted in 1874 as compared with the number in 1873.

The following summary shows the proceedings during 1874, compared with those in 1873 :—

PROCEEDINGS IN ADMIRALTY CASES.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Motions and Summonses,	152	79	73	–
Judgments and Decrees,	27	13	14	–
Instruments prepared in Registry,	241	164	77	–
Total,	420	256	164	–

These figures show an increase of 164 in proceedings in Admiralty in 1874 as compared with 1873, following an increase of 132 in 1873.

Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

Bankruptcy.

Up to 1872 the law of Bankruptcy in Ireland differed from that in England, being regulated by the Irish Bankrupt and Insolvent Act, passed in 1857. Between 1857 and 1872 alterations had been twice made in the law of Bankruptcy in England—in 1861 and 1869. The reform in the Bankruptcy law of Ireland, in analogy to, though not in strict identity with, the English Act, was carried out by the Bankruptcy (Ireland) Amendment Act, 1872, which came into operation on 1st of January, 1873.

The Chief Registrar has made a return as to the proceedings in Bankruptcy in 1874. The following summary shows the proceedings which can be compared with those under the previous law :—

PROCEEDINGS IN BANKRUPTCY.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Petitions of Bankruptcy :
By Creditors,	227	195	32	–
By Debtors,	121	144	–	23
Sittings before the Court,	5,602	4,633	969	–
Sittings before the Chief Registrar,	2,796	2,051	745	–
Petitions for Arrangement,	288	270	18	–

The prisoners for debt in the several gaols who had subscribed declarations of poverty to be discharged as pauper debtors, were 45, as compared with 153 in 1873.

It appears that the number of petitions of Bankruptcy in 1874 was 348, as compared with 339 in 1873, or 9 more than in that year. The petitions for arrangement increased from 270 in 1873 to 288 in 1874.

The return also states the amount claimed in bills of costs in proceedings in Bankruptcy to have been £16,803. From this sum £2,449 was deducted in taxation, leaving £14,354 as the amount certified.

The delay in extending to Ireland the principle of abolition of imprisonment for debt, so far as that abolition was embodied in the English Act of 1869, (32 & 33 Vict., c. 83,) has also been terminated by the Debtors (Ireland) Act of 1872. The Insolvency jurisdiction was thus abolished from 1st of January, 1873. There were, however, some proceedings in winding up the cases previously in the Court. The statistics of these, so far as they admit of being compared with the corresponding figures for the previous year, are compared in the following table :—

PROCEEDINGS IN INSOLVENCY.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Petitions in which dividends were declared, ...	57	71	–	14
Sittings before the Court in Dublin for all purposes in Insolvency, .	140	277	–	137
„ before the Chief Clerk, ...	161	179	–	18
Bills of costs taxed by the Chief Clerk, ...	37	60	–	23

It appears that there was a decrease of 137 in the sittings before the Court for all purposes of Insolvency, and of 18 before the Chief Clerk.

The sittings before the Court in Bankruptcy, however, increased by 969, so that there was a net increase in the Court business (including both Bankruptcy and Insolvency) in the year, of 832 sittings on the previous number, 4,910.

Under the Irish Bankrupt and Insolvent Act, 1857, Stat. 20 & 21 Vict., c. 60, s. 407, the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery in Ireland was appointed Accountant-General in Bankruptcy and in Insolvency; but hitherto no account has been open, nor have any funds of the suitors of the Court been standing to his credit.

The following sums were standing of the dividend account, with the privity of the Chief Registrar :—

To credit of unclaimed dividend account, 1874, .	6,389	0	0	23,500	0	0
Ditto, ditto, 1873, .	4,691	0	0	23,500	0	0
Increase in 1874, . .	1,698	0	0	—

A table has been compiled from the unpublished returns of the Official Assignees to Parliament under the Irish Bankrupt and Insolvent Act, 1857, showing the state of the bankruptcies and insolvencies in the charge of each of the Official Assignees in 1874.

Supreme Courts of Appeal.

The officers of the Supreme Courts of Appeal for Ireland have furnished returns with respect to the business which came before the Courts in 1874.

Her Majesty in Council.

There was an appeal from Ireland in an Admiralty case from the Court of Appeal in Chancery, to Her Majesty in Council, but it was not disposed of.

House of Lords.

The number of appeals from Ireland to the House of Lords in 1874 was 2, both from the Chancery Appeal Court, and none from the Exchequer Chamber; these added to 4 cases in arrears, made 6 to be disposed of. One case was withdrawn, in 4 cases judgments were delivered, and 3 decrees of the Chancery Appeal Court and 1 decision of the Exchequer Chamber were affirmed. Thus only one cause remained in arrear at the end of 1874, as compared with 4 at the end of 1873, 1872, and 1871.

Privy Council, Ireland.

The Privy Council in Ireland hears applications for orders to vest burial-grounds in proprietors of demesnes, under the Irish Church Act, 1869, s. 26, and appeals against Fishery by-laws. There were 23 applications as to burial-grounds, including 1 remaining from 1873; 6 were recommended by the Committee of the Privy Council, 4 were rejected or withdrawn, and 13 were pending at the close of 1874, as compared with 1 at the close of 1873. There was 1 appeal against a by-law made by the Inspectors of Irish Fisheries, under section 10 of 32 & 33 Vict., c. 92, and the by-law was disapproved.

The number of appeals to the Chancery Appeal Court in 1874 and 1873 is shown in the following table :—

There was an increase in the business of the Court, of 6 appeals—from 30 in 1873 to 36 in 1874. There was a remanet at the beginning of the year, but none at the close ; 17 judgments were affirmed, 17 varied or reversed, and 3 struck out or withdrawn.

Exchequer Chamber.

In the Court of Exchequer Chamber there were 24 memoranda of error and notices of appeal lodged in 1874, viz. :—6 from the Queen's Bench, 9 from the Common Pleas, and 9 from the Exchequer. There were besides 4 remanets from 1873. Only 4 cases were disposed of—2 judgments affirmed, 1 reversed, and 1 case struck out; 6 cases are remanets or stand for judgment, and 18 cases are lodged but not yet set down for argument.

Registry Appeals.

The return from the Exchequer Chamber shows 3 registry appeals under the Irish Parliamentary Voters Act (Stat. 13 & 14 Vict., c. 69,) in 1874; 1 was dismissed with costs and 2 stand for judgment.

Reserved Cases (for twelve Judges).

There was 1 case returned as reserved for the twelve Judges, on a question arising under Statute 19 and 20 Vic., c. 102, s. 97, and under the Common Law Procedure Amendment Act (Ireland), 1870, s. 6.

Land Cases Reserved.

In the Court for Land Cases Reserved there was 1 remanet from 1873, and 1 set down. Of the 2 cases 1 was still a remanet at the end of 1874. In the case disposed of, the judgment below was affirmed.

Courts of Chairmen of Counties and Recorders.

Land Sessions.

The statistics as to number of distinct cases and result of proceedings under the Landlord and Tenant Act, passed in 1870, are not so complete for 1874 as for 1873, 5 Clerks of the Peace having neglected to make returns who had made returns for 1873 ; while only 1 was in default in 1873, who has made returns for 1874.

It appears from this table that the increase in the number of cases was 335. The increase is accounted for by the increase of 334 cases in the county of Tyrone, nearly all for the Ulster Tenant-right.

There are, so far as returned, 20 cases of applications by tenants to confirm the granting of leases, as compared with 9 in 1873, and 8 applications by tenants of intention to register improvements, as compared with 4 in 1873.

In the following table the number of cases disposed of in each province and each county is shown :—

The land cases in 1874 (using the figures for 1873 for the counties with returns in default) were, 1,061, as compared with 726 in 1873. There was a decrease of 51 in the land cases in Connaught, of 18 in Leinster, and of 5 in Munster; whilst in Ulster there was an increase of 409 cases—334 in Tyrone, 88 in Londonderry, 16 in Armagh, 9 in Donegal, and 3 in Monaghan, while there was a decrease of 14 in Fermanagh and 18 in Antrim.

If this number, 1,061, be compared with the 526,000 agricultural holdings at yearly tenancies, it gives about the proportion of 20 in every 10,000 holdings on an average. In Ulster the proportion was above this average, being 39 in the 10,000 holdings. In Connaught, Leinster, and Munster the proportion was below average, being only 6 in the 10,000 yearly holdings in Leinster, 5 in Connaught, and 4 in Munster. The 3 counties most above average in 1874 were—Tyrone 147, Londonderry 104, Fermanagh 34, in the 10,000 yearly holdings. Of those from which returns were received in 1874, the 4 counties where there was the least resort to the Land Courts were—Carlow, Wicklow, Longford, and King's county.

Decrees.

Upon the 21 per cent. of cases in which there were decrees, the total amount adjudged on the decrees was £19,450, only £178 below £19,628, the amount for which decrees were given in 1873.

The following table shows the distribution of the amount in the different provinces, in 1874 and in 1873 for comparison :—

	1874.	1873.	1874.	1873.	1874.	1873.
	£	£			£	£
Total of Ireland, . . .	19,450	19,628	222	236	87	83
Ulster, . . .	9,186	8,448	91	106	101	80
Munster, . . .	6,358	6,108	64	54	100	113
Leinster, . . .	2,463	3,252	37	43	66	76
Connaught, . . .	1,443	1,820	30	33	48	55

It appears from this table that the average gross amount awarded, without deducting allowances for set-off to landlord, for dilapidation, rent, &c., was in all Ireland £87 as compared with £83 in 1873. In Munster it was £100, as compared with £113 in 1873; in Leinster it was £66, as compared with £76 in 1873; and in Connaught £48, as compared with £55 in 1873. In Ulster alone was there a larger amount in 1874, £101 as compared with £80 in 1873. The average of 1874, £87, is still above the average of the three years 1871, 1872, and 1873, which was £82.

The statistics of the whole three years indicate that the farms in respect of which the claims are made are of a small class.

Grounds of compensation.

The next most important figures are those indicating the proportion of proceedings under the different grounds of compensation recognised by the Act.

In the following table the amount of compensation adjudged, under each ground of compensation, is shown as to £19,450, in 1874, and as to £18,713 in 1873 :—

Classification of Gross Amount adjudged in Decrees at Land Sessions.	Amount.		Per cent.

Courts of Chairmen of Counties and Recorders.

Land Sessions.

Taking the province of Ulster alone, the sum adjudged was distributed in these proportions :—

Classification of Gross Amount decreed in Ulster.	Amount.		Per cent.
	1874.	1873.	1874.	1873.
Gross sum adjudged in counties where classification returned, .	9,186	7,523	100	100

„ Loss on quitting holding alone, . . .	485	729	5	10.
„ Incoming payments, ...	22	—	1	—

It appears from these figures that the class under which the largest aggregate amount was decreed in 1874—the Ulster tenant-right custom—was 64 per cent., as compared with 28 per cent. in 1873 and 69 per cent. in 1872. There was a proportionate reduction in the other classes—from 50 per cent. to 22 per cent. in loss on quitting holding and improvements together, from 12 to 8 per cent. in improvements alone, and from 10 to 5 per cent. in loss on quitting holding. The only claim for incoming payments was in Ulster, and was for the small sum of £22.

The statistics of proceedings in the Courts of Chairmen of Counties and Courts of Recorders have been simplified, as in 1873 and 1872, by collecting into one table all suits entered, whether ejectments, causes remitted from the Superior Courts, special jurisdiction of Recorders, or other suits. In the preceding volumes these were contained in four tables.

Ejectments.

In ejectments entered there was an increase :—

	Ejectments Entered.
Increase in 1874, . .	454

In cases remitted from the Superior Courts which were entered below there was an increase, from 110 in 1873 to 127 in 1874. In other suits there was an increase from 95,385 in 1873 to 110,630 in 1874. In the gross amount decreed there has been an increase, from £344,408 in 1873 to £383,416 in 1874. There were only 161 cases disposed of by a jury. The decrees other than by consent were 65,229, the decrees by consent were 2,650, making total decrees 67,879, and the total dismisses were 9,564, of which 5,945 were without prejudice.

Suits entered and lodged.

In addition to the returns of Civil Bill proceedings, returns have been obtained from the Process Servers, who are appointed under statute by the Chairmen, and whose salary is annually voted by Parliament. Out of the entire number of Process Servers (805), all but 53, or 7 per cent., have made returns. In former reports their returns—with an estimate for deficient returns—afforded a basis of comparing, as in the land cases, the relative amount of ordinary civil business arising in each county. In this report the number of suits entered has been taken as a more perfect basis now that the returns of the Clerks of the Peace for 1873 and 1874 taken together are more complete than in preceding years.

It appears from this table that the number of suits entered and lodged was in Ulster 8,848 in excess of the average of Ireland, and in Munster 3,829; in Connaught it was 2,875, and in Leinster 9,927 below average.

The counties most above average in Ulster were—Londonderry 3,230 in excess, and Tyrone, 1,946.

In Munster the county most above average was Kerry—2,496.

In Connaught the county most above average was Mayo—1,312.

The counties most below average were—Galway, 4,428, Dublin 2,395 (arising, no doubt, from the proximity to the Superior Courts), Meath 1,500, and Westmeath 1,359.

PART II. JUDICIAL STATISTICS.

Quarter Sessions.

Applications for Spirit Licences and Appeals from Magistrates at Quarter Sessions.

In the following summary the statistics of appeals and applications for spirit licences at Quarter Sessions are compared with the figures for 1873 :—

APPEALS AND APPLICATIONS FOR SPIRIT LICENCES AT QUARTER SESSIONS.	1874.	1873.	Increase, 1874.	Decrease, 1874.
Appeals from Magistrates—
Affirmed,	310	289	21	–

Applications for transfer,	144	135	9	–
Otherwise disposed of,	440	412	28	–
Total,	3,240	3,357	–	117

The number of appeals from Magistrates heard at Quarter Sessions, as appears from the above figures, was less in 1874 than in 1873; the number in the earlier year being 622, against 595 in the later, showing a decrease in 1874 of 27. Only 450 appeals, however, appear to have been heard and decided in Court, and in 310 cases the previous decisions were affirmed, and in 140 reversed or varied.

The number of applications for spirit licences in 1874 also shows a decrease of 117, presenting a marked contrast to the increase of 732 in the preceding year. There was, however, an increase of 58 in the number of original applications granted, against a decrease of 162 in the licenses transferred.

Sheriffs' Proceedings.

Ejectments executed.

The following is a summary of the returns of Sheriffs of Counties and of Counties of Cities and Towns included in the table with respect to the execution of ejectments :—

PROVINCES.	NUMBER OF HOLDINGS IN 1863 EXCEEDING ONE STATUTE ACRE.*	EJECTMENTS FOR NON-PAYMENT OF RENT.		OTHER EJECTMENTS.		TOTAL EJECTMENTS	NUMBER PER 10,000 HOLDINGS EXCEEDING ONE STATUTE ACRE.

From this table it appears that in 1874 there were 2,170 ejectments executed by Sheriffs in Ireland, showing an increase of 393 on the number in 1873. The last column in the above table shows the proportion of ejectments to the holdings exceeding 1 statute acre; and it appears that this was highest in Leinster, where the proportion was 61 in every 10,000 of the holdings, and lowest in Connaught, where it was 25 in an equal number of holdings.

In order, however, to obtain the total number of ejectments executed in Ireland during the year, it is necessary to add to the number (2,170) given in the above summary the number (334) of warrants issued at Petty Sessions against cottier tenants for waste, non-payment of rent, and for overholding, under sections 84, 85, and 86 of Statute 23 & 24 Vic., c. 154, and the number (5,758) of warrants against overholding weekly tenants in towns, under Statute 14 & 15 Vic., c. 92, sec. 15. This gives a total of 8,262 as the number of ejectments for execution in Ireland in 1874.

Ejectments executed.

Of the number of ejectments given in the above summary as executed, it appears that 1,567 were for non-payment of rent, showing an increase of 311 above the number (1,256) in 1873, and 767 on the number (800) in 1872. The 603 "other ejectments" showed a similar, but not so great, increase above the number (521) in 1873, and (373) in 1872. In connexion with the increase of "other ejectments," the large increase of writs of fieri facias is to be borne in mind, as in the case of a sale under one of these writs, the process of recovering possession, if refused, is for the purchaser from the Sheriff to bring an ejectment. These proceedings, arising out of writs sued by the creditors of the tenant, have nothing to do with the relation of landlord and tenant.

In the case of cottier tenants and tenants in towns, it appears that the total number of ejectments was 6,092, showing an increase of 311 on the number in the preceding year, and 1,005 increase on the number in 1872.

It further appears from the statistics that the proportion of ejectments and Civil Bill decrees and dismisses executed by the Sheriffs and by Special Bailiffs was as follows :—

	Superior Courts.	Civil Bills.

Jurors summoned.

Along with the jurors summoned by Sheriffs are included the jurors summoned to the Court of Quarter Sessions held by the Recorder and to the Recorder's Court in the case of the boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry, which have separate Courts of Sessions of the Peace, although these are summoned by the Clerk of the Peace of the borough.

The total number of jurors returned or estimated in the table as summoned in the year is 56,394. The jurors summoned are distributed according to the purposes for which they were summoned, and so as to show as far as possible the division of duty between Special and Common Jurors. For this purpose it has been assumed that the Grand Jurors at Assizes are generally qualified as Special Jurors, though this is not necessarily the case.

The summonses for jury service in the county and city of Dublin are nearly double what they are in the other counties and cities in Ireland.

Outside Dublin county and city, the purpose for which jurors were summoned is indicated by these figures—30,450 for Quarter Sessions, Recorders, and Civil Bill Courts; 18,348 for Assizes, and 108 for other purposes. In Dublin county and city the Superior Courts and Commission Court required 5,890; the Quarter Sessions, Recorder's, and Civil Bill Courts only 1,376, Market Juries 192, and Lunacy Commissions 30.

The duty as between Special and other Jurors was thus distributed :—

Special Jurors (including Grand Jurors at Assizes, assumed to be generally of that class), ...	22,628
Other Jurors, ...	21,959
Either Special or other Jurors, according to rotation, . . .	11,699
Jurors summoned for other purposes than Superior Courts, Assizes, Quarter Sessions, &c., not specified, ...	108
Total, ...	56,394

Of the 22,628 summonses to Special Jurors, only 5,000 count in the rotation to save them from serving in turn with other jurors, and for 17,628 summonses no credit is given; 12,567 of these arise from their being summoned on Quarter Sessions Grand Juries, and 5,061 from their attendance on Grand Juries at Assizes and the Dublin Term Grand Juries, recently reduced to a minimum, and the Dublin Commission Court.

It thus appears that the pressure of duty on Special Jurors in the country arises chiefly from Quarter Sessions Grand Juries. In Dublin it arises partly from this, but chiefly from the distinct venues in the county and in the city, and from the system of distinct panels for each of the Superior Courts. Thus there were summoned for each Term or the after-sittings of each of the four Terms in the county and city of Dublin 8 distinct panels of Special Jurors of 48 each; 2 for Queen's Bench, 2 for the Common Pleas, 2 for the Exchequer, and 2 for the Probate Court. There were, besides, 1 Special Jury in the year in the Bankruptcy Court and 1 in the Vice-Chancellor's Court. If there was one venue

* This is according to table in Appendix (p. 227), where only 768, or 4 panels of 48 jurors each term are returned as summoned for county, while the note (c) refers to 240, or five times 48 as summoned.

† This is according to table in Appendix (p 227). In note (b) 200 stated for Master's Juries probably includes the 20 for Civil Bill Courts, as the 200 is added in the table as if 180.

Jurors summoned.

for the county and city, and one long panel of 96 for all the Courts each Term, the number of Special Jurors summoned might be reduced from 1,632 to 384, or a saving of 1,248 summonses, or nearly three-fourths.

In the case of Common Jurors, allowing one short panel of 48 for the Master's Office and Consolidated Nisi Prius Court in Term, and one long panel of 96 for all the Courts at the after-sittings, the number of summonses of Common Jurors might be reduced from 2,508 to 576 in the year, effecting a saving of 1,932; adding the Market Jurors to these (192), the saving would be 2,124. Taking both Common and Special Jurors together, the saving would be 3,372. Having a single venue for the county and city would effect a saving of 300 Special Jurors and 480 Common Jurors. So that the number of Jurors summoned in the county and city of Dublin might be reduced from 7,488 to 3,316, or from 184 in the 10,000 to 84; so that, instead of being double the proportion to population in the rest of Ireland, it would be reduced slightly below the proportion in the rest of Ireland, which in 1874 was 98 to the 10,000.

Revision of Jurors Lists and correction of Jurors Books.

As to the revision of Jurors Lists and Books, returns have been obtained from all the Clerks of the Peace except those for Dublin city, Kilkenny, Louth, Meath, Westmeath, Cork city, and Galway. For these jurisdictions the figures of 1873 have been used.

The revision that took place in 1874, following the revision in 1873, may be taken as affording a perfect measure of the effect of the Marquess of Hartington's Jury Act of 1873, modifying the qualifications under Lord O'Hagan's Act of 1871, and providing for the exclusion of persons who cannot read and write English, and for the Court being fully informed of all grounds of exemption or disqualification.

It appears that the revision involved the striking off of 26,881 out of 87,641* persons, or about 31 per cent.; there were only 14 added on revision.

Besides those struck off on revision, there were 705 struck off those on the General Jurors Books on correction under section 15 of the Act of 1871. The result is to give the total number of Jurors on the corrected General Jurors Books in all Ireland, 60,069. This is an increase of only 4,609, or less than 8 per cent., on the number on the General Jurors Lists in 1871—the last under the old law—55,460.

In the case of 15,516 persons on the Special Jurors Lists, 3,378 persons were struck off and 324 added, so that, there was a net revision of 3,054, or 19 per cent. The books show 12,455 Special Jurors, and, allowing for 285 struck off and 1 added on correction under section 15 of the Juries (Ireland) Act, 1871, the net number of Special Jurors may be estimated at 12,171. There are no statistics of the number under the previous law to compare this number with.

Local Charter Courts.

There are no Manor Courts in Ireland since the Manor Courts Abolition Act of 1859. The following summary shows the business in 1874 in the eight Local Charter Courts, which were preserved by the Municipal Corporation Reform Act of 1840, viz.:—Clonmel Court of Conscience, Drogheda Court of Conscience, Dublin Lord Mayor's Court, Dublin Court of Conscience, Kilkenny Court of Conscience, Limerick Court of Conscience, Londonderry Court of Conscience, and Wexford Court of Conscience. There were summonses issued, 6,819, against 7,187 in 1873; causes heard, 4,309; amount recovered, £3,236; executions issued, 475; fees collected, £519, against £539 in 1873.

Petty Sessions Courts.

The last table in the Appendix shows the civil business at the Courts of Petty Sessions. The summonses issued were 86,719, which shows a large falling-off—9,300—on the number in 1873, and reducing the number below (88,223), the number in 1872, which is very nearly one-third of the civil bills other than ejectments served from the Courts of Chairmen of Counties and Recorders, the number in 1873 being, allowing for deficient returns, 243,336.

* For Cork City names returned instead of persons.

Civil cases at Petty Sessions other than proceedings against cottier tenants were disposed of as follows :—

Summonses issued,	86,719
Complaints heard,	50,141
Decrees made,	34,417
Warrants issued,	7,585

Proceedings against cottier tenants.

The table also shows the proceedings relating to cottier tenants under the Landlord and Tenant Act, 1860, (Stat. 23 & 24 Vic., c. 154,) under which cottier tenements may be summarily recovered at Petty Sessions, for waste, for non-payment of rent, or for overholding. The cases for summary recovery of tenements in towns against weekly tenants, under Stat. 14 & 15 Vic., c. 92, sec. 15, are also shown.

A cottier tenant is defined by the 81st section of the Act of 1860 to be any person holding by agreement or memorandum in writing from the landlord a tenement consisting of a dwelling-house or cottage without land, or with any portion of land not exceeding half an acre statute measure, at a rent not exceeding the rate of £5 by the year, for one month, or from month to month, or in like manner for any lesser period of time, the landlord undertaking to keep and maintain the dwelling-house or cottage in tenantable condition and repair. This definition is held not to include the case of weekly tenants, who are dealt with under Stat. 14 & 15 Vic., c. 92, sec. 15, already referred to.

The proceedings against cottier and weekly tenants in 1874 appear from the returns to have been as follows :—

SUMMARY RECOVERY OF POSSESSION.	Summonses issued.	Complaints heard.	Warrants to Special Bailiffs.	Cases in which there was a stay of Execution.
Cottier Tenants. Under Stat. 23 & 24 Vic., c. 154.

For Overholding in Towns (sec. 15),	13,000	8,818	5,758	110

The returns further indicate the number of days on which Petty Sessions were not held in consequence of the non-attendance of Magistrates. This number (1,074), as compared with 13,688 days on which Petty Sessions Courts other than Police Courts were held, gives a proportion of 7 per cent.; but this proportion is differently distributed, and reaches 16 per cent. in the province of Connaught, as appears from the following table :—

PROVINCES.	Number of Days on which Petty Sessions not held for non-attendance of Magistrates.	Number of Days on which Petty Sessions held.*	Proportion of Days when Sessions not held to Days on which Sessions held.
			Per cent.

Ulster,	183	3,360	5
Connaught,	348	2,111	16
Total (607 Courts),	1,074	13,688	7

* Not including Dublin Metropolitan Police District (844), in which no local Magistrates sit at Police Court.

Petty Sessions Courts.

Local civil cases in Connaught.

The local jurisdiction in civil matters is divided in Connaught in the following proportions.

		Per cent.
Total Local Civil Cases in Connaught, ...	81,660	100·
Processes served for Chairmen of Counties, and Recorders' Courts (exclusive of those served in Land Cases by private Bailiffs), . .	64,023	78
Summonses for Petty Sessions (exclusive of Cottier Tenant Cases), .	17,637	22

When the Petty Sessions Courts dispose of upwards of one-fifth of the small civil cases of the poor, it is a very serious hardship on them when, as in Connaught, the Court are on 16 per cent. of days appointed postponed from non-attendance of Magistrates.

Reasons for not attempting a comparison of Irish and English Judicial Statistics on the same plan as the comparison of Criminal Statistics.

In this chapter of the Report, relating to Judicial Statistics, no attempt has been made, as in the chapters on Criminal Statistics, to compare the statistics of the proceedings of the Courts in Ireland and in England.

As pointed out in preceding Reports, the very unequal application of modern legal reforms to the Courts of the two countries, has produced an amount of diversity of practice and procedure from the original common standard, which would make a complete comparison very complicated and difficult, and render a partial comparison very likely to mislead.

In my Report on the Statistics last year, I referred to the arrears of business in the English Courts as to matters comprehended in the Judicial Statistics, as a disturbing element in the way of any accurate comparison of the Judicial Statistics of the two countries. The Statistics then referred to were those for 1872. The English Statistics for 1873 show a continuance of this state of arrear.

In the House of Lords the appeals in 1783 were 55; the number heard was 31; allowing 25 for dismissals and withdrawals the arrears at the end of the year were 34 cases, only 1 less than the number at the end of 1872, or more than a whole year's business in arrear.

In the Privy Council the appeals remaining from the previous year were 281, and the new entries 108, or 389 to be heard; the number heard, 114; allowing for 15 dismissed, and 23 apparently withdrawn, the arrears were only reduced from 281 at the end of the year 1872 to 237 at the end of 1873, so that this important Court was more than two years in arrear.

In the Court of Chancery the number of causes, motions for a decree, and other proceedings pending at the beginning of the year 1873 was 580; at the end of the year it was 724, indicating an increasing amount of arrears.

The arrear at the end of the year was more than one-third of a year's business, 2,017 proceedings. In some of the most important branches of business there was a whole year. Thus, in special cases there were 21 pending at the beginning of the year, and 15 at the end, giving an average of 18, and the number disposed of in the year was oniy 18. In causes, the number at the beginning of the year was 91, at the end of the year 124, or an average of 107½, while the number disposed of in the year was 105.

This state of permanent arrear renders the Court not well suited to deal with large complicated cases when they occur. Thus, for two of the heaviest cases that have occurred in recent years, special Acts of Parliament were obtained to appoint arbitrators. The proceedings before these arbitrators are not, however, included in the English Judicial Statistics.

In the case of the European Insurance Company, when one of the ex-judges who had acted as an arbitrator died, the whole business was delayed for some months pending the passing of an Act of Parliament for the appointment of a new arbitrator.

By the previous Acts relating to the appointment of arbitrators in these Insurance cases the natural amount of Chancery business had been checked by a provision excluding the right of appeal. This anomaly, when successive arbitrators differed, was found to be an unsatisfactory arrangement.

The English and Irish Law and Chancery Commissioners in 1863 observed upon the arrears of business in the Superior Courts of Common Law in England. The statistics of 1873 indicate that, notwithstanding the increased number of Judges appointed in consequence of the jurisdiction as to election petitions, there was still an arrear of business.

The chief end of all common law proceedings is to lead up to a trial at "Nisi Prius," and to secure a proper verdict, and to carry out the judgment founded thereon.

In the three Superior Courts of Common Law in England in 1873 no less than 138 trials (100 in town and 38 on circuit) were postponed "for want of time to try" the cases. The fact of such a block of business had, no doubt, a considerable effect upon other postponements. The postponements by consent, the postponements by order of the Court, &c., and causes stayed amounted to 372. This forced stoppage of cases, again, led to cases being referred, but the statistics as to these are not shown separately from cases withdrawn. The number of withdrawals, including cases referred, causes struck out, &c., amounted to 1,769. These left only 2,405 causes tried out of 4,624 for trial.

When a permanent arrear of business of this kind occurs, the statistics no longer indicate the natural amount of business that would be brought before the Courts if there was time to dispose of it. Again, the cases disposed of cease to be average cases, for in such a state of business there will be a strong tendency to postpone or refer to arbitration the most complicated cases and those most likely to occupy time.

In Ireland there is in some of the Courts a similar indication of inability, in point of time, to dispose of the business.

Thus, in the Court of Queen's Bench in Ireland, out of 214 causes entered for trial in 1873, 103 were sent to a second Judge to try, and only 22 were returned as tried in the primary Court, while the same number of 22 causes were returned as "postponed for want of time to try."

The Judicature Act passed for England and the Bill proposed for Ireland are calculated, by facilitating the transfer of business from one Court to another, and by extending the period of the year for trials at Nisi Prius, to obviate some of the causes of these delays; but in exact proportion to the extent of these changes, will the statistics of past years, affected by the delays of procedure, fail to afford a safe guide as to the amount of future business when the causes of delay have been removed.

Anticipated effect of Irish Land Act and pending law reforms on business of Irish Courts.

The Irish Land Act, by giving legal recognition to tenants' claims for improvements and under Tenant-right usages, has, besides the direct business of determining the questions as to these subjects between landlord and tenant, brought the large amount of tenants' property thus recognised more completely within the jurisdiction of the Courts in suits for administration of tenants' assets, in questions arising out of family arrangements and settlements and wills, and in creditor and bankruptcy proceedings.

When the principles sanctioned by the English Judicature Act have been completely extended to Ireland, the full effect of this change will, from the size of Irish tenants' holdings, appear in the first instance in the increased business in the Civil Bill Courts of the Chairmen of Counties and Recorders, which correspond to the English County Courts.

The appeals from the Irish County Courts are heard by the twelve Judges of the Common Law Courts on Circuit or at the Consolidated Nisi Prius Court in Dublin, in the form of rehearings, and not, as in England, in the form of error from inferior Courts—case stated, or mere appeal without rehearing.

The new business arising from the complete recognition of tenants' property, to the value of many millions, will, when the pending legal reforms are completed, thus have an immediate considerable effect upon the business of the Irish County Courts and of the twelve Common Law Judges, upon whom the Circuit business devolves.

SUMMARY.

The following is a Summary of the principal results noticed in the preceding Report :—

CHAPTER I.—STATISTICS OF CRIME.

Crime up to 31st July, 1875.

1. The statistics relate chiefly to the year 1874; but some of the most important figures are brought up to the 31st of July in the present year.

Agrarian crime.

(a.) The agrarian outrages specially reported in the first seven months of 1875 were only 82, as compared with 131 in the first seven months of 1874.

(b.) The yearly number of agrarian outrages on an average of 1873 and 1874, was 233, whilst the average ten years before (1862–63) was 324.

Crime in general in 1875.

(c.) As to crime in general, the first seven months of 1875 contrast favourably with the first seven months of the preceding year.

Crime in 1874 compared with preceding years.

2. Taking the usual standard of serious crime, indictable offences not disposed of summarily, the amount in 1874 (6,662) was lower than in any year since the statistics were first in a complete shape in 1864. There has been a decrease for four years in succession, and the number is now 4,203 below the number (10,865) in 1864, eleven years previously.

Progress of the diminution of crime in Ireland and in England.

3. This progress is slightly greater than what has taken place in England and Wales in the eleven years ended 1873 (the last published Statistics). The number of indictable offences not disposed of summarily in a portion of the population of England and Wales equal to that of Ireland was, in 1863 14,111, in 1873 10,276, showing a decrease of 3,835, which is less than the decrease of 4,203 in Ireland above noticed during an equal number of years ended 1874.

4. The decrease of English crime still leaves it, in 1873, at 10,276, a figure higher than Irish crime has been at in any year since 1864, and 3,614 above 6,662, the number of Irish crimes in 1874.

Causes of less crime in Ireland than in England and Wales.

5. Some other statistics throw light on the causes of this highly satisfactory state of affairs in Ireland, as compared with England and Wales.

(a.) The Police in Ireland amount to 22 in every 10,000 of the population, whilst in England and Wales they are only 12.

(b.) There are in every part of Ireland Stipendiary Magistrates, with whom (except in Dublin Police district) Justices of the Peace have concurrent jurisdiction. In England and Wales these officers are confined to the Metropolis and some of the larger towns.

(c.) The system of having all prosecutions undertaken by public legal functionaries (on the Scotch system of Lord Advocate and Procurators Fiscal), has long prevailed in Ireland under the Attorney-General, Crown Counsel, with Sessional and Assizes Crown Solicitors. In England and Wales, although the introduction of the Scotch and Irish system has been proposed in Parliament for some years, it has not yet been adopted, and the Public Prosecutor appeared in 1873, in only 168 mint cases and 32 other cases, whilst 13,461 prosecutions at the Assizes, Central Criminal Courts, and Quarter Sessions, though paid for by the State were left in private hands.

6. The efficiency of the Irish system of a numerous and centralized Police Force is shown by other figures. For the 6,662 crimes committed, no less than 4,875 persons (73 per cent.) were apprehended; whilst in England and Wales, for the same number of the crimes returned by the Police*, the apprehensions were only 3,264 (49 per cent.)

7. (a.) The efficiency of the Irish system of public officials prosecuting, as compared with the English system of leaving prosecutions, though conducted at the public expense, almost entirely in private hands, is shown by some other figures. Out of the 4,875 persons so apprehended in Ireland 1,194 (24 per cent.) were discharged for want of evidence or want of prosecution; in England and Wales, out of the same number of persons apprehended for indictable offences, no less than 1,462 (30 per cent.) were discharged for want of evidence or want of prosecution.

(b.) The combined results of the Irish systems of proceedure and police as compared with the English may be shown in a few figures.

The Irish Police authorities return that for the 6,662 crimes committed in 1874 they succeeded in placing 3,681 criminals under bail, or in having them sent to prison (for trial, want of sureties, or further examination).

The English Police authorities return that for every 6,662 crimes committed in England and Wales in 1873 they only succeeded in placing 2,292 criminals under bail, or in having them committed to prison in like manner, or 1,589 fewer criminals placed in the way of punishment for the same number of crimes.

Such a relative result of the prosecution of crimes in England and Wales points to the differences in the systems of Police and Public Prosecutor as important elements in accounting for the larger proportion of crimes in 1873—10,276—for Irish amount of population in England as compared with 6,662 crimes in Ireland in 1874.

Theory of supposed excessive criminality of persons of Irish birth in England and Wales as accounting for greater amount of crimes there considered.

8. In some comments on the Irish Criminal Statistics of last year, it was suggested that the smaller number of certain crimes in Ireland arose from an excessive number of criminals amongst persons of Irish birth in England and Wales.

It was alleged that while persons of Irish birth in England and Wales were only 566,540 in number, or one-fortieth of the population, they appeared in the commitments to prison as one-seventh of the commitments, and it was thence assumed that they were much more criminal than the other inhabitants of the towns or parts of the towns in which they resided.

(a.) It appears from the Census that the persons of Irish birth reside chiefly in the large towns, which in England as in Ireland largely exceed other districts in the proportion of crime to population; thus 91,171 reside in London, 76,761 in Liverpool, 34,066 in Manchester, and 118,862 in some 60 other large towns.

(b.) It also appears that persons of Irish birth (owing to adults chiefly migrating) are very peculiarly circumstanced as to age; 498,733 being over 20 years of age, and (instead of 424,000 the number to be expected from the distribution of ages in England and Wales) only 67,717 under 20. Persons above 20, though only about half the population, commit 80 per cent. of the crime, and allowing for 67,717 Irish under 20, the whole number 566,540 may be estimated as belonging to the section of the population as to ages (60 per cent. of the total) that commits 90 per cent. of the crime.

(c.) The commitments to prison have been analysed, and in those for indictable offences persons of Irish birth are not one-seventh (or 14 per cent.) but only one-twelfth or 8 per cent. This makes their criminality as measured by indictable offences only 65 in the 10,000 of their number; but the criminality of persons of the same age in the entire of London, Liverpool and Manchester, is 76 in the 10,000 of such persons, or 11 per 10,000 higher than those of Irish birth.

(d.) If the English Criminal Statistics and the Census divided such large jurisdictions as the London Metropolitan Police District, Liverpool and Manchester into divisions as Dublin is divided, the criminality of the persons of Irish birth as compared with the inhabitants of the divisions in which they actually reside, would, from the contrast of rich and poor divisions as to crime in Dublin, most likely come out still more favourably than when compared with the whole population of London, Liverpool and Manchester, without any distinction of rich and poor districts.

(e.) In Dublin the contrast between poorer and richer divisions is still more marked in the case of offences disposed of summarily than in the case of indictable offences, amounting to 1,778 in the 10,000 population in the A Division (or South-west City), one of the poorer divisions, and to only 555 in the E Division (South City and rural part from Crumlin to Sandymount), one of the richer divisions. These figures show that no conclusion as to the relative criminality of persons of Irish birth in respect of commitments for offences disposed of summarily, can be safely arrived at, without a classification of these commitments according to the division of the city where they reside.

Crime in Ulster compared with crime in Scotland.

9. A comparison commenced in previous reports has been made between the crime of Ulster, 1874, and Scotland in 1873.

The total offences of all kinds—indictable and disposed of summarily—in Ulster was 57,976 as compared with 71,313 in a portion of the population of Scotland equal to that of Ulster. Ulster presented an unfavourable result in murder and attempts at murder and to do grievous bodily harm; they are 60 as compared with 42 in Scotland. The total of offences against human life is 95 in Ulster, and only 90 for Scotch population equal to that of Ulster. The crimes against veracity are only 3 in Ulster as compared with 11 in Scotland. The crimes against morals are only 31 in Ulster as compared with 82 in Scotch population. The offences against property are only 3,820 as compared with 12,526 in the Scotch population.

Supposed excessive criminality of persons of Irish birth in Scotland.

(b.) Suggestions have been made as to the excessive criminality of persons of Irish birth in Scotland similar to the statements above considered as to England and Wales. In Scotland persons of Irish birth in 1871 were 207,770 in number, or about 13 per cent., or one-eighth of persons of the same age.

As to their criminality, I have been informed by the courtesy of the Superintendent of Criminal Statistics in Scotland, that there are no statistics of the commitments of persons of Irish birth there:—"The late General Board of Prisons made a vigorous effort to keep a record of the birth-places of the inmates of prisons, and the place where each had spent the bulk of his life, but after ample trial the results were found worthless, and the attempt was deliberately abandoned."

This failure in Scotland as compared with England, arose, no doubt, from the defective state of the Scotch Poor Law, with its minute parochial chargeability in 886 parishes and five years' residence, to secure a settlement, instead of one year, and Union chargeability* as in England, making people afraid to disclose their history.

Estimates have been made on good authority, that persons of the Roman Catholic religion are about one-third of the prisoners in Scotland, or 33 per cent., while they were in 1869 only one-ninth of the population, or 11 per cent. This, however, is not any greater proportion of commitments to population than has been already considered in the case of persons of Irish birth in England and Wales, while the Scotch criminal statistics do not afford facilities for a similar investigation, as they do not distinguish town from rural crime. Still less do they distinguish, as in Dublin, the relative criminality in the poorer and richer parts of such large towns as Glasgow (the second in the Empire).

Thus, while the persons of Irish birth are, if in distress, placed under peculiar disadvantages in Scotland, under the law of poor removals, as affected by the Scotch Poor Law, it is not possible to trace from existing statistics whether they are or not more criminal than other inhabitants of the parts of the large towns of Scotland, in which they chiefly reside.

Sentences of penal servitude in Ireland compared with those in England and in Scotland.

10. (a.) The sentences of penal servitude afford a test of the highest class of crime in the three kingdoms, and the distribution into sexes increases the value of the comparison. Taking the same year (1873) in all the countries for more exact comparison, the sentences to penal servitude in that year were on men for Irish amount of population in Ireland, 178; on Scotch scale, 181; on English scale, 296, showing a large excess of men sentenced to penal servitude in England and Wales above the proportion for equal population in Ireland and Scotland.

* London, equal in 1874, in population to Scotland, has been, since 1870, only one area of charge for workhouse relief.

Sentences of penal servitude in Ireland compared with those in England and Scotland.

(b.) As the Irish proportion of men sentence to penal servitude is the same as the Scotch, the account of the larger proportion in England and Wales is to be sought in some cause in operation there, and it appears from the figures that the English Convict system has not been so successful in checking re-commitments of male convicts as the Irish system. The number of men committed to gaol in Ireland, who, when previously committed, had received a sentence of transportation or penal servitude, in 1874 was only 118, while the corresponding number in a portion of the population of England and Wales in 1873, equal to that of Ireland, was 186.

(c.) The sentences of penal servitude on women in the Irish amount of population were in Ireland 53, on English scale 54, and on Scotch scale 89, showing a large excess of women sentenced to penal servitude in Scotland above both the Irish and English scales. This excess of female crime, taken in connexion with the excess of crimes against morals in Scotland, as compared with Ulster, above noticed, points to something defective in the status of women in Scotland, a matter of importance in connexion with the condemnation of the Scotch law of marriage by the Royal Commission on the Marriage Laws of the United Kingdom some years since.*

Theory of supposed excessive criminality of persons of Irish birth being the cause of the larger amount of crime in England and Wales further considered.

* The excess of women in Scotland and of men in England in the sentences of penal servitude is the opposite of what would happen if the theory of persons of Irish birth in Great Britain was, as suggested, an influential cause of it. The men of Irish birth in Scotland exceed the women by 8,594 ; while in Lancashire, Cheshire, and London, including the most criminal parts of England and Wales, the women of Irish birth exceed the men by 25,762.

In support of the Irish birth theory as an important cause of excessive crime in England and Wales, the excessive criminality of Dublin has been referred to. In the part of Ireland under the centralized Royal Irish Constabulary, with Stipendiary Magistrates sitting on the same bench as Local Magistrates, the crime is only 2,928 in 5,075,000 inhabitants, or 5·8 in the 10,000. This includes Belfast, with 174,000, where crime is only 100, or 5·7 in the 10,000, and the highest criminality under this system reaches only 112 in 79,000 in Cork City (14·2). In the Dublin Metropolitan Police district, which is on the English system of a Police force confined to one city, and on the London Metropolitan Police district plan as to the Police courts, an exceptional amount of criminality has been pointed out for some years, amounting in 1874 to 3,734 crimes in 337,000 population, or 110·8 in the 10,000. As to this criminality, so exceptional in Ireland, it is said that it is higher than that of Birmingham in 1873—1,740 in 343,787. As this gives Birmingham only 50·6 in the 10,000, the criminality of Birmingham is only half that of Dublin ; but it is about nine times the criminality of Belfast, the town in Ireland with which it most nearly corresponds. A doubt has been suggested whether any town in England exhibits, in proportion to population, an amount of criminality equal to that of Dublin. But it is less than the criminality of Manchester measured by the same standard as Birmingham. The crimes in Manchester in 1873 were 4,516 in 351,189 population, or 128·6 in the 10,000 ; while Dublin was in 1874, only 110·8 in the 10,000, or 17·8 less.

Again, Dublin has been referred to as showing the error of attaching importance to Police arrangements, though the most singular circumstance is that the excess should occur in the part of Ireland where the Police and Magisterial systems are on the English plan, and different from the rest of Ireland, and where there are, besides, antiquated statutable differences as to the Superior Criminal Courts for the city of Dublin.

It has been suggested that some light might be thrown upon the respective systems of Police and justice pursued in the two countries, if a comparison were made between as many English counties as would most nearly represent the distribution of population and wealth of Ireland.

The portion of Ireland under the centralized Irish Police (Royal Irish Constabulary) contains 5,075,000 inhabitants ; the crimes in 1874 were 2,928, or 5·8 in the 10,000. Taking the counties of England and Wales that show the least criminality until an equal population is made up, we get 10 counties in Wales (all Wales except Glamorganshire and Brecknockshire) and 15 in England (Bedfordshire, Berkshire, Cambridge, Cornwall, Devonshire, Dorsetshire, Durham, Huntingdonshire, Leicestershire, Norfolk, Oxford, Rutland, Suffolk, North Riding of Yorkshire, and Westmoreland), making a population of 5,069,000, distributed over an area of 15,119,000 acres, as compared with the same population over 20,500,000 acres in Ireland.

The criminality of these 25 English and Welsh counties most nearly resembling Ireland in distribution of popuation, was 3,752 crimes, as compared with 2,928 in an equal population in the Royal Irish Constabulary districts, or 7·4 in the 10,000 of population, as compared with 5·8 in the Irish districts, or 24 per cent. more.

As the importance I have ventured to attach to the difference between Ireland and England as to the existence of a public prosecutor in Ireland and none in England, as a cause of the different degree of crime, has been doubted, it is only right to mention that the system of a public prosecutor for England was recommended by a Royal Commission in 1844, by a Parliamentary Committee in 1856, and by another Committee in 1870. Bills were introduced on the subject in the Sessions of 1870, 1871, and 1872, with different names on them in the several years, but including Mr. Walpole, Viscount Sandon, Mr. Russell Gurney, Mr. Vernon Harcourt, Mr. Rathbone, and Mr. Eykyn. In 1873 a Bill was introduced by the Government. The strength of feeling entertained on the subject is shown by Mr. Walpole's speech on 19th June, 1872 :—"That it was really a disgrace, and he used the word advisedly, that England was the only country in the world where prosecutions for crime should be mostly left at the mercy of private individuals, who might or might not proceed with them, as they thought fit."

As, again, the importance I attach to the difference in Police, as a cause of the difference in crime, has also been doubted, it is important to refer to the statement of Mr. Redgrave, in one of his earliest reports on the Judicial Statistics of England and Wales, so far back as 1857. He noticed the Borough Police in England, commenced in 1835, as "varying from a high degree of efficiency, chiefly in the larger boroughs, to a great want of system and absence of efficiency in others." He also notices, that in the counties a Constabulary had been in the course of gradual formation only from 1839, under the voluntary Act of that year, but added that "the establishment of the Police force throughout the parts of England and Wales which had not adopted the system voluntarily,

11. (a.) The authorities in Ireland have not been so successful in dealing with drunkenness as with more serious crime. The proceedings against drunkards are, however, carried on with great vigour, the number of convictions for drunkenness, or being drunk and disorderly, being 97,438, as compared with 95,623 in 1873, and as compared with 41,578 in an equal portion of the population of England and Wales. Statistics of drunkenness.

(b.) The law in both countries seems inadequate to check habitual drunkenness. The habitual drunkards proceeded against in England and Wales, for the proportional figure for Irish population, increased from 7,119 men in 1872 to 7,183 in 1873. In Ireland, while the actual numbers were less the increase has been greater, from 5,739 in 1873 to 6,081 in 1874, figures of great importance in connexion with the recommendations of the recent Select Committee of the House of Commons on the subject of habitual drunkards.

12 (a.) The authorities in Ireland have been somewhat more successful in dealing with habitual drunkards amongst women, the number, showing instead of an increase, as in the case of the men, a slight reduction from 1,733 in 1873 to 1,725 in 1874; the number so recently as 1865 was 2,792. In England and Wales the proportionate number increased from 2,382 in 1872 to 2,465 in 1873; in 1865 it was only 1,746. Habitual drunkards amongst women.

(b.) The number of prostitutes proceeded against has also diminished from 7,999 in 1873 to 7,165 in 1874; in 1865 the number was as high as 13,717. This is more rapid progress than in England and Wales, though the number is still far above the proportionate number in an equal population there, viz., 5,159 in 1872, 4,917 in 1873, and 4,805 in 1865. Number of prostitutes proceeded against for crimes and offences.

(c.) The largest part of the diminution in prostitutes proceeded against from 1865 to the present time is in the Dublin Metropolitan Police District, where the number decreased from 8,909 in 1865 to 4,338 in 1874; the latter number is, however, still excessive, as the number in the rest of Ireland is only 2,827, and if the number in Dublin was in the same proportion to population it would be only 187.

(d.) According to the valuable analysis of the frequency of the same individual being committed within the year, so long inserted in the tables of the Irish Inspectors-General of Prisons, the number above referred to, of proceedings against prostitutes in Dublin in 1874, from the same person being frequently proceeded against it would not probably represent more than 1,083 distinct individuals—one-fourth of the number of proceedings taken against women of this class in the year as above noticed. Distinction between number of individual criminals and number of persons proceeded against.

(e.) The Inspectors-General of Prisons show that some women have been committed to prison in Ireland as often as 18 times within the year—that 764 women have been committed upwards of 20 times in all. The number so committed above 20 times is increasing year by year; it was 665 in 1872; 681 in 1873, and it is 764 in 1874. They Inspectors-General of Prisons' suggestions as to habitual criminals.

was not made compulsory until 1856." He then adds—"Up to this time in many extensive districts, no other provision had been made for the protection of life and property than such as might be obtained from the unpaid, untrained parish constable, unwillingly selected for his year of duty, no other means at hand for the prompt pursuit of the most atrocious or the most subtle criminals. While for many years the amendment of the laws for the punishment of criminals had been one of the prominent cares of the Legislature, no general provisions were enacted for the prevention of crimes or the pursuit of offenders. This is the office of a paid, trained police, and the numerous enactments would not, probably, have so long preceded a care for the prevention of offences, had not a constitutional jealousy of Police systems which has, I think, disappeared, stood in the way."

Mr. Redgrave in his report on Judicial Statistics in 1857, further adds—"But other important functions are now recognised to belong to an efficient Police. They will care for the removal of all demoralizing influences, for the better maintenance of public order and decorum, for the suppression of habitual vagrancy, for the supervision of places of low resort and common lodging-houses. They will become the authorized inspectors of weights and measures, a duty of great importance, which has been in many large districts entirely neglected. They will interfere to prevent the drunken brutality of the strong towards the weak, and promptly assist in many ways in obtaining justice for the poor, whose material improvement they will greatly promote."

Since the important date, referred to by Mr. Redgrave, of the compulsory introduction of county Police in England and Wales, the criminality of all England and Wales has been reduced from 57,273 crimes in 18,600,000 population in 1857 to 45,214 in 23,284,000 population in 1873, or from 31 in the 10,000 to 19 in the 10,000.

The Irish Judicial Statistics originated in a Parliamentary address to the Crown, asking for returns with reports similar to Mr. Redgrave's, from which the above is quoted. The comparison between crime in Ireland and in England in the Irish volumes arose from Mr. Redgrave's comparison between crime in England and in France, in his Report of 1860.

further show that 210 women have been committed over 50 times, and 47 women more than 100 times, and 1 woman 328 times.

Suggestion of reformatories for unfortunate women of the criminal class.

(f.) The Inspectors-General add—"It will be seen from the foregoing [referring to these and other figures of similar character], that the criminal class in Ireland is limited to comparatively few individuals, we would therefore again point out how desirable it is that legislation should take place which would deal more effectively with habitual criminals."

(g.) To this may be added the observation that the existence of penitentiaries supported by charitable and religious people, suggests the application of the reformatory legislation, which has had such a wonderful success in the case of neglected children, to the unfortunate class of criminals and offenders above referred to, whose early education and training has been in many cases as much neglected as that of any inmate of a Reformatory or of an Industrial School.

CHAPTER II.—MODES OF PROCEDURE FOR PUNISHING CRIME.

State of the law as to inquests in the three kingdoms.

1. In Scotland, where all prosecutions are undertaken by the public prosecutors, the Crown Solicitors (there called Procurators Fiscal), acting under the direction of the chief law officer (there called Lord Advocate), there are no Coroners' inquests, the duty of making inquiry into sudden deaths being discharged by the Scotch Crown Solicitors (Procurators Fiscal). In England, where there is no system of public prosecution, the Crown only prosecuting in rare cases, Coroners' inquests assume great importance as a check against private prosecutors compromising felonies. In Ireland the new practice, when the police have arrested a prisoner and the public prosecutor taken charge of the case, of not producing the prisoner before the Coroner without a habeas corpus, is a step towards carrying out the system of public prosecution in Ireland adopted from Scotland to the logical result at which it has long since arrived there. Meantime the practice is gradually diminishing the value of the verdicts of Coroners' inquests as a branch of Criminal Statistics.

Sentences of death and penal servitude in Ireland, in England and Wales, and in France, compared.

2. The sentences of death in Ireland in 1874 were 3, all of which were commuted. This is the same proportion as the average of five years (1869–73), and below (4) the English average for same population for the same years, and below ($4\frac{1}{2}$) the number in the same population in France in 1872.

3. Comparing the sentences of penal servitude in Ireland with those of forced labour not perpetual and reclusion in France the numbers were, in Ireland in 1874, 213, average of five years ended 1873, $214\frac{1}{2}$; in equal portion of French population in 1872, 285; in equal population in England and Wales in 1873, 384.

Number of fines in sentences for offences disposed of summarily.

4. In sentences for offences disposed of summarily the most remarkable feature is the extent to which fines are resorted to as a punishment in Ireland. While the number committed to prison in Ireland for summary offences is only 18,387, being 2,544 less than (20,931) the English proportionate number, the number fined in Ireland was 156,329, or 85,533 in excess of 70,796, the English proportionate number.

CHAPTER III.—CRIMINALS AND OTHERS IN CONFINEMENT, AND KNOWN CRIMINALS AT LARGE.

State of education in persons committed to prison in Ireland and in England and Wales compared.

1. One of the most important facts ascertained about criminals with a view to remove causes or temptations to crime is the state of their education. In Ireland of the commitments of ordinary prisoners to gaols in 8,897 cases of men and boys (or 37·4 per cent. of the whole) the record is "neither read nor write," this is an excess above the English proportion, which is only 31·3 per cent. In the case of 7,657 commitments of women and girls a like record of total ignorance appears, making more than half (54·8 per cent.) of the whole number, 13,996. In England and Wales the proportion of women and girls totally ignorant is little above a third (38·2 per cent.)

2. In England and Wales very active steps are being taken to deal with the much lesser degree of total ignorance than prevails in Ireland. Under the elementary education Acts there were 1,521 convictions in 1873, no doubt for parents not sending their children to school. Under the provisions of the English Act of 1855 (Denison's Act) "to provide for the education of children in receipt of out-door relief" (18 Vic., c. 34), re-enacted in a modified form by the Elementary Education Amendment Act, 1873, Guardians are empowered to grant relief to enable such children between four and sixteen to be educated. Again, under the Agricultural Children Act, 1873, which does not apply to Ireland, special provision is made for the education of children employed in agriculture.

Working of Industrial Schools in Ireland.

The Irish local authorities are, for want of these provisions, left to the Industrial Schools Act alone to meet the case of neglected children, and the means thus entrusted to them they are using with great activity. The admissions during the year being 852, as compared with the English proportionate number 552, and the total number under detention at the end of the year being 4,569, as compared with the English proportionate number 1,658.

3. The admissions are directed in Ireland chiefly to girls, whose education has been most neglected. The proportion of committals being 547 girls to 276 boys. The extent to which these schools are supplying the want of compulsory education in Ireland, is shown by the large per-centage (61 per cent.) of the totally ignorant admitted.

Reformatory Schools.

4. In the case of Reformatory Schools, although the number actually sent in the year is less in Ireland than the proportionate number in England and Wales, still a larger per-centage of those committed to prison are sent on to Reformatories. Thus, 284 boys and girls were sent to Reformatories in Ireland out of 1,204 commitments of children under 16 years of age, or 24 per cent. In England and Wales the number in an equal population committed to prison under 16 years of age was 2,143, and those sent on to Reformatories, 338, were only 16 per cent. of the commitments.

Satisfactory results of Industrial and Reformatory Schools.

5. (a.) In both countries the attention paid to the young is producing results, so far satisfactory, that the per-centage of commitments under 16 years of age has been reduced from 1864 to 1874 in Ireland in the case of boys from 4·8 per cent. to 4·4, and in the case of girls from 1·3 to 1·2. In England and Wales the per-centage of boys was reduced in the same number of years from 1864 to 1873, from 8·1 to 7·5, and in the case of girls from 3·9 to 2·7.

(b.) Making allowance of 13 per cent. for increase of population from 1864 to 1873, the number of boys under 16 committed in England and Wales, was reduced from 8,516 to 8,062, and the number of girls from 1,483 to 1,197. In Ireland, allowing 6 per cent. as decrease of population from 1865 to 1874, the girls under 16 only decreased from 166 to 165, while the boys for whom so much has not been done in Industrial Schools, increased from 795 to 1,039. The lesser powers in Ireland, above referred to, for securing the education of these classes, producing, as might be expected, less satisfactory results than in England and Wales.

Prisoners' Aid Societies.

6. (a.) The only institutions resembling English Prisoners' Aid Societies which are recognized by the State in Ireland, are confined to the very small but important class of women discharged from convict prisons on licence. One is the Refuge for Roman Catholics at Golden Bridge, near Dublin, and the other the Shelter for Protestants at Harcourt-road, Dublin. Of 68 convict women discharged during the year, 50 sought the shelter of these well-conceived charities, the earliest of which dates back to the prison reforms introduced at the suggestion of Mrs. Fry.

(b.) The want of further recognition of Prisoners' Aid Societies in Ireland, dealing as they do in England and Wales with all classes of prisoners, arises from the Irish law on the subject, still resting on an old statute of 1827 (7 Geo. IV., c. 74, s. 111), based on the old English Act of 1823 (4 Geo. IV., c. 64). The amendments of the English Act in 1862 (25 & 26 Vic., c. 44) and 1867 (31 & 32 Vic., c. 59, s. 4), have not yet been extended to Ireland.

Criminal lunatics and dangerous lunatics charged with intent to commit a crime.

Difference between English and Irish law as to dangerous lunatics.

7. (a.) The portion of the inmates of Lunatic Aylums that fall within the scope of criminal statistics is much larger in Ireland than in England and Wales. This arises partly from a mere difference of classification, which under an Act of the present Session, will not occur in future, but still affects the figures for 1874. Under an Act applicable only to England, of 1866, lunatics sent from gaols to asylums when their sentence expired were treated as ordinary lunatics and ceased to be classed as criminals. This principle by the Act just passed now applies to Ireland.

(b.) The Lunatic Asylums Act of 1853 enables justices (§11) to send a pauper lunatic to an asylum upon a certificate that he is deemed to be a lunatic and a proper person to be sent to an asylum, and (§21) to send to asylum lunatics (whether paupers or not) wandering at large, not being properly cared for, or as being cruelly treated. The Act provides stringent penalties upon medical officers and overseers of the poor, &c., who omit to give notice so as to have the above classes of lunatics brought before justices. Lunatics sent under this Act are not classed as criminal lunatics, and so successful has this Act been in its operation, that the justices in England did not send a single person to an asylum under the earlier Act of 1837 (1 and 2 Vic., c. 14,) which enables them to commit, on evidence of derangement of mind "accompanied with an intent to commit a crime."

In Ireland Justices of the Peace have, under the Irish Act of 1867 (30 and 31 Vic., c. 118), only the powers of the earlier English Act of 1837 in a modified form, and none of the powers of the later English Act of 1853.

They consequently had, before committing lunatics, to wait for evidence "of an intent to commit a crime," and the 1,099 lunatics committed by them were necessarily classed with the criminal lunatics.

(c.) The earlier stage at which lunatics were sent to asylums in England and Wales led to the satisfactory result that the number of actually criminal lunatics there in 1873 was only 35 in a population equal to that of Ireland, while the number of lunatics in Ireland committed who had gone beyond an intent to commit a crime into actual crime in 1874 was 64.

CHAPTER IV.—COST OF THE REPRESSION OF CRIME.

Comparative cost of repressing crime in Ireland and in England and Wales.

1. Before comparing the Irish system of public prosecutions and more numerous Police with the English, it is right to contrast the results attained. The criminal classes known to the authorities in England and Wales amount to 32 in every 10,000 of the population. Of these only 13 in every 10,000 are in confinement, and 19 are at large. In Ireland the whole criminal population is only 19 in each 10,000 of the population, of which number only 10 are at large, and 9 are in custody.

2. The cost of suppressing crime in Ireland, for Police, Prisons, Reformatories, and prosecutions is £1,481,433 as compared with £863,160 in an equal population of England and Wales.

Cost of Police.

3. The Police in Ireland are 22 in every 10,000, or 3 in 10,000 more numerous than the criminals, who are only 19 in 10,000. In England and Wales the Police are only 12 in every 10,000 or about one-third of the criminals who are 32 in the 10,000. The Police are nearly twice as numerous in Ireland, 22 to 12 in the 10,000 population, and the Irish charge in 1874 is not much more than twice the English charge for 1873, £1,214,222 as compared with £583,520 for a portion of the population of England and Wales equal to Ireland.

Cost of prosecutions.

4. The cost of the Irish system of the public prosecutor appearing in nearly every case was nearly £88,462, as compared with £47,685 in an equal portion of English population, on the English system of the public prosecutor appearing in 200 cases out of 13,641.

Cost of Gaols, Convict Prisons, and Reformatories.

5. This increased cost of prosecutions was, however, more than saved by having only 9 instead of 13 in the 10,000 in confinement in the gaols, convict prisons and reformatories. These institutions cost in Ireland only £178,749, as compared with a cost of £231,955, in an equal portion of English population.

PART II. JUDICIAL STATISTICS.

1. No attempt has been made to compare the proceedings of the Courts in Ireland and in England. The very unequal application of modern legal reforms to the Courts of the two countries has produced an amount of diversity of practice and procedure from the original common standard, which would make a complete comparison very complicated and difficult, and render a partial comparison very likely to mislead.

Reasons for absence of comparison of Irish and English Judicial Statistics.

(a.) The arrear of business in the English Courts is, besides, a disturbing element in the way of a comparison of the Judicial Statistics of the two countries.

(b.) The appeals in the House of Lords in 1873 were 55, the number heard 31; allowing 25 for dismissals and withdrawals, the arrears at end of year were 34 cases, only 1 less than the number at the end of 1872, or more than a whole year's business in arrear.

Diversity of procedure and arrears of business in English Courts.

(c.) In the Privy Council in London the appeals remaining from the previous year were 281, and the new entries 108, making 389 to be heard; the number heard was only 114; allowing for 15 dismissed and 23 apparently withdrawn, the arrears were only reduced from 281 at the end of the year 1872, to 237 at the end of 1873, leaving above two years' business in arrear.

(d.) In the Court of Chancery in England, the number of arrears in the chief proceedings increased from 580 at the beginning of the year, to 724 at the end of the year. This arrear arose although two of the heaviest cases in recent years had been by special Acts of Parliament referred to arbitrators, and although the parties to these suits were deprived of their ordinary right of appeal.

(e.) The parties thus referred incurred a special cause of delay, when an arbitrator died there was a delay of some months pending the obtaining an Act of Parliament for the appointment of a new arbitrator, and providing for a limited restoration of the right of appeal.

(f.) The business of the Superior Courts of Common Law in England were noticed to be in arrear so far back as 1863, by the English and Irish Law and Chancery Commissioners. Notwithstanding the increased number of Judges subsequently appointed in consequence of the jurisdiction as to Election Petitions, there was still a large arrear in these Courts in 1873—no less then 138 trials at "Nisi Prius" (100 in town, and 38 on circuit) were returned as postponed "from want of time to try the cases." The other postponements (remanets by order, &c., by consent, and causes stayed) were 312. The number of withdrawals and causes struck out, including cases referred, amounted to 1,769, so that out of 4,624 causes for trial only 2,405 were actually tried.

(g.) When a permanent arrear of business of the kind existing in all the Superior Courts in England occurs, the Statistics no longer indicate the natural amount of business that would be brought before the Courts if there was time to dispose of it. Again, the cases disposed of cease to be average cases, for in such a state of business there will be a strong tendency to postpone or refer to arbitration the most complicated cases and those most likely to occupy time.

The most interesting parts of the Judicial Statistics relate to the indications they afford of the working of modern legal reforms.

2. (a.) The reform in the law of Wills and in Probate Jurisdiction is tested by the small proportion of business involving serious contention to the whole number of Probates and Administrations granted. In the District Registries, out of 2,158 Probates and Administrations granted, only 25 required the direction of a Judge. At the Central Registry, whilst 1,864 Probates and Administrations led to 556 caveats, there were only 50 causes that came to trial before the Judge or the Judge with a Jury.

Jurisdiction as to Wills and Administrations.

(b.) While a satisfactory result is thus shown for the class of cases where the property is large enough to meet the expense of the system, still the entire number of Probates and Administrations granted (4,043) is but a small proportion of (35,000) the number of persons who died in Ireland in the year 1874, who legally could or did make a Will, showing how entirely the jurisdiction fails to reach the mass of the people and to secure a strictly legal disposal of their property on death, and a complete contribution of all such property to taxes on succession.

Jurisdiction for protecting property of Lunatics.

3. (a.) The Lunacy reform introduced by Lord O'Hagan's Lunacy Act of 1871, has been successful in extending the protection of the jurisdiction under the Queen's Sign Manual, to a larger number of Lunatics; 205 are now protected as compared with 155 in 1871.

(b.) The number of new cases was only 25 in 1874. The returns show, however, that 724 were placed in the year in Private Asylums, or committed to Public Asylums as dangerous, having an intent to commit crime. The contrast presented by these figures shows that even the amended Lunacy Jurisdiction reaches only a fraction of the cases of persons treated as Lunatics, a very large proportion of whom have property, or claims to property requiring care and protection.*

Jurisdiction for protecting property of Minors.

(c.) The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery as to minors, shows 475 families of minors, consisting of 1,098 minors under the care of the Court. If this number be compared with the number of fatherless minors in Ireland, which may be estimated at not less than 250,000, the small per-centage under protection of the law indicates how entirely the jurisdiction as to minors, as that with regard to lunatics and Wills, fails to reach the mass of the people.

Proceedings of Landed Estates Court.

4. (a.) The earliest Land Law Reform was the Incumbered Estates Court in 1849, changed into the Landed Estates Court in 1858. The primary object was securing the prompt recovery of money lent on mortgage. This object still exists, for, in 1874 whilst 34 petitions were for the sale of unincumbered estates, no less than 315 petitions were for the sale of incumbered estates. This prompt jurisdiction has had its share in reducing the interest on loans in Ireland, from 6 and 5 per cent. before 1849, to $4\frac{1}{2}$ and $4\frac{1}{4}$.

(b.) This low rate of interest on mortgages and some restrictions of the classes of cases to which it is applicable, has had some effect in preventing any case under Judge Longfield's Land Debentures Act.

(c.) The Record of Title Act has been brought into operation in 1874, as to 40 estates, valued as to consideration money at £101,000, being about 9 per cent. of the entire purchase money or value (£1,145,935) of property passing through the Court in the year.

(d.) The price at which fee simple property sold in the Court in 1874, was 22·8 years' purchase. In 1850 fee simple sold for only 18 years. All interests and tenures (including fee simple) sold in 1874 for 18 years' purchase. On an average of 3 years ended 1874, fee simple sold for 21·38 years' and all interests, &c., for 19·16 years' purchase.

(e.) If these rates be compared with 3 years ended 1869, (before the Land Act), fee simple then sold for 21·94 years', and all interests, &c., at 17·43 years' purchase.

The prices of fee simple and all interests in 1874 are above this average, while taking the 3 years ended 1874, that of fee simple is only a fraction below it. This difference has been caused by a fall in the price in Leinster, while there has been a rise in the other 3 provinces, so that the effect of the Land Act, 1870, so far as it can be traced, has been if anything to increase and not to diminish the selling value of land.

Proceedings under the Land Act of 1870.

5. (a.) Under the Land Act of 1870 there were 1,061 cases, showing an increase of 335 or 46 per cent. above the 726, the number of cases in 1873. The increase of cases in Ulster were 409, of which 334 were in Tyrone, and 88 in Londonderry; in the other provinces there was a decrease of 5 in Munster, 18 in Leinster, and 51 in Connaught.

* Under Act of 1875, c. 67, Magistrates may order cost of maintenance to be paid out of property of Lunatic (where more than sufficient to maintain family), but cannot protect family by securing that what is thought, sufficient for their maintenance shall be so applied, or protect property of Lunatic for his future maintenance in or out of an Asylum.

(b.) The 1,061 cases produced only 222 decrees for £19,450 in the aggregate. The average sum adjudged was £101 in Ulster; £100 in Munster; £66 in Leinster; and £48 in Connaught, indicating the small class of farms with respect to which decrees were made, showing on the one hand the satisfactory result that has taken place from bringing these small interests within the domain and protection of the law, and on the other hand the considerable amount of legal business that this has necessarily given rise to Proceedings under Land Act, 1870.

(c.) To test the actual extent of litigation with its possible amount, it is only necessary to compare the number of cases, 1,061, with the 526,000 agricultural holdings at yearly tenancies, it gives only 20 in every 10,000 holdings, and in the county of Tyrone, where the largest number of cases occurred, it only 147 in every 10,000 holdings.

(d.) As to the provisions of the Land Act under which the decrees were made:—In Ulster £5,954 (64 per cent. of the total amount in that province, £9,186,) was for Ulster Tenant-right, and £2,011 (or 22 per cent.) for loss on quitting the holding and improvements combined. In the other three provinces £6,677 (66 per cent. of £10,264) was for loss on quitting the holding and improvements together, and £2,069 (or 20 per cent.) for improvements alone.

Effect of abolition of imprisonment for debt in substituting writs of fieri facias for writs of capias ad satisfaciendum.

6. (a.) The extent of discontinuance of imprisonment for debt which has taken place under the Act for the gradual termination of that remedy, is marked by the decrease of the writs for taking the person to satisfy a debt (capias ad satisfaciendum), from 1,370 in 1872 to 200 in 1874. There was, however, on the other hand, a remarkable increase in the writs for levying debts off goods and chattels (including under the latter term yearly tenancies and leases for terms of years), those of fieri facias, from 3,016 in 1872 to 4,876 in 1874, and of the latter number no less than 4,316 were executed by the Sheriff. While the larger part of this increase appears to have been caused by the gradual abolition of imprisonment for debt, a part was caused by the increased value given to yearly tenancies and leasehold interests by the Land Act.

7. There was an increase in the number of ejectments for non-payment of rent executed from 1,256 in 1873 to 1,567 in 1874. The winter of 1872--73 being (as noticed in the Report on Savings of Midsummer, 1873) a severe one on the poor, this led to arrears in 1873, and ejectments for non-payment of rent in 1874. The increase in ejectments executed, other than for non-payment of rent, from 521 in 1873 to 603 in 1874, appears to have arisen from the increased number of writs of fieri facias, 490, as the purchaser from the Sheriff under such writs cannot if opposed get possession without an ejectment.

Revision of Jurors' Lists.

8. (a.) The Statistics as to jurors show the effect of the Marquis of Hartington's Jury Act of 1873, modifying the qualifications under Lord O'Hagan's Act of 1871, and providing for the exclusion of persons who cannot read or write English, and for the Court being fully informed of all grounds of exemption or disqualification.

(b.) The revision under the Act of 1873 led to 26,881 (or 31 per cent.) out of 87,641 names returned by local officers, being struck off, and 14 added to the Jurors' Lists. The effect of this revision and of the correction of the General Jurors Books under the Act of 1871, was that the General Jurors Books for all Ireland, under the recent law, contained only 60,069, being an increase in the number (55,400) on the last lists under the old law, those for 1871, of only 8 per cent. (4,669). The main increase was in Ulster and Munster; 3,572 in Ulster, and 2,643 in Munster, whilst in Leinster there was a decrease of 701, and in Connaught of 845 in the number of Jurors on the General Jurors Books in 1874, as compared with the number in 1871 on the last lists under the old law.

Summoning of Jurors.

9. (a.) As to frequency of summoning, Special Jurors got credit in the rotation for only 5,000 out of 22,628 summonses. Of the 17,628 occasions for which no credit was given, 12,567 arose from their being summoned on Quarter Sessions Grand Juries.

(b.) In the county and city of Dublin, taken together, the summoning of Special and Common Jurors reached 184 in the 10,000 of the population, nearly double the proportion in the rest of Ireland, 98 in the 10,000 of population.

(c.) If there was a single panel for each term in all the Courts, a single venue in the county and city, the number of Jurors summoned in the county and city of Dublin might be reduced from 7,488 to 3,316, or to 84 in the 10,000 of population, somewhat less than the average of Ireland.

Business in Civil Bill Courts.

10. In addition to the increase above noticed, in proceedings under the Land Act, there was an increase in 1874 in every branch of the business of Civil Bill Courts. In causes remitted from Superior Courts of 17, from 110 to 127; in ejectments of 454, from 5,662 to 6,116; and in ordinary Civil Bills of 15,245, from 95,385 to 110,630.

Business of Judges on Circuit.

11. There was an increase in the appeals to Judges on circuit of 43, from 543 to 586, following upon increases in 1873, 1872 and 1871, making in aggregate an increase of 221 upon the number (365) in 1870, the year in which the Land Act passed.

There was a similar increase in the causes entered for trial on circuit of 29, from 438 in 1873 to 477 in 1874, the increase from 1870 amounted to 62, from 214 to 376 the number in that year.

Business of Superior Courts of Common Law.

12. There was an increase in the business of the Superior Courts of Common Law, as measured by the writs of summons and plaint filed, of 766, from 15,786 in 1873 to 16,552 in 1874; from 1870 the increase was 4,543, the number in that year having been only 12,009.

Business in Chancery.

13. In Chancery the number of Bills and Summonses filed in 1874 was 483, owing to the absence of returns for 1873, this number must be compared with the number for 1872 (494), and it shows a slight decrease on that number, which was slightly below (502) the number for 1870, such slight changes indicating a stationary state of the business. The fees collected in the Record and Writ office in 1874 were £7,959, considerably above the amount in 1872 (£6,823), but below the amount in 1870 (£8,636).

Business Minor Courts.

Local Charter Courts.

14. In the 8 Local Charter Courts there were 6,829 summonses, against 7,187 in 1873.

Courts of Petty Sessions.

15. The civil jurisdiction of the Courts of Petty Sessions do not admit of the same satisfactory comparison from year to year, from the large number of days, 1,074, on which Petty Sessions were not held from non-attendance of Magistrates, amounting in 1874 to 7 per cent. of the 13,688 days on which these Courts were held, a per-centage which was exceeded in earlier years; owing to this circumstance the falling off in the summonses issued from 109,879 in 1873 to 100,900 in 1874, has not the same significance as it would otherwise possess.

Effects of extension of Jurisdiction of Local Courts upon business of Superior Courts.

16. The largeness of the figures representing the business of the local courts, notwithstanding the limited nature of their jurisdictions—100,900 Civil Summonses at Petty Sessions, and 118,936 suits entered in the Civil Bill Courts and at Land Sessions—when compared with 16,552 Writs of Summons and Plaint filed in the three Superior Courts of Common Law, and the 1,159 Petitions, Bills, and Summonses in Chancery, indicates the wonderful extension the business of the local courts is capable of. If, not alone in case of minors, lunatics, and succession to property at death, as above suggested, but in all matters where the Superior Courts now protect the property and contracts of those wealthy enough to pay fees, costs, and law taxes, the jurisdiction of the local courts was arranged to afford like protection to the property and contracts of the poor, there would be a very great extension of business of the local courts. If the appellate jurisdiction was arranged so as to have rehearings on Circuit and law arguments in town, this comprehension of the affairs of the poor in like protection of the law would increase the civil business of the Superior Courts. It would, at the same time, diminish the criminal business so far as it arises from the disputes of relatives, kinsmen, and neighbours over rights of property too small in value to bear the costs of the present jurisdictions for determining them.

† On the 8th of November 1873, Lord Advocate Young certified under the Act new forms for the returns of the civil business before Sheriffs of Counties and their Substitutes. One feature in the change was the separation of the purely administrative business from the judicial work of the Sheriff Courts in litigated cases. There were at the same time alterations, believed to be improvements, in the method of rendering the returns. Of these a fuller account may be given after there has been experience of their working, and they are reconsidered with a view to the question whether their principle should be extended to the returns from other Courts. The change already made will account for the blanks in this Table.

* The Accountant in Bankruptcy states that in last year's Report the number of Sequestrations given up as depending at 31st October 1872 was 2509. Since that period the Accountant has received Extracts of Discharges of Trustees in 5 other Sequestrations, wound up by Division previous to 31st October 1872. Deducting this from the above number leaves the actual number of Sequestrations in dependence at 31st October 1872, 2504.

† The Accountant explains that the number of Sequestrations awarded during the year ending 31st October 1873 was 389, but there were 2 Sequestrations which were actually closed, and so reported to the Accountant, but which were re-opened during the year; they therefore fall to be added to the number of Sequestrations awarded.

‡ There were 233 Sequestrations in which Trustees were discharged after Division of Funds, but in one of these there were two Trustees, and only one was so discharged, so that it still remains open.
